MACKEY'S SPECIAL FERTILIZER contains 9% of potash. Specially compounded on our own premises, it is strongly recommended by leading Tomato growers. Trial bag, 7lb., 2/6. 18/6 cwt., carriage paid. Leaflet on Tomato Cultivation post free.

INDOOR GARDENING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Garden Correspondent says:—

Continue to propagate chrysanthemums as the cuttings are available, and pot off those already rooted. Examine dahlia and begonia tubers, and make arrangements for starting them into growth later on. Fuchsias may be shaken out, pruned and repotted. Keep the plants on the dry side until new growth is observed. Finish up arrears in the vineries and peach houses, as the sap, in vines especially, will soon be ascending, and the slightest wound would have serious effects. Encourage all plants in bloom in the greenhouses with occasional doses of weak liquid manure, and ventilate freely on all favourite opportunities. Flowering plants of a tender nature, such as cinerarias, primulas, etc., must have suffered considerably from the coddling which was necessary in keeping out the frost.

ORDINARY LAYING MASH.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Poultry Correspondent says:—

When they are two months' old, the chicks should be gradually put on to the ordinary laying mash, but containing, however, a smaller quantity of fish or meat meal than would be given to laying stock. The following may be recommended:—Four parts of pollard, two parts of bran, two parts of fine ground oats of good quality, one part of barley meal (or maize meal), half part of fish or meat and bone meal. All parts by weight. At this point as a grain food, equal parts of good oats and small wheat may be given. Feed the soft mash always in troughs, giving only what the birds will clean up in about ten minutes. Remove any left over at once, and clean the troughs before the next meal. If the grain is given in the litter, be sure that the latter is perfectly clean and dry, and of sufficient depth to provide decent scratching exercise.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT CRIMINAL COURT

FORGED CATTLE LICENCES

MAN PUT BACK FOR SENTENCE

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Peter Paul Farrell, aged 42 years, Gray street, Dublin, who was employed as a bookmaker's clerk, was put forward for sentence yesterday, having been found guilty of uttering forged cattle licences and obtaining £50 or part of that sum from Edward O'Callaghan, cattle exporter, Cabra, Dublin, by falsely pretending that the licences were genuine.

Detective-Inspector Wyer, replying to Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), who appeared for the prosecution, said that through the English police they had got 214 forged licences, inclusive of the 50 concerned in this prosecution. So far as appearances were concerned, all these forged licences seemed to have been printed by the same printer. They were forged licences in respect of fat cattle and "stores." All but 50 had been used.

Mr. McCarthy—Have the authorities been able to discover the printers or anybody else connected with the case?—So far, they have not.

Inspector Wyer said that Farrell had six children, whose ages ranged from four to sixteen years, and his wife was in delicate health. He did not think that the family were in good circumstances. He understood that Farrell had been paid £3 for each race meeting. In 1928 Farrell had been convicted of rescuing a prisoner and assaulting the police.

Judge Davitt said that he regarded the accused man's offence with the greatest possible seriousness. There was no question of minimising its gravity. The accused man had a threefold duty—one to the State, one to Mr. O'Callaghan, and one to his wife and family. He should take these things into consideration. He would be put back for sentence to the last day of the sitting.

CONCEALMENT OF BIRTH

Mary Spooner, who was charged with concealment of the birth of her illegitimate child, was ordered to be detained for twelve months in High Park Convent, Drumcondra, Dublin, and to enter into a rule of bail, or to go to Mountjoy Jail for nine months.

Judge Davitt said that the State had taken a very lenient view. The accused might have stood in the dock in another court on a charge of murder.

Mr. J. J. O'Connor, solicitor, appeared for the defence.

The Court adjourned until Monday.

(BEFORE JUDGE WYLIE, WITH MR. COMMISSIONER MANSFIELD AND MR. COMMISSIONER BROWNE.)

When Mr. Patrick Dunne Cullinan appealed against the valuation made by the Land Commission on his farm at Scurlockstown, Co. Meath, it was stated by Mr. G. L. Bomford, valuer, that the price of land in County Meath had increased by 10s. to 20s. per Irish acre. Land round Kells was being let at £3 10s. per Irish acre.

An offer of £13,000, subsequently increased to £14,500, was made by the Land Commission, but was refused by Mr. Cullinan.

The profits of the farm, which consisted of 585 acres 3 roods 9 perches, averaged £1,408 since 1925.

Mr. T. Forbes (instructed by Mr. W. O'Reilly) appeared for the Land Commission; Mr. W. H. Carson, K.C., appeared for Mr. Dunne Cullinan.

CITY THEATRE LEASE

DECORATORS' EVIDENCE

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

The hearing was resumed of the action of George P. Fleming, Drimnagh House, Inchicore, Dublin, against Paramount Film Service, Ltd., Pearse street, Dublin, in which the plaintiff claimed damages for alleged breaches by the defendants of covenants of a lease of the Capitol Theatre in not keeping the theatre properly fitted, furnished and decorated.

The defendants denied that they had committed any breaches of the covenants. A counterclaim in respect of £439 11s. 6d. for rates was admitted by the plaintiff.

Mr. C. S. Campbell, K.C., Mr. T. P. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Messrs. Peebles, Knox and Pigot) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Leonard, K.C., Mr. Dockrell, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. W. Findlater and Co.) for the defendants.

Thomas Crowley, a director of Sibthorpe and Son, Ltd., decorators, Dublin, giving evidence on behalf of the plaintiff, stated that in 1927 his firm repainted the interior and exterior of the theatre for the defendants at a cost of about £1,900, a condition being that the original gold leaf used in the decoration was to be saved where possible. In April, 1934, he gave an estimate for redecorating the auditorium, but the work was not then done. When he inspected the auditorium in the present year he found that it had been re-decorated. He formed the opinion that the work had been hurriedly done, and he was surprised at a theatre of that class being treated in that manner. Bronze paint appeared brassy and was tarnished in places. His opinion was that the auditorium had deteriorated from the decorative point of view.

J. M. Elliman, upholsterer, Camden street, Dublin, gave evidence of having given estimates of the cost of refitting seating in the upper circle and parterre.

Charles Macaulay, of Millar and Beatty, furnishers, Dublin, stated that about the end of 1934 a carpet in the parterre was worn, and a carpet was put in its place at a cost of £182 10s. Estimates had been given for the provision of new carpets in the side aisles at a cost of £74 8s., and for the replacement of a carpet in the dress circle at £579 12s. In his opinion, these carpets required replacement.

J. Hilton, of Hilton Bros., Townsend street, Dublin, stated that when he inspected the theatre in September, 1934, the seating needed refitting virtually throughout.

Further evidence having been given on behalf of the plaintiff, the further hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

A BUNDLE OF TREASURY NOTES

THE FINDING OF A WILL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

An application was made on behalf of Margaret Mary Phelan, 4 Sullivan street, Dublin, for a grant of administration, with the will annexed, of the estate of her grandmother, Mary Phelan, late of 4 Sullivan street, Dublin, notwithstanding the appointment of an executor under the will.

Mr. J. Farrell (instructed by Mr. J. J. Kennedy), for the applicant, said that Mary Phelan died on the 27th October last, and the applicant, her grand-daughter, was the universal legatee under the will. William Phelan was a son of Mary Phelan and father of the applicant, and on the death of his mother he took out grant of letters of administration intestate. The daughter, believing that there was a will, consulted a solicitor, and subsequently found the will. She then called upon her father to move for revocation of the grant of letters of administration, and this was duly done.

In reply to Mr. Justice Hanna, Mr. Farrell said that the principal issue would be whether the father knew of the existence of the will. The assets were sworn at £563. The old lady lived with her grand-daughter and a grandson, while their father, William Phelan, lived at the other side of the city, at 8 Parkgate street, with his second wife and second family.

Mr. Farrell read an affidavit of the applicant, which stated that about three months before the death of her grandmother, her grandmother showed her the will. In October last during her grandmother's last illness, she was in the scullery of the house when Mrs. Flanagan and a friend were washing her grandmother's clothes, and she saw Mrs. Flanagan find a bundle of Treasury notes hidden in the hem of a dress. Her father was called, and when the notes were dried he counted them, and announced that they amounted to £67. Before her grandmother's death there had been for a long time in the front drawingroom a small attaché case containing her grandmother's papers. During the lifetime of her grandmother no room in the house was ever kept locked, but after her death the applicant's brother kept his bedroom locked. She was housekeeping for him, but he never permitted her to enter the room, even for the purpose of making his bed. She missed the attaché case after the death of her grandmother, and asked her brother if the will was in his room, and he said it was not.

The affidavit went on to state that, having got a key from a neighbour, she opened the locked door, and in the bedroom found a trunk, which she opened with a key which she found on her brother's dressing table. The small attaché case was in the trunk and contained a bundle of documents. The outside document was the last will of her grandmother, and the bundle included some insurance policies. In this will she was named as universal legatee, and her father was appointed sole executor.

Mr. Walter Molony (instructed by Mr. P. M. Seales), for the father, William Phelan, said that his client denied that he knew of the existence of the will; that the will was ever in the attaché case of the son, and there was an affidavit to that effect. He also denied that the money was found by Mrs Flanagan. When he learned of the existence of the will, he returned the grant with a declaration to have it revoked. There was a sum of £150 involved, which was alleged to have been used by the father for the purpose of discharging a mortgage, and this was admitted. There was also £150 alleged to be due under a promissory note, but the father said that this was paid off by rents collected by the applicant. In the circumstances, the father was willing to renounce his application for probate of the will.

Mr Justice Hanna said that he would adjourn the case for a week to enable the father to sign the necessary revocation form, and would deal later with the costs.

TWO ACTIONS SETTLED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN).

A consent to settlement was received and made a rule of Court in an action of Charles Rathbone, an infant, suing by Charles Rathbone, his father, of 78 Annamoe Drive, Cabra, Dublin, against John Brennan, of 57 Hollybrook road, Clontarf, Dublin.

The action was for damages for injuries caused to the plaintiff as the result of his having been knocked down by defendant's motor car when he was crossing North Circular road, Dublin, on 22nd May, 1935.

The consent provided for the payment by the defendant of £100 to the plaintiff's father in full discharge of all medical and hospital expenses and damages, and £40 for costs.

Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff; and Messrs. Hoey and Denning were solicitors for the defendant.

A consent to settlement was received and made a rule of Court also in a case of Miss Maria McCarthy, of 44 Mountjoy street, Dublin, against Thomas Keane, of 26 Whitworth road, Dublin.

The action was for damages for injuries caused to the plaintiff by the defendant's motor car, and the consent provided for the payment by the defendant to the plaintiff of £115 15s., to include medical expenses and costs.

Mr. James Fagan was the solicitor for the plaintiff; and Mr. S. V. Kirwan (instructed by Mr. Valentine Kirwan) was for the defendant.

"The Rheumatism in my ankle and leg has disappeared. Your treatment is most wonderful. I wish you had come to Dublin two years ago; you would have saved me from a lot of suffering, not to mention expense and loss of work. No one ever explained to me before as you have how my Bad Feet caused my Rheumatism and Sciatica. It was affecting my back, too, and I am more than grateful to be saved from this further trouble of—what did you call it?—Oh! yes, Lumbago."

WHAT VISITORS TO CLINIC SAY TELLS VOLUMES

about the remarkable success of Mr. Charles Baxter's Treatment for Foot and Rheumatic Troubles.

The great majority of aches and pains, stiffness, soreness and swelling of the Feet and Ankles, and accompanying Rheumatism in the lower extremities, as well as in other parts of the body, are traceable to weakness and troubles of the Feet. They upset the balance of the body. The blood-vessels and nerves are affected. Rheumatic acids and deposits form in the blood and settle in the joints, muscles and tissues. Movement then becomes painful. There may even be pain, caused by congestion, swelling and inflammation in the ankles, legs and other parts of the body.

No wise person should allow this crippling and life-spoiling state of affairs to continue. No one need now do so. A visit to the Charles Baxter Foot and Rheumatism Clinic for a Free Advice and Demonstration Treatment will prove this to the delighted surprise and satisfaction of readers.

FLUNG OUT OF CAR

BOY SUES FATHER

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

A settlement was announced in an action in which Phelim J. Keogan, a minor, suing by a relative, Miss Evelyn G. Brady, claimed damages against his father, Philip Keogan, Kilmainhamwood, Co. Meath, in respect of personal injuries sustained by the minor, who is aged about 10 years, on 24th April, 1935.

It appeared that the boy was travelling in his father's motor car, and that while the vehicle was rounding a bend in the road a door opened and the boy was flung out and sustained severe personal injuries.

The settlement provided for the payment of £500 damages and costs.

Mr. Justice Hanna directed that £80 should be paid out of the £500 to defray hospital, medical and other expenses, and that the balance should be invested for the benefit of the minor.

Mr. Geoghegan, K.C., with whom were Mr. C. S. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. T. J. Smyth (instructed by Mr. J. C. Callan), for the plaintiff, said that the father had intimated that he did not wish that the dividends should be paid to him, but that they should be allowed to accumulate for the benefit of his son when his son came of age.

Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Milward Jones, Mayne and Sharpe) appeared for the defendant.

£201 FOR INJURED CHILD

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE AND A JURY.)

By consent, judgment for £201 was entered for the plaintiff in an action in which Daniel D. Doody and his wife, Mary Doody, of Kilconlea, Abbeyfeale, Co. Limerick, claimed damages against Daniel F. O'Connor, merchant, of Abbeyfeale, for the death of their daughter Elizabeth, which, they alleged, was caused through her having been knocked down by the defendant's lorry on 20th November, 1934.

The defendant had denied liability.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne directed that both parties should abide their own costs.

Mr. P. Lynch, K.C., Mr. Michael Binchy, K.C., and Mr. T. K. Liston (instructed by Messrs. P. T. Liston and Co.) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. J. M. FitzGerald, K.C., and Mr. Barra O'Briain (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) for the defendant.

FATAL MALLOW ACCIDENT

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN.)

An application was made by Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Denis F. Moriarty), on behalf of Mrs. Mary Nugent, of Ballygarrett, Mallow, to have apportioned amongst her and her three children a sum of £1,101, which had been lodged in court by Comhlucht Siuicre Eireann, Teo, the defendants in an action that had been brought by her for damages for the death of her husband, Patrick Nugent.

It appeared that the late Patrick Nugent was a fitter, who had been employed at the Mallow factory of the Irish Sugar Beet Company, and that while he was working on a scaffolding on 22nd August, 1934, the scaffolding broke and he was thrown to the ground and was killed.

Mr. Justice Sullivan apportioned £425 to the widow, £276 to her elder daughter, Kathleen, and £400 to her younger daughter, Mary.

WILL MADE IN SCOTLAND

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA.)

The Court admitted to probate the will, dated 16th December, 1913, of Patrick McLaughlin, late of Letrim, Carrowmanagh, Co. Donegal, who died on 21st April, 1928, being then domiciled in the Free State. The testator had formerly resided in Greenock, Scotland, and his will was signed, on his authority, by a notary public in Scotland, who used his own name for the purpose, and added an attestation clause. He left his estate, consisting mainly of the proceeds of insurance policies and a small farm, to his wife, now Mrs. Hannah Doran, who had remarried since testator's death, and appointed her executrix.

Mr. J. Healy (instructed by Mr. John Tracy) appeared for Mrs. Hannah Doran.

FROM THE NORTHERN CAPITAL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

THE Northern Parliament will re-assemble next week after the Christmas recess. The remainder of the session will be devoted principally to financial measures, the consideration of the estimates for the coming year and the Budget. Several of the financial measures are of more than usual importance. Two of them will deal with adjustments that are necessary arising from the revaluation, and they may involve a considerable amount of controversy, particularly as the Ministry of Finance is departing from the system of recouping in full the loss sustained by local authorities in consequence of de-rating.

A bill will be introduced to continue the housing subsidy of £25, which is payable to builders of working-class houses, provided the local authority puts up a similar amount.

Another measure which will lead to a lively discussion in view of the opposition of the Ulster Farmers' Union will be the bill to extend the unemployment benefits to agricultural workers. Efforts will be made, no doubt, to get the Government to depart from the British scheme, but this would be contrary to all the Government declarations that Northern Ireland social services would be maintained on the same basis as Great Britain. When the Minister of Finance makes his Budget statement this year it is expected that a substantial surplus will be disclosed at the end of the financial year, in view of the increased contribution from Great Britain under the new unemployment re-insurance agreement.

Great Britain's contribution will be over £700,000, instead of £250,000 under the old agreement—a recognition of the fact that there are 25 per cent. of the insured workers unemployed in Northern Ireland as compared with only 15 per cent. in Great Britain. If the proportions were reversed, and a higher rate of unemployment in Great Britain, then Northern Ireland would contribute on the higher basis to the equalisation fund. It is one of those equalising interlocking adjustments so dear to the heart of Treasury officials. It works well at present, but may be a source of trouble later. Surely there is a better way of expressing the financial unity of the United Kingdom than relying on an excess of unemployment for a Budget surplus!

A Well-deserved Honour

When the Ulster Unionist Council holds its annual meeting on Friday next, the Northern Prime Minister, Viscount Craigavon, will be invited to become president, in succession to the late Lord Carson. The Council represents all the Unionist organisations in the North, and the unique compliment which it contemplates paying Viscount Craigavon is one that is well deserved. However much one may differ on minor points of the Government's policy—and it is not a characteristic of Ulstermen to accept their opinions readymade or bow at the altar of political infallibility—all Unionists and many Nationalists recognise that Lord Craigavon has been a tower of strength to Northern Ireland. He has steered the State through many difficulties in a period of great industrial depression. His steadfastness upon main issues has not prevented him considering sympathetically representations on matters where there is a genuine conflict of opinion, and adjusting and harmonising views when they are put forward with a real desire to help the people of the province.

His great strength as leader of the Ulster people lies in the fact that everyone knows he is anxious to do his best to advance the interests of Northern Ireland, to assist its industries to greater prosperity and its people to greater comfort. This is indicated by Lord Craigavon's constant advocacy of such movements as the Ulster Tourist Development Association, his share in bringing work to the shipyard through the Loans Guarantee Acts, and the maintenance of the social standards of the workers in Northern Ireland on the same high level as Great Britain. These things are not forgotten, even by those who criticise certain aspects of the Government's policy. If Lord Craigavon could bring about a system of financial unity between Northern Ireland and Great Britain which would remove the disadvantages of the existing financial arrangements, he would set the seal upon a life of public service to the Northern province.

Farm Workers' Wages

The renewal of the campaign in Great Britain for an increase in the wages of farm workers will be watched with interest in Northern Ireland, in view of the opposition of the Ulster Farmers' Union to the proposed scale of contributions and benefits in the new Insurance Bill, which is to include farm workers. The agitation in Great Britain is part of a campaign to secure protection for agriculture by tariffs. It is contended that the various quota and marketing schemes are not sufficient to help agriculture back to prosperity, and that tariffs should be utilised to keep out foreign produce.

Industrial England, however, is not much in favour of tariffs on foodstuffs, but it may be possible to devise a scheme of adjustable tariffs and quotas which would get over the danger of excessive prices for food. Northern Ireland farmers should benefit equally with those in Great Britain by such a scheme, as Northern Ireland is in the common fiscal system of the United Kingdom. It is contended, however, that if farmers benefit labourers' wages should also be raised. The average wage of agricultural workers in Great Britain is 32s., and this is considered much too low. In Northern Ireland many agricultural workers get less than £1 per week, and the Ulster Farmers' Union points out that the scale of benefits under the new insurance scheme will give agricultural workers more money when unemployed than when they are working. The benefits are 14s. a week for a man over 21, with 7s. for adult dependants, 3s. for the first child, and 2s. 6d. for each other child. A man and his wife would get 21s. per week, and, if they had three children, 29s. per week. As these figures are fixed upon some relationship to the cost of living it is safe to say that the average wage of agricultural labourers in Northern Ireland is too low.

If farmers are to gain further advantage from marketing schemes and tariffs, they will have to pay higher wages to their labourers, or compulsory wage rates will be fixed. In the meantime the Farmers' Union is not displaying much wisdom in opposing the benefit scale of the unemployment scheme.

Derating

The proposals of the Northern Government for an adjustment of the derating grants in consequence of the general revaluation are contained in the Local Government (Finance) Bill, the text of which has now been issued. When the revaluation was under consideration an assurance was given by the Minister of Finance that it was not intended that local authorities should suffer any loss in derating grants in consequence of the general increase in valuations. But the local authorities now find that they will have to meet a substantial portion of the loss. County authorities will only get 80 per cent. of the loss which arises in derating grants, and they will have to make up the 20 per cent. difference by increasing the rates on the non-derated premises, such as dwelling-houses and shops.

In the boroughs the scheme for relieving the Exchequer is rather different. The derating grants are to be stabilised, and will not exceed the greatest sum paid in respect of any financial year from 1930 to 1936. In other words, if industries expand in Belfast, the Corporation will have to derate these new industrial works in the same way as existing industrial establishments; but they will not be recouped by the Ministry of Finance unless some other industrial establishment has gone out of business and the total figure of derating grant for the years specified is not exceeded.

The policy is hardly consistent with the desire to encourage the establishment of new industries. In its juggling to obtain financial resources the Government is getting further away each year from the basic principles on which the finances of the Northern area were founded—the White Paper and the Colwyn award. The financial arrangements of the Government of Ireland Act in these modern days have become unworkable, and any expedient will be adopted to relieve the situation. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is to consider if one of these expedients is legal. Instead of "financial juggling" the Government would be better advised to press for some semblance of "financial unity" in a United Kingdom.

Second Queen Mary

When it was announced that the Cunard-White Star Line was making tentative inquiries from four leading British shipbuilders to submit designs for a sister ship to the Queen Mary, and that Messrs. Harland and Wolff were not included, there was considerable surprise in Northern Ireland. An official statement issued by the Cunard-White Star, Ltd., in Liverpool states that, if eventually a sister ship to the Queen Mary were decided upon and the company wished to obtain insurance facilities similar to those available in the case of the Queen Mary, they would have to build in Great Britain in order to comply with the terms of the Cunard (Insurance) Agreement Act of 1930. It is also indicated that, should it be agreed to use the balance of the financial facilities under the Cunard-White Star Act for building a single sister ship to the Queen Mary, it was the Cunard-White Star Company's understanding that the Government would expect them to build in Great Britain.

These raise important questions from Northern Ireland as part of the fiscal and financial unity, "the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland."

There is a distinct differentiation against Northern Ireland which should not exist, or be permitted to exist, in a United Kingdom. Northern Ireland is prohibited from making any laws against trade, and it should insist that no laws are made against its trade in the United Kingdom. It should be the special duty of the Northern members in the Imperial Parliament to act as watchdogs to prevent such laws being passed, and where already existing have them altered.

All the White Star liners were built in Belfast before the amalgamation with the Cunard Company, and, if there is anything in the previous Cunard (Insurance) Agreement Act to prevent the amalgamated company ordering portion of their fleet in Belfast, it ought to be amended. This is a subject in which the Northern Government could also take a hand.

There is a growing tendency in Great Britain to look upon Northern Ireland as outside the United Kingdom, instead of being in the same fiscal and financial system. This cropped up in regard to several agricultural products, notably the limitation of potato exports. If the Northern Government insisted upon the complete unity of reserved revenue, seeing it is all imposed at Westminster, demanded complete equality of treatment in all trade matters as an integral part of the United Kingdom, it could put a stop to this differentiation against Northern Ireland. Have Ulster Unionists jettisoned their Unionism and now pay only a lip service to it?

Art in Industry

The annual exhibition of the Art school of the Belfast College of Technology which was held this week emphasises the important part which art plays in the development of industry. Recently the Northern Ministries of Commerce and Education appointed a committee to inquire into the relations between art and industry, and how these could be further co-ordinated. That committee has issued a valuable report, although one portion of it, that which advocates taking from the present art school the higher pupils, does not meet with general approval. Other portions, such as the establishment of a joint Art Council, are approved.

Mr. A. N. Bonaparte Wyse, M.A., C.B.E., the Permanent Secretary to the Ministry of Education, who declared the exhibition open, put forward some valuable suggestions for developing an appreciation of art and making it of service to industry. There is little use, as he pointed out, training specialists in applied art, and expecting manufacturers to spend large sums of money upon artistic productions, if the general public, through a lack of educated appreciation, fails to respond.

Educationalists, he contends, are given the task of creating in the public mind an appreciation of artistic production which in time would lead to an insistent demand for the best type of goods in an artistic sense. This should not be difficult of accomplishment; for the public already has a lively sense of the beautiful and quickly discards the ugly.

THE "BIRD CITY" OF CANADA

MORE TOURISTS EVERY YEAR

Every year tourists are going to the Gaspé coast on the East coast of Canada in increasing numbers, and coming away with a conviction that it is the most wonderful spectacle of its kind in the world. Thousands of sea birds nest on the ledges of the Percé Rock and Bonaventure Island.

Percé Rock, with its sheer sides rising directly from the water for nearly three hundred feet, and its great arched passageway, eighty feet in span, through which small boats may pass, is a great attraction in itself, and the thousands of sea birds that nest on it and on Bonaventure Island add to its rugged grandeur. More than 12,000 gannets make their summer homes there. Thousands of them, looking at a distance like great snowbanks, sit close-packed in serried ranks on their nests on the lofty ledges, while hundreds of others soar and wheel over the sea before the precipice. Other sea birds, including common and uncommon species, form part of this great assemblage.

This "bird city" is so situated that it may be observed and photographed conveniently without harming or disturbing its "citizens." Sea-going motor boats make a speciality of carrying parties of visitors past the lofty cliffs, where the gannets nest, and there are excellent points of vantage on solid land at the top of that cliff and on the crest of the mainland opposite Percé Rock.

"SAVE TO TRAVEL" STAMPS

HIRE PURCHASE RAILWAY TICKETS

The successful programme of cheap fares which was introduced by the British railways in 1935 is to be continued and extended during 1936. Penny a mile third class return tickets available for a month are now a permanent feature of railway travel, and it has also been decided to continue the experimental scheme of first class cheap fares at 50 per cent. above third class cheap fares, which is proving increasingly popular. This year the British railways are developing the "Save to Travel" idea, and new schemes are being introduced by the four main lines to make holiday journeys still easier.

Briefly, the schemes are to distribute free savings cards which are supplied on payment of the first instalment of sixpence or a shilling. Stamps are affixed to the cards and when the holiday time arrives the cards are accepted in payment or part payment of travel tickets. Repayments in cash are also made for excess savings.

There are twenty-six weeks before August Bank Holiday, and one shilling a week saved now is sufficient to purchase two train travel tickets to the seaside from many of the principal cities and towns in this country. For instances, the whole of the South Coast up to distances of 150 miles is within the reach of any Londoner saving one shilling a week, and to visit Cornwall, Wales, The Lake District, or Yorkshire from London, two shillings a week is sufficient, whilst a holiday trip to the Highlands of Scotland or to Ireland can be made from London for 5s. per week per person.

"Save to Travel" cards appeal equally to individual and pleasure party travellers. With their help the holidays of households, including children and maids, are provided for at a small weekly cost, and Scoutmasters and club organisers will find this railway idea helpful for annual camps and outings. The employés of large and small firms can also arrange excursions with the aid of the schemes.

The G.W.R. Holiday Savings Card Scheme after an experimental period in South Wales was extended in March last to certain stations. Sixpenny postage stamps can be affixed to the cards, and the idea has proved so popular that this scheme has now been extended to all G.W.R. stations.

The L.M.S., L.N.E.R. and Southern Railways' "Save to Travel" scheme is slightly different. By this scheme special stamps, value one shilling, are on sale at stations and offices, and with the first stamp purchased a contribution card to hold ten stamps is issued. When this card is full it can be exchanged at any station or office for a 10s. voucher, and if desired a further card will be issued. The 10s. voucher (which can also be purchased independently) begins to bear interest at the rate of approximately 5 per cent. per annum for each completed month calculated from the first day of the month following the date of issue. Thus a 10s. voucher in six months is worth 10s. 3d., and in a year has a value of 10s. 6d. The voucher and stamped cards can be exchanged at L.M.S., L.N.E.R. or S.R. stations and offices for all kinds of single and return tickets except season and workmen's tickets.

NEW AIR RECORD FOR U.S.

PASSENGER-MILES FLOWN IN 1935

A new world record in air passenger transport is revealed in the annual report of traffic returns just published by United Air Lines, the biggest air service in the United States. It is announced that on its coast-to-coast and other airways, United Air Lines flew 87,108,711 passenger-miles during 1935, a figure that has never been equalled by any other air line in the world.

The report also shows that the number of passengers carried by this company increased by 21 per cent.; 147,139 were carried in 1934 and 177,457 last year. A substantial increase was also gained in the amount of mail carried; a total of 5,097,037 lbs. of mail was carried in 1935, as against 3,245,742 in 1934. With the increase in its passenger and cargo business during 1935, the traffic controlled by United Air Lines represented 30 per cent of passenger-miles in the United States, 40 per cent. of all air mail, and more than half of the country's air express.

The growth of passenger, express and mail business was reflected in increased flying, as the United Air Lines' fleet of fifty twin-engined transports were flown 14,503,197 miles in scheduled operation during 1935, or approximately 1,000,000 miles more than the previous year.

The larger portion of the company's increased traffic has been on its New York-Chicago-Pacific Coast airway, with a satisfactory gain also on the Seattle-San Diego route. United Air Lines are completing this month the expenditure of $1,250,000 for improvement of its entire fleet, which, during recent months, has been speeded up by nineteen miles an hour with new power plants. Within thirty days the company will complete the sound-proofing and redecoration of the fifty airplanes, all of which now have a top speed of 202 m.p.h. and cruising speed of 189 m.p.h.

CEYLON A WIRELESS PIONEER

Ceylon had a wireless club before the British Broadcasting Corporation was formed, in December, 1932, writes a correspondent. The first broadcasting station in Ceylon was officially recognised on June 27, 1924, when the Governor of the island broadcast a message on the occasion of the meeting of the Engineering Association of the island.

A Wireless Broadcast Advisory Board was set up in November, 1932—a month before the British Broadcasting Corporation was formed. To-day Ceylon's transmitter, situated at Welikada, is housed in the same building as several commercial transmitters, and the studio consists of one room for the amplifiers and another as the studio proper.

Russell Knowles, the Detroit gangster, who was arrested in December last in connection with the kidnapping, in August, 1934, of the wealthy Canadian brewer, John Labatt, has been sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment. Mr. Labatt was seized and carried off by three armed men while motoring between London (Ontario) and Sarnia.

FAR EASTERN WAR CLOUDS

PREPARATIONS OF RUSSIA

JAPAN'S PROBABLE LINE OF ADVANCE

By Our Military Correspondent.

IN the past few weeks public attention has been focussed so much on events near at home, particularly in the Mediterranean, that very little notice has been given to the ominous war clouds which have been piling up in the Far East. To-day the tension between Russia and Japan has become so great that, in the opinion of expert observers on the spot, it is only a matter of time before hostilities begin and a vast trial of strength takes place between these two great military powers.

To understand the position properly, it is necessary to look back over the events of the last 40 years. In 1895 the great empires of Europe were in the full flush of expansion and busy seizing the territories of weaker peoples in every part of the globe, except America, where the power of the U.S.A. in enforcing the Munro doctrine forbade it. In the Far East the most active power was Russia, who had established a strong naval fortress at Vladivostock and was beginning to penetrate Manchuria and cast envious eyes upon Korea.

JAPAN ACTS

China, effete and corrupt, was in no position to resist aggression; but Japan, having recently emerged from her mediæval isolation and taken her place as a modern State, was in no mood to surrender complacently her independence to any foreign Power. She realised to the full the vital importance of Korea to her existence. The conquest of Japan would be the inevitable sequel to the occupation of Korea by a foreign Power.

Japan has never bothered about international niceties when she felt her vital interests were at stake, and she occupied Korea without more ado, although the country was a protectorate of China. This led to the Chino-Japanese war, in which the Japanese were overwhelmingly victorious on both land and sea.

Russia intervened in the peace negotiations and prevented Japan from obtaining a foothold in Manchuria. Japan at that time was in no position to face the military might of Russia, and she had perforce to stand by and watch the great Muscovite Empire establish control of Manchuria and build at Port Arthur a naval base considered to be at the time the strongest fortress in the world.

WAR INEVITABLE

From that moment war between Russia and Japan became inevitable, and for Japan it would be a struggle of life or death. The war came in 1905, and, to the general surprise, resulted in complete victory for Japan after a series of desperate and bloody battles. The loss to Japan was appalling, but she saved her life, took over the Russian naval base of Port Arthur, and established a sort of protection over Manchuria.

Three years ago, faced with the resurrection of Russia as a great military Power, and an increasing lack of amenability on the part of the local Chinese Government in Manchuria, Japan, regardless of her international obligations, carried out her now famous coup d'état, drove out the Chinese and established an autonomous Manchu State under her own control.

In extenuation of the Japanese action it must be remembered that but for the blood and treasure which she poured out in the Russo-Japanese War Manchuria would long ago have been lost to China for ever.

LONG FRONT

This addition of territory has increased the length of common frontier between the Soviet and Japan from about twenty miles to over 1,500 miles.

The strategic position now becomes intensely interesting, particularly as the internal combustion engine has reduced distances so tremendously. The Russian province of Amur, 600 miles long and 20 miles wide, lies like a wedge between the eastern frontier of Manchuria and the Pacific Ocean. Vladivostock, at its southern end, is within 500 miles of the heart of Japan—by no means an impossible distance for the aircraft of to-day.

Russia's communications, running for 1,500 miles along the frontier of Manchuria, are extremely vulnerable. A powerful army based on North Manchuria would be operating on interior lines, and would have a wide choice of the point of attack.

FORTIFICATIONS

To counter this threat, Soviet Russia has carried through gigantic works with the forced labour of vast numbers of prisoners. Along the frontier of the Amur province an unbroken chain of permanent fortifications, as elaborate as those of the French in Alsace, has been constructed.

Further north, where the great Amur River forms the frontier between Siberia and Manchuria, the Russian task has been easier, and behind the rampart of this river they have continued their fortifications almost as far as Mongolia in the west. As well as this, the stupendous task of doubling the Trans-Siberian Railway is nearly complete.

The Manchurian frontier is now so strongly defended that it is clear that the most effective line of advance for Japan is further to the west, across the rolling plains of Outer Mongolia, towards Lake Baikal. A successful blow at the Trans-Siberian Railway at this point would lead to the eventual destruction of the whole Russian position in Eastern Siberia. Mongolia is now a Soviet Republic, and predominently under Russian influence.

The Japanese are busy trying to penetrate the country, but Russia cannot possibly allow them to do so. The next Russo-Japanese war, if and when it comes, will be decided upon the plains of North Mongolia by the greatest encounter battle in history.

MR. DE VALERA'S BEREAVEMENT

CHINESE AMBASSADOR'S MESSAGE

Hundreds of messages of sympathy with President de Valera and his family continue to be received.

Among those received yesterday was one from the Chinese Ambassador in London, Que Tai-Chi, who wrote:—"I know that the consolations of your religion and the comfort of your other children will help to sustain you, though such a loss is always irreparable."

Mr. Savage, Prime Minister of New Zealand, telegraphed:—"On behalf of the New Zealand Government, I tender to you and yours deep sympathy in your bereavement."

His Excellency the Ambassador of France in Moscow, M. Alphand, formerly French Minister to the Saorstat, telegraphed his sincere condolences.

A letter was received from the Most Rev. Dr. Collier, Bishop of Ossory, offering to Mr. de Valera, Mrs. de Valera, and family the assurance of his deep regret and sympathy, and stating that he knew he spoke for the priests and people of the diocese.

A London woman, Mrs. Irene Phister, has been slightly wounded, and her husband, Warren Thornton Phister, is reported to be in a very grave condition as a result of a double shooting tragedy in a hotel at Columbia, Missouri.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TERRACE HOUSES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In making extracts from a long cross-examination it is not always easy to give the relative stress laid on various points. You quote me as saying "the semi-detached idea is to be deplored," and "we shall have to persuade people to return to the idea of living in terraces." Actually I was speaking of urban areas, and the point I made was that a town where every house was semi-detached would be unsatisfactory. I do not think that anyone will dispute this. Towns should have a nucleus and colonies of terrace houses if they are not to be hopelessly diffuse.—Yours, etc.,

FISHING LEASES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Would you be so kind, through the columns of your valuable paper, to clear up the situation as regards fishing leases in the Irish Free State?

In the past I have held fishing leases from the head landlord, in the case of a tenant of a riparian farm, and also access to the river. The points to be elucidated in the case of an Englishman wishing to take, say, a ten-year lease of a fishing in the Irish Free State are: (1) Are the fishing rights vested in an owner who has sold his land? (2) To whom do the fishing rights belong in the case of a landlord who has sold his property and reserved the sporting rights? (3) In the case of a farmer who has purchased his holding on a salmon river, and the head landlord has not reserved sporting rights, are such sporting rights vested in (a) the owner of the land or (b) the Irish Free State Government?

Irish rivers are second to none, but there appear to be so many anomalies regarding fishing rights that people on this side are very chary of investing in long-term fishing leases unless they are not only secured in their right of tenure, but also of the right of access to the water which they have hired.—Yours, etc.,

"PISCATOR."

MODERN LIFEBOATS

MR. J. R. BARNETT'S LECTURE

"Modern Lifeboats" formed the subject of a lecture delivered last night at the Royal Dublin Society's premises, Ballsbridge, Dublin, by Mr. J. R. Barnett, O.B.E., who is himself Consulting Naval Architect to the Royal Nautical Lifeboat Institution, member of the Institute of Naval Architects, and author of a book on modern lifeboats. Mr. Barnett is a senior partner in the firm of G. L. Watson and Co., and as a designer of lifeboats stands almost alone to-day: the Watson type of lifeboat is itself largely in use.

The lecture was confined mainly to illustrations of the different types of lifeboat in use, from the days of the old oar-manned boats to the latest type of twin-screw sixty-footer, with its two 80 horse-power engines, in separate watertight compartments, fitted with searchlight, line-throwing guns, and possessing a cruising speed of 9½ knots, and accommodation for 150 people.

The illustrations showed the development from the old non-righting type of boat to the self-righting boat, and from that, in 1890, to steam-driven lifeboats. The first steam-driven boat, which had been stationed at Harwich and Holyhead, was very successful, and was in service up to 1923. In 1909 they had petrol introduced as motive-power, and, with the wider use of the motor-driven boats, sails were abandoned, especially in the case of the twin-driven boats. A feature of these twin screws was the manner in which the screws were built in tunnels to safeguard them from wreckage, as well as to prevent people from being injured by them.

The deep-water modern lifeboats ranged from 41 feet to 60 feet, and were all twin-screw and flush-decked, with very little sail. They carried searchlights, life-line apparatus, and oil for casting on troubled waters. Some of them carried nets, into which men could jump from ships, but he thought these too dangerous.

He mentioned that the Rosslare lifeboat was the first to be fitted with wireless.

Mr. Barnett showed pictures of modern lifeboats putting out in face of heavy seas, and also interesting photographs of the New Brighton lifeboat rescuing a ship's crew and passengers, and observed that with all these improvements we have, in the words of the Poet Laureate, only a little better way of dealing with the sea; but we have not mastered it.

ALLOTMENTS FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

BRAY COUNCIL LOOKING FOR LAND

The Bray Urban District Council, at a special meeting held last night to discuss the question of providing allotments for the unemployed, instructed the Town Clerk to get in touch with local land owners to ascertain if land could be acquired for the purpose.

The Town Clerk pointed out that when the question was raised last year and the Council advertised requesting applications for allotments, only two or three persons replied, and only one person offered to sell.

Mr. J. Murphy, who presided, produced a list of sixty-three unemployed persons who were willing to work the allotments if provided, and the Town Clerk said that about eight acres would be required for that number.

Before the business commenced a vote of sympathy with Mr. de Valera and family was passed on the motion of Mr. E. Byrne, seconded by Mr. J. Murphy.

LIFE AND LITERATURE TO-DAY

Lecturing on "Life and Literature To-day," at University College, Dublin, last night, Lord ffrench said that the first feature apparent in life to-day was a condition of conflict and unsettlement on every side. In the midst of dissolving landscapes, which looked so permanent in the nineteenth century and up to the commencement of the Great War, the Catholic Church stood out alone, always the same, always sure of itself. The lecturer dwelt on the attitude of literature and drama to-day to fundamental truths, also their attitude towards morals and the conduct of life. He commented on the disintegration of family life in some quarters and the necessity for moral guidance in economic questions. He concluded by saying that Catholics are betraying their faith if they encouraged an atmosphere which is not moral, in drama or literature, in economics, or even in politics.

COMMISSION ON PATENTS

FURTHER SITTING IN DUBLIN

THE ALLEGATIONS OF DELAY

A SITTING of the Commission of Inquiry into Patents, Design and Trade Mark Law was held at 45 Merrion square, Dublin.

With reference to allegations of unreasonable delay in dealing with applications made at a previous sitting by Mr. F. H. Litton (Messrs. MacEntee and Litton).

Mr. E. A. Cleary, a member of the Commission, asked Mr. Litton whether any delay had taken place in connection with any of the eleven cases from him which had been dealt with since 8th July last year.

Mr. Litton replied that in regard to these eleven cases there was no undue delay, but he did allege previous delays.

TELEPHONE CONVERSATION

Mr. Cleary further asked the witness what evidence he had in support of the allegation that he had been informed by the Examiner that patents were not technically examined.

Mr. Litton read from a transcript which he said was a memorandum of a telephone conversation with the Examiner.

Mr. Cleary asked if the witness's charge of dereliction of duty by the Controller was based on conversations between the witness and a subordinate in the Patents Office and a subordinate official in Government Buildings.

Mr. Litton said he had sufficient evidence to make him believe that there was no examination.

Mr. Cleary pointed out that the witness had not handed in any letters.

The witness then handed in several letters from the Patents Office, and said that the only inference to be drawn from them was that there was no technical examination.

Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C., Chairman, presided, and the Commissioners present were:—Mr. H. M. Whitton, Mr. E. A. Cleary, barrister-at-law; Mr. E. W. Proud, Mr. P. L. McEvoy, Dr. J. J. Drumm, Professor T. J. Nolan, Mr. J. Walker, and Mr. P. J. McKenna, Secretary.

The Commission adjourned until next Friday at 3.15 p.m.

THE ORANGE PROBLEM

Owing to orange supplies being restricted this season almost exclusively to Spain, the problem those in the trade had to solve was to get the right quality. The ordinary Valencia oranges were "a back number." The public had become so familiar with choice seedless types from other orange-growing areas that they refused to buy these poorer Valencia oranges—full of seeds. It was feared that Spain could not provide the right kind, but some of the more enterprising merchants tackled this problem seriously, and the right kind was found, as our advertising columns testify. It can be said that the finer grades of the Spanish "Washington Navels" and "Seedless Denias" are equal to oranges from any part of the world. The only trouble is to get these in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements. That trouble has not been entirely overcome, but as the Spanish growers are now paying more and more attention to these varieties it is felt that this difficulty is not likely to be permanent. The latest arrival is a large shipment just in per s.s. Clonlara, one of the Limerick Steamship Company's fleet.

DUBLIN MEN'S ASSOCIATION

An enthusiastic meeting of the Dublin Men's Association was held on the 13th inst., at which 138 new members were enrolled. A further meeting will be held on the 21st inst., details of which will be published in the advertising columns of this paper on the 19th inst.

The following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That this meeting of the Dublin Men's Association calls on the city and county members of the Dail, the Dublin Trades Council, and the various trade unions to restrict the continuous influx of provincials, who are obtaining employment here to the detriment of Dublin people."

METHODIST FEMALE ORPHAN SCHOOL

Mr. T. St. J. Bagnall (Chairman) presided at the annual meeting of the subscribers and friends of the Methodist Female Orphan School, which was held last night at Harrington street, Dublin. Before the meeting began the pupils of the school gave an excellent drill display.

The Rev. W. H. Massey read the annual report, which stated that there were few types of Christian work of more importance and of more ultimate value to the community than that of making provision for children who had been bereft of one or both parents, and fitting them for the responsibilities of life. Good reports had been received of the work done by the pupils, and there had been also an excellent report from the inspector appointed by the Department of Education. They wished to express their appreciation of the work done by the Matron (Miss D. Howes) and her capable and conscientious assistant, Miss Caldwell, and also Miss Rooney. The members of the Ladies' Committee had been indefatigable in their service, and took a personal interest in the girls and in the running of the Home. Miss Pasley and her helpers in the Birthday Society had made themselves responsible for an annual Christmas and New Year party. Miss Williams conducted a drill class for the girls each week. The annual six weeks' summer holiday at Skerries was a time of pure enjoyment, and thanks were given to the Rev. W. J. Rooney and to Mrs. Rooney for their visits to the summer Home. The Governors were very grateful to all those friends who had shown their sympathy in many practical ways.

The year began with a credit balance of £97 11s. 2d., and closed with this increased to £116 6s. 4d., showing a surplus of income over expenditure of £18 15s. 2d.

In the course of his financial report, the Hon. Treasurer (Mr. E. A. Brittain) said that the increase in the estimates was due to the increased cost of coal. Mr. E. A. Brittain moved and the Rev. W. J. Rooney seconded a vote of thanks to the subscribers, collectors and carol singers. Dr. H. G. Smith was unanimously elected to the Board of Governors.

THE CENSORSHIP BOARD

PROHIBITED BOOKS

The Minister for Justice (Mr. P. J. Ruttledge) has appointed the following to be members of the Censorship of Publications Board:—The Very Rev. Patrick Canon Boylan, P.P.; Mr. William Edward Thrift, Mr. William Joseph O'Reilly, Mr. William B. Joyce, Mr. William Magennis.

Canon Boylan is appointed Chairman of the Board.

The following publications have been prohibited from sale and distribution in the Free State:—"Artifex," by Richard Aldington; "Virgin Soil Upturned," by Mikhail Sholokhov; "Camera Obscura," by Vladimir Nabokoff-Sirin; "The Royal Way," by André Malraux; "Men of Good Will—Book V., the Proud of Heart," by Jules Romains; "Stoker Bush," by James Hanley; "The Days Dividing," by Neil Bell; "The Little Wench," by Philip Lindsay; "Hotel Exit," by Eliot Crawshay-Williams; "Quagmire," by Henry K. Marks.

EDUCATION FOR COMMERCE

Lecturing last night to the members of the Insurance Institute of Ireland on "Education for Commerce—fifty years ago and to-day," Mr. G. J. T. Clampett, barrister-at-law, F.R.G.S., Principal, Rathmines Technical Institute, contrasted the methods of training for business which existed over half a century ago with those of to-day, and dealt with the specialised methods adopted and facilities afforded at the present time.

He said that the wide and all-embracing conception of education for commerce which was now generally accepted hardly existed fifty years ago, when good handwriting and a competent knowledge of arithmetic were considered the essential qualifications. In that respect the European countries were for years far ahead of Great Britain, and in Ireland there was practically no public interest in the question. To-day this country was fairly well provided for in the matter of education for commerce, while in the North the position was much the same, except that specialised day schools of commerce had not been organised in the same degree.

On the motion of Mr. Gordon Joyce, seconded by Mr. J. G. Dixon, a vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer. Mr. J. M. Peate, President, presided.

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR THE BLIND

The monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Council for the Blind of Ireland was held on February 11th at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin. There were present:—Mr. Denis Barrett, in the chair; Miss Angela Boland, Mrs. Boxwell, Mr. J. F. Boydell, Mr. D. Byrne, Miss Eacott, Dr. F. S. Lavery, Mr. MacPherson, Dr. J. S. Quin, Miss Rochfort Wade, Mr. C. Dickinson, representing the Richmond National Institution, and the secretary.

The blind in Dublin had derived untold pleasure from various entertainments to which they had recently been invited. A matinée of the film, "On Wings of Song," at which over two hundred blind had been present (by kind invitation of the Metropole Cinema) had been much appreciated. This film, featuring Miss Grace Moore, was especially suitable for a sightless audience.

It was reported that letters had been received from various parts of the country asking for advice as to how to obtain the blind welfare allowance. An invalid chair had been lent to a crippled blind man in Co. Galway. At a meeting of the ophthalmic surgeons who form the nucleus of the sub-committee for the prevention of blindness, among other proposals put forward were: (1) That an effort should be made to get an existing institution to set aside a building for the purpose of making a start in the establishment of an ophthalmic school. (2) That an endeavour should be made to get a scheme started for the inspection of orphanages and kindred institutions. (3) That a more suitable blind pension form should be drawn up, in order that it might aid in the better compiling of statistics. (4) That an inquiry should be made into the possibility of having expectant mothers treated at anti-natal clinics, in order to reduce the incidence of congenital blindness.

LOSS OF EMPLOYMENT

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Miss Annie Dooley, North Summer street, North Circular road, Dublin, claimed £252-odd compensation against the Great Southern Railways Company, which, she alleged, was due to her for loss of employment as clerk and private secretary to Mr. T. J. Furey, whose passenger road transport licences had been acquired by the defendant company under the Road Transport Act of 1933.

The plaintiff, in evidence, said that she had been in Mr. Furey's employment since the year 1923, and was receiving £3 per week, in addition to overtime and allowances for meals.

The defence was, substantially, that under the Road Transport Act the plaintiff would be entitled to compensation only if she were actually employed in the operation of vehicles.

Judge Shannon said that if the Legislature had intended that all the employés of a firm whose services had been taken over under the Act should be compensated, it would have said so in clear language. In his opinion, the only persons entitled to compensation were persons engaged as drivers, conductors, mechanics, car washers, greasers, or garage workers. He dismissed the action with costs.

Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. Healy (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) appeared for the defendant company.

THE NEW LITERATURE IN IRISH

Senator Ernest Blythe, in a lecture in Irish delivered last night before the Civil Service Gaelic Society, said that the shortage of books in the Irish language had been a great obstacle to creating the atmosphere in which the books so badly needed would be produced. On the whole he was satisfied with the present position of Gaelic literature. Still there was a big leeway to make up in the realm of imaginative writings and works of an educative nature, and technical books were few. He hoped that the activities of An Gum would be extended, and that some of the many competent translators available would be employed to translate works on every conceivable subject. It was a great misfortune for the language that students could not obtain their knowledge through the medium of Irish.

A MECHANICAL DETECTIVE

ELECTRIC "EYE" HELPS POLICE

An electric "eye" is helping American police to fight crime. The "eye" is a development of the last six months, and involves the use of the spectograph—the instrument with which astronomers recognise the atoms in stars.

Under its gaze the "finger-prints" of all the known chemical elements are seen, for each element has its own atomic "finger-print" in lines, seen in the spectograph as plainly as the whorls on a human finger.

A piece of evidence, no larger than a pin's head, can be analysed, the "eye" seeing atoms in traces so small that neither microscope nor chemistry can find them.

In one case, where it helped the police, a piece of mud was found in the car of the suspect which might have been dropped from his shoe. Under the "eye" the mud showed the same atomic iron finger-prints as the dirt on the buried evidence. It was different from all other mud in the car and from the soil of the region where the car usually travelled.

The "eye" can also protect the innocent. The police had a repainted motor licence plate, and the paint with which it had apparently been done was in the possession of the suspect. The "eye" came to the rescue. It showed that the paint on the plate was not the same as that seized. Although the colours were identical, one paint had been made with zinc and the other with lead.

THE INSURANCE BILL

Mr. Finian Lynch (U.I., Kerry) has tabled over thirty amendments to the Insurance Bill when it comes up for consideration on Committee stage. In one of these he proposes to add to the definition of insurance business the following classes: Fidelity guarantee, livestock, burglary and plate-glass business.

He also proposes that the Minister shall establish an Assurance Employés' Compensation and Pension Fund.

FREE STATE PIG INDUSTRY

The numbers of pigs bought for curing in the Free State during last week were: alive 15,235, and dead 936, the figures for the corresponding week last year being 11,967 and 648. The live pigs exported numbered 5,182 for last week and 3,094 for the corresponding week last year. The number of pigs bought for curing, with those exported, during the past six weeks reached a total of 126,572.

NEW CITY IN THE SNOWS

HOUSING THE OLYMPIC "GENERAL STAFF"

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, writes a correspondent, is no longer the "double" village which it formerly was, but has become overnight, as it were, a triple village. On the tract of open country lying between Garmisch and Partenkirchen, a little city has made its appearance—a city of barracks and the headquarters of the "Winter General Staff," as the managers of the Winter Olympics are called. It was necessary to build this accommodation if the enormous task of organisation was to be properly co-ordinated. The International Olympic Committee has its office here. The News Bureau takes care of 300 newspaper reporters and correspondents, and each Press room has its own telephone connection. Another "barracks" houses the post office, with its staff of 80 mail clerks. The German Organisation Committee also has its quarters here.

The transportation and feeding of the hundreds of thousands of visitors to the principal winter sport events during the Games has been the subject of much discussion and negotiation. In order that no one shall be permitted to go hungry, purveyors of refreshments can be found at every turn, and roast chicken and the famous Bavarian "wursts" are cooked and served hot at temporary kitchens. One of the greatest helps in feeding the crowds is the "Bavaria Auxiliary Train," composed of ten motor vans, which have been transformed into a "hotel on wheels," with complete kitchen equipment. This "train" can serve ten thousand people in a very short space of time.

The Olympic bobsleigh track at Garmisch-Partenkirchen boasts of a novel feature which is nowhere else to be found. It consists of a footpath along the entire length of the track, which enables spectators at the races to "stretch their legs" if they so desire. Between the Kreuzeck and Waxenstein curves is a revolving turnbridge, by which one can cross the track and continue along a footpath on the opposite side.

The ice in the skating stadium is so frozen, that there is an almost imperceptible sloping off of the surface along both sides of the rink. In case of a thaw, this arrangement allows the melted ice on the surface to flow off and make room for new freshly frozen ice.

Slaughter House Levy.—At Gowran District Court, a decree for £18 10s. was given against Thomas Brennan, victualler, Paulstown, Co. Kilkenny, being the total amount of levy payable by him under the Cattle and Sheep Act in respect of a registered slaughter-house, of which he is the proprietor.

"MUSICAL BOX" 'PHONE

DIALLING NUMBERS BY CLOCKWORK

An automatic 'phone "dial," which supersedes the ordinary dial and enables a subscriber to obtain a number merely by depressing a lever, was shown in London recently. It can be hired from the Post Office and fitted to any telephone.

The device is intended to speed up the process of getting a number, and is designed for both private and business use. An ingenious clockwork mechanism, made on the lines of a musical box, carries out automatically all the operations of "dialling."

The subscriber selects 25 or 50 numbers with which he is usually in touch by telephone. These numbers are conveyed to the "autodial" by notches on a disc inside the machine, like the milling on a coin. The numbers, or subscribers' names, are printed on a small list fitted to the top of the "autodial."

To telephone, the subscriber simply moves a pointer to the name of the person required and presses a lever. In a few seconds he is connected.

The device is intended chiefly for private subscribers who for some reason do not like the ordinary "dial," and for telephone operators in business firms. By using the "autodial" an operator can let the machine get a number while she is dealing with other calls. The cost of hiring the autodial is six shillings a quarter for the 25-number model, and eight shillings a quarter for the 50-number model.

REBUILDING TURIN

Over £5,000,000 will be spent in re-building the central part of Turin, Italy's old capital. For over 50 years—since the capital was transferred to Rome—Turin town planning has been neglected, but the new works will aim to make of it one of the most up-to-date towns in the world.

Noiseless streets—paved with special compressed straw—will be laid, while fast and noiseless motor 'buses will replace the slow and noisy trams running at present. Street lighting will be effected through a new system of floodlights encased in specially built beacons along the pavements. Traffic directions will be automatic and an automatic system of signals will give the alarm to the police or the fire station in case of danger.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The O'Conors

I hear that Miss Mary O'Conor has just completed a history of her family which will shortly be published. In point of fact, Miss O'Conor's work will merely be a supplementary addition to her grandfather's history, which was written by the Right Hon. Charles Owen O'Conor, The O'Conor Don, some years ago.

I should state at the outset that Miss O'Conor is the daughter of Mr. Charles O'Conor, of Lucan House, and niece of The O'Conor Don, the present head of the princely family of Gaelic tradition. The passing of King George brought to light the fact that the House of Windsor can trace back an Irish ancestry to Roderic and Turlough O'Conor, the last High Kings of Ireland, from whom The O'Conor Don and his family descend. I believe the old Standard of Ireland which was carried (in accordance with an ancient right) by the late Right Hon. Denis O'Conor, O'Conor Don, P.C., H.M.L., at the Coronation of George V., is preserved at Clonalis, the family seat in County Roscommon, where also can be seen the harp of Carolan, the last of the Irish bards. The old Irish Standard is, of course, the blue with the gold harp, and not so long ago there was a feeling in Ireland that the country would substitute the old flag of ancient Ireland for the green, white and yellow of Republican aspirations.

A Proud Claim

In dealing with the O'Conors it is well to remember the words of O'Donovan, the noted historian, who said that no family in Ireland can lay claim to greater antiquity. No family in Europe, even royal or noble, can trace its descent through so many generations of legitimate ancestors. For the O'Conors can prove their descent from the Milesians, through Heremon. From A.D. 75 down the centuries there was Feredach, Fiacha Finola, Con of the Hundred Battles, and Eochy Moymedan, to name a few of the princely forbears. Now, as I cannot wrestle with all these early Gaelic warriors here, I shall have to leave the task to their descendant, the pretty young historian, who is better able to relate the history of her house than anyone else. Suffice it to say that the link between the O'Conor family and that of the Kings of England dates back to the time of Turlough in the twelfth century, while there is a second link traceable to Roderic, his son.

I suppose most people know all about Conor Crovederg, of the wine-red hand, to whose munificence Ireland owes that ancient gem of twelfth century origin—Ballintubber Abbey, in Co. Mayo. As for Turlough himself, he has been described as the Augustus of Western Europe in his period. To him Ireland owes her first Castle of Hones, and the first bridges which spanned her rivers. The town of Tuam owes its ancient Cathedral, as well as a priory dedicated to St. John the Baptist, founded A.D. 1140. Under his patronage, too, Cong Abbey was rebuilt, while the National Museum now contains a memorial to him in the Cross of Cong, which is imperishable.

Connaught's Last King

Tadhg O'Conor, the last King of Connaught, is buried in Roscommon Abbey, and I believe there still exists a treaty at Windsor signed by Henry II. and the Ambassadors of Roderic, the last Ard-Ri, that the O'Conors were to be Kings of Connaught for all time. Unfortunately, successive usurpations and other adversities contrived to eclipse the power of this notable family. But, if ever Ireland becomes a monarchial country, the O'Conor Don is the rightful claimant to her crown. It would seem that the title Don came into use for the head of the family in 1385. According to noted authorities, "Don" signifies "Lord or Chief King." Mr. Charles O'Conor is his brother's heir, but his son, who is next in succession, has gone to be a Jesuit. However, there are two other O'Conors to carry on the line, sons of another brother of the O'Conor Don. The family motto is thus appropriate: "O Dhia gach cu cabrach" ("From God comes every helping hero").

Toreadors at Ranelagh

A little bull-fighting at Ranelagh a few days ago caused, I heard, considerable unreported excitement to a large crowd for over an hour. It appears that the bull, young, of magnificent dimensions, and not the most amiable of its breed, was being led along Ranelagh road to the Dublin Cattle Market. At the junction of Chelmsford road and Ranelagh road it bellowed into open revolt, and, with amazing speed for its ponderous bulk, dashed into the front garden of a house. All the efforts of an anxious owner and the members of the household, with sundry passers-by, failed to persuade Taurus to rise and go quietly. The owner, no doubt unused to the metropolitan atmosphere as much as the bull, coaxed urgently, threatened . . . all unavailingly. Then the Dublin crowd showed a typical flair for obtaining sport in any circumstances. In the best style of the bull-ring, a number of men, with the toreadors' irritating taunts and side-steps, advances and retreats, goaded the bull to rise from the now well-forced bulbs. Out came the bull from the garden; and the toreador tactics stopped hastily. The stubborn animal promptly lay down across the tram-lines. This was an even graver situation; the highway was now involved. Was it to be police, soldiers, tanks or aeroplanes? No, sir, the old Spanish customs were best. Young toreadors advanced again, sneered at the bull, made passes and thrusts at him—all, of course, without injuring him—and the bull rose to the bait. The tram driver and conductor, now contemplating the work from a few yards distance, smiled approval. And this little bull, well cowed, went quietly to market.

Dublin Gangs

The recent riot at Donnybrook between the "Animal" and "Tiger" "gangs," while quite in keeping with the ancient traditions of the place, marks a recrudescence of certain characteristics that, as short as seventy years ago, rendered it unsafe for the unarmed and unwary to wander round the city after nightfall. The "Green," ill-lit and surrounded by dark alleys and lanes, was haunted by particularly objectionable gangs of thieves, which would lie in wait for the passer-by. In front of these lanes they spread a large noose, and when the unsuspecting victim placed his foot within he would be instantly jerked off his feet and dragged, stunned and bleeding, into the shadows to be robbed. Indeed, it was usually better for him to be unconscious, else he was battered into insensibility with bludgeons. Earlier still, there were the "Pinking Dandies"—youths, usually of the better classes, who would carry their swords with the points protruding from the scabbard and inflict painful wounds in the flesh of such as looked unable to defend themselves. Efficient police and detectives have done away with all that long since, and the prompt suppression of the gangs the other day is a guarantee of the safety of Dublin after dark

Amateur Inventors

Persons who have a talent for "inventing things" sometimes are just a little too clever. Their ideas are not always ideal, yet they are very unwilling to listen to adverse criticism, though, I am sure, they secretly are often disappointed with the results of their ingenuity. Amateur inventors are, I think, usually inordinately proud of their productions, probably because these offsprings of their fertile imaginations are wrought with their own hands, and are, therefore, expressions of the creative instinct latent in everyone. No parent likes a suggestion that his child may not be quite up to the standard of other children. An invention may be crude, clumsy or cumbersome, but so long as it is home-made, it acquires a value often out of all proportion to its utility. I think, also, that many of these inventive people, through imperfect observation, often make appliances that already may be bought at less cost than that of the home-made article. If some of these handy-men were to occupy on searching shops but half of the time they use "thinking out" their inventions, it is very likely that attics, cellars and box-rooms would not become the graveyards of good ideas gone wrong, and, furthermore, these folk would be able to deal a pack of cards without having to apologise for the sticking-plaster.

Cornered

The other day I came across a man who, while he is continually devising useful home-made appliances that "work," is quite ready to take a joke against himself if his gadget does not come up to expectations. This smart fellow wanted a new garden roller, so he set about making one himself, because, he declared, he could do the job efficiently at a cost only a fraction of that of a roller he might buy. He had acquired a length of 14-inch sewer pipe, off one end of which he carefully clipped the flange. He then up-ended the pipe on a large piece of cardboard, and, after fixing a metal tube to take the axle, filled the cylinder with concrete and old lead. In due course the concrete set, and the "roller" was tipped over and the handle fitted. My friend told me that it was only then that the snag appeared. He and his wife together could hardly move the roller, even on the garden paths, and when they eventually got it on the lawn its weight was so great that it cut the sod as though a farm cart had been driven across the grass. What had happened, of course, was that the old lead placed inside the cylinder must have weighed several hundredweight in bulk, though at the time it was put in each piece did not seem very heavy. Pointing to a rockery in the corner of the garden, my friend said: "Do you see the pedestal on which that bird-bath is resting? Well, that's known in our family as 'The Tomb of Genius,' and I'll leave you to guess what's buried there."

QUIDNUNC.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

RATHGAR ANNUAL MEETING

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of Rathgar Presbyterian Church. The Very Rev. Dr. Macaulay presided.

The session includes two members who were ordained over fifty years ago; one, Mr. J. T. Mitchell, who was present, was given special welcome, and greetings were sent to the other, Mr. T. J. Aimers, in response to a letter conveying his good wishes.

The session report was presented by Mr. W. Kyle, Clerk of Session, supported by Professor Taylor, M.A. The latter spoke of the need for having the young people instructed in the principles and in the stirring history of the Presbyterian Church in a prolonged fight for civil and religious freedom.

This report, and those of the numerous congregational organisations, testified to successful endeavour in all departments, and to the encouragement given by the large numbers attending the Sunday morning and the quarterly Communion Services. Disappointment, however, was expressed that the attendance at the mid-week Service had not increased and that the Mission House Band of Hope was still without a secretary.

Dr. McCullough, the new Superintendent of the Sunday School, was given a cordial welcome, and very warm thanks were accorded to his predecessor, Mr. R. J. Mitchell, and to Mr. F. T. Eason both of whom retired recently after very long service in the school.

The report of the Congregational Committee and the statement of accounts were submiitted by Mr. E. Bain, secretary, and Mr. N. D. Davidson, treasurer, respectively and were adopted on the motion of Mr. W. M. Calwell, second by Mr. G. F. Mitchell. Warm appreciation was expressed of the efficient way in which the treasurer attends to the onerous duties that, week by week, devolve upon him.

The total amount raised in the year—£3,140—showed an increase, and the debit balance had been reduced by £280; but the allocations to missions and philanthropic objects, which totalled £1,474—including £665 to Assembly's missions, £440 to Sustentation and Augmentation Funds, and £180 to hospitals—showed a slight decrease.

The congregational choir, which had been trained, and was accompanied, by Mr. and Mrs. Yoakley, rendered three anthems.

DRAMA LEAGUE "AT HOME"

On Wednesday the members of the Drama League held their first "At Home" of the season at the residence of Lady Hanson, who had kindly lent her house for the occasion. There was an interested audience for the two amusing sketches produced by Miss Dorothy Day. "The Elopement" was a radio play, excellently performed, with fine effects by Mr. Jeffares. The second sketch, "Yours to Hand," was a clever modern satire by Ronald Jeans, written—even the love letters and the proposal—in a most efficient business style, which caused much laughter. In the interval Mr. Jeffares Mr. Malcolm Frazer and Miss Watkinson contributed songs. Mr. Arthur Duff accompanying them. By special request Lady Hanson sang one of her "come-all-ye's," an old street ballad of the Crimean days, "The Tears Rolled Down," which was given in true Dublin character, and won rounds of applause.

The artists who gave their assistance were: Miss Madeleine Ross, Miss Eva Panton Watkinson, Miss Rouda Barling, Messrs. Austin Meldon, Kenneth Barton, Cecil Jeffares, Richard and Anthony Hanson.

The "At Home" was most enjoyable. Some very pretty dresses were seen when the guests assembled in the diningroom for refreshments. Lady Hanson wore a graceful gown of black chiffon and beige silk lace, with a long necklet of black beads.

Those present included:—Sir Philip Hanson, Mrs. R. Y. Tyrrell, Lord and Lady Longford, the German Minister and Frau von Kuhlmann, Mr. Dermod O'Brien, Miss Sara Purser, Mrs. John Purser, Mrs. Bertie Tyrrell and Miss Tyrrell, Mr. Jack B. Yeats, Mrs. W. R. Nolan, Mrs. Lennox Robinson, Mrs. Verschoyle, Dr. George Furlong, District Justice Reddin and Mrs Reddin, Mrs. T. Reddin, Mr. and Mrs. Hill Tulloch, Miss Mainie Jellett, Miss Macnie, Miss Wilson (Secretary), Mrs. P. J. Rooney, Miss Digby, Mrs. Augustine Henry, Miss G. O'Brien, Mrs. Fleming, Miss Moffat Wilson, Miss Drumgoole, Mr Pilkington, Miss Shiela Gwynn, Mr. and Mrs. Pielou, Miss Leslie Pielou, Miss Davidson, Mrs. Frank Craig, Miss Ann Yeats, Mr. and Mrs. Stanford, Mrs. Manning, Miss Crofton, the Misses Young, and the Misses McCormack.

PASSENGER IN A GLIDER

A FLIGHT OVER THE WASSERKUPPE

THE GREATEST THRILL OF THE AIR

From a Correspondent.

Our "white bird" lay among many others on the undulating crest of the mountain, and I had just succeeded in getting myself packed in alongside the pilot, in the narrow confines of the little ship's body, where I felt as tightly squeezed as a chrysalis in a cocoon. We started with fourteen "man-power." At the first command, these fourteen sturdy fellows began to pull on two pairs of elastic rubber hawsers, to one end of which our glider was made fast. Simultaneously, four men held hold of the tail of the sailing bird, digging their heels firmly into the ground, while at the second command the fourteen began to run forward, stretching the rubber hawsers to their utmost capacity.

The magic words, "Let go!" for which I had been waiting with every nerve on edge, sounded in my ears like a deafening gong, and the tension was broken. Taking a hasty look over the gunwale, I could see how the rubber hawsers cast loose from their fastenings and fell to the ground with a whistling noise, and how the force of the rebound sent a couple of our starting crew rolling down the hillside. At the same instant, our little machine made a slight dip—a movement that I had often before noticed from the ground—as if to bid the earth a joyful farewell, and we were soaring out over the deep valley, away from the crest of the mountain-top. It was as if we were flying on a living arrow, shot from a taut-drawn bow into endless space!

Passing the Pferdekopf, we sailed over the cuplike valley, in which nestles the little town of Gersfeld, and then suddenly my trusted companion puts our ship straight into the wind. I could feel distinctly the thin wires which run along the gunwales to the vertical and horizontal rudders, rubbing against my overcoat, and I exhaled in my effort to make myself as small as possible, so as not to interfere with the steering gear I felt as if I might be too corpulent to be aboard as a passenger. Now we are well tilted over for a curve, and anyone accustomed to motor-plane flying will involuntarily become conscious of a feeling of slipping when a glider makes a curve, due to the absence of the motor-plane's inherent traction power.

Now we have completed the turn and are running into the wind, and our 16-metre wings, fine as spider's web, creak and groan under the force of the breeze. And now comes the most wonderful of all! Whereas we had been flying horizontally along the west slope of the mountain, we are now ascending—sometimes slowly and directly upward, as in an elevator, and then faster and faster, as if being carried up some invisible stairway. No propelling power can be seen or heard, no deafening motor sounds in my ears; I am simply under the spell of this fairyland. When the wind begins to sing through the wings, it is as if a harp was being played, and when a strong gust makes the wiring resound with a groaning and sighing, it might be someone playing on the spinet.

RETURN TO ROMANCE

I can now understand why it is that there are so many enthusiastic young Germans willing to save and scrape for months, and to make almost any sacrifice, just in order to be able to fly over the Hohe Rhoen without a motor. For, in a sense, it is a return to the age of romance, in sharp contrast to this age of 100 h.p. motors, by which the modern luxurious airplanes are driven through the skies. We have now reached such a height that we have the society of those masters of the sky, which I had seen soaring in great circles above us before we made our start.

I now get a wide view to the westward, and for the first time get a glimpse of the Luetter valley. And now comes, perhaps, the most thrilling moment of my day's flight. We are flying free over the immense meadow lying between the Wasserkuppe and the Pferdekopf. At least a dozen big gliders are sailing through the air over the meadow, and scores of little practice craft are to be seen like white flowers against the green background of the mountainside. As we pass the nearest of the gliders greetings are exchanged, and in another minute or two we are flying over the starting field again.

Next we cross over the top of the Hohe Rhoen, and just the other side of Abtsroda we experience something most delightful. We are literally "riding" on the top of a little cloud, which has come galloping toward us from the mountain slope. Together, we cast a fantastic shadow on the valley below, and then suddenly the cloud throws its rider off, as the wind changes, and is gone. Shortly after this, when about over the springs which are the source of the Fulda river, we lose our bearing wind and begin to descend rapidly. The pilot calls to me that he wants to land, and we steer our course to the start. Not far above the ground, Schleicher "picks up" his glider again and makes a landing on the meadow as smooth as a butterfly lighting on a flower.

The experience of this marvellous flight left me as one in a trance. I have often been asked what I considered to be my most thrilling experience. Up to now, I have always answered: "To be in a 'plane that makes a 1,000-metre dive with the motor running, and when one can hardly breathe, going at a speed of 400 kilometres and the air feeling like molten lead on one's face." But from now on, I am going to say: "A flight over the Rhoen in a glider."

The present international gliding records are:—Distance—504.2 kilometres, made by the German, Oeltzschner, from the Wasserkuppe to Brunn, July 29, 1935. Sustained flight with return to start—36 hours 35 mins., made by the German, Schmidt, at Korschenruh in East Prussia, August 3 and 4, 1933. Altitude—4,325 metres, made by the German, Heini Dittmar, in Brazil, February 17, 1934.

VARIETY, devised, written and presented by Lionel Cranfield, occupies a substantial portion of to-night's programme from Radio Athlone. In a list of fourteen items the Metro Gnomes are to be heard, in addition to Lal and Maisie Cranfield, Gerda Sackville and Paul Stanley.

At 7.15 listeners will hear Mr. Geoffrey Gilbert, who, though only twenty-one years of age, is the chief flautist of the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

Starting a new series, the Station Orchestra (conducted by Dr. O'Brien) will play selections from Gilbert and Sullivan's Operas at 8; while at 10.50 the Ceilidhe of the Dominican Past Pupils' Union will be relayed from the Engineers' Hall, Dublin, the Station remaining open till 11.45 for this purpose.

The Ceilidhe Band competition, with fifteen entrants, opens this evening at 6. A prize of £10 is the reward for the best band that has not broadcast hitherto. The competition will be spread over the next ten days.

An Inter-University debate arranged for to-night will take place in the Studio. The subject, "Should Youth be at the Helm?" will be discussed between Asher Sheimfield (University College, South Wales, Cardiff) and Newton Bates (Birmingham University), representing the International Union of Students, on the one side, against Seamus O'Connell (University College, Dublin) and R. J. McCrudden (Queen's University, Belfast), representing the Irish Students' Association, on the other (Radio Athlone, 7.30).

The Popular Saturday Concert originates from Birmingham for relay from the Central Hall. The artistes taking part are Ellen Meredith (soprano), Alec Willington (tenor), Roy Henderson (baritone), and Edgar Millward (entertainer).

Will Fyffe, the Scottish comedian, stars in the B.B.C. Music Hall bill to-night, which also includes a comedienne and two coloured American comedians. The "February Cocktail" will be shaken or otherwise presented by Martyn Webster at 6.30 in the Midland programme. Another "Henry Hall's Hour" is arranged for to-night for broadcasting from all B.B.C. Stations from 11 till 12.

A sports item of international interest, on all Regionals except North, is that of a relay from Garmish-Partenkirchen, when a running commentary on the last period of one of the semi-finals of the ice-hockey, by R. T. Bowman, will be heard. This match forms part of the Winter Olympic Games, now in progress in Germany. The relay runs from 9.15 to 9.45.

Planquette, the French composer, encouraged by the popularity accorded to his songs written for the Cafés-concerts, rose to operettas, and from a list of some eighteen which he composed, one of the earliest, "Les Cloches de Corneville," is, perhaps, the best known. A favourite among amateur companies, the music is tuneful, and, therefore, popular. It will be broadcast from Hilversum to-night.

THE Lener String Quartet, acknowledged as a perfect combination, are responsible for this week's Sunday Concert of chamber music. They will play Schubert's Quartet in A minor, Op. 29, and Kodaly's Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 2.

Joseph Lewis will conduct a programme of music drawn from Rutland Boughton's "Bethlehem," and Berlioz's "Childhood of Christ," which he has arranged to tell "The Eternal Story of the Nativity," the title of the programme. The soloists are Isobel Baillie, Eric Greene, Stanley Riley and Samuel Dyson. They will be supported by the B.B.C. Chorus and Orchestra (Regional, 6.45).

This week's Sunday Orchestral Concert will be given under the guidance of the distinguished Hungarian conductor and composer, Ernst von Dohnanyi.

Lord Dunsany's play, "Three Moods of Fame," was specially written for broadcasting. Many listeners may remember it and will agree that it is worthy of repetition. Fame in this case concerns three people. To the first it comes too late: the second it passes by; while to the third its attentions prove so demonstrative as to cause embarrassment. In the series of Sunday broadcasts by Midland Repertory Companies, "Three Moods of Fame" will be played by the Oxford Repertory Company.

Among very likeable items coming from further afield, Kalundborg will broadcast a performance of the Schubert-Berté operetta, "Lilac Time," commencing at 7.

WHEN THE QUEEN MARY LEAVES THE CLYDE

Arrangements have been completed for the world-wide broadcast to be given of the departure of the Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary from her fitting-out basin in Messrs. John Brown's yard, Clydebank, on March 24th or 25th.

The event will probably be described by Mr. George Blake, who gave the description of the launch of the liner in September, 1934. Mr. Blake is the author of a novel with the Clydebank shipyard worker as its hero. It is expected that a quarter of a million people will witness the departure of the liner. Millions more throughout the world will be able through the broadcast to follow the movements of the ship from the time she leaves the fitting-out basin until she arrives at the tail of the bank.

The Queen Mary will probably leave the fitting-out basin about 11.30 a.m. The task of manœuvring her down-stream is expected to take at least four and a half hours.

Mr. John Watt will describe the Queen Mary's maiden trip across the Atlantic.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

The British Theatre Through Italian Eyes

Another Restoration Period

English Drama: The Last Great Phase. By Camillo Pellizzi. London: Macmillan. 7/6 net.

THIS book is a translation of "Il Teatro Inglese," by Dr. Camillo Pellizzi, who occupies the Chair of Italian in London University. "The original and interesting thing which Dr. Pellizzi gives us," says Mr. Orlo Williams in his foreword, "is a comprehensive and outside point of view. It is the point of view of a cultivated Italian, brought up, naturally, in the Latin and Catholic traditions, who has lived many years in England in close association with English life and institutions." There have been many studies of the modern English drama in recent years, so that "the original and interesting thing" about Dr. Pellizzi's work is not so much that it "is a comprehensive and outside point of view" as that it is the viewpoint of one "in the Latin and Catholic traditions." Germans, French, Scandinavians and Americans have studied the English drama with sympathy and interest; but in all cases the fundamental assumptions of English social life have been tacitly accepted. This is really the first study of contemporary English drama from the Catholic angle.

The English Soul

Says Dr. Pellizzi:—

> "I have conscientiously tried to write a true book rather than a good one. It is really a novel, in which the central character, so to speak, is the English soul. As this soul was born a long time before my story began, I tried, perhaps not very successfully, to give a brief summary of some of its former characteristics, and to define its constant interior duality of motives, divisible into so many antinomies, such as classicism and romanticism, Latinity and Germanism, Catholicism and Protestantism, practicalness and sentimentalism, empiric rationalism and imaginative seeking after possible alternatives. This interior conflict constitutes a dramatic element; and I have insisted on the fact that this drama inherent in the English soul does not find an outlet or a solution in contemplative rationalism; it never reaches a metaphysic of its own."

To Dr. Pellizzi this "last phase" of the English drama resembles the Elizabethan, and he suggests that it has now come to another Restoration period. He finds the dramatic content in the Victorian phase of the drama in the conflict of the victorious middle-classes with its own convictions.

> "After having reached the height of their power, they began to acquire a sense of their limits; they noticed in themselves the presence of an offended, adverse, and diverse God. They asked themselves questions which they could not answer without denying their criteria, their principles, and their fortunes. They reached, in fact, the point at which the daemon of a civilisation is naturally dramatic; and their drama showed itself in the novel and on the stage."

"Aggressive and Militant"

Ibsen was the prophet who released this social remorse, and he was very closely followed by his disciple, Bernard Shaw. Then there came the "aggressive and militant" drama of Hankin and Chapin, Granville Barker and John Galsworthy, with Houghton and Masefield and Monkhouse and Brighouse in the repertory train. Distraction from the ugly—appealing to the "eternal child" in the English nature—came with Barrie, Yeats, Dunsany, Drinkwater, Flecker and many others. And then came the War, which revolutionised the social life of England, with Somerset Maugham and Lonsdale and the trivialities of Noel Coward. The great days had passed, and it was time for a new era to begin. But why has Dr. Pellizzi spoken of "the last phase?" If the greatness has passed, the passing is probably temporary, just as the drama in England looked like dead about a century ago until it was revived by the coming of Robertson, Pinero and, finally, Ibsen.

The Irish Movement

The volume, as a whole, will be found unusually interesting and stimulating. The novelty of its viewpoint is attractive, and that attractiveness is increased by the penetrative analysis of the individual dramatists. The inclusion of Yeats among the English, rather than the Irish, dramatists on the ground that in him "the dreamy imagination of the ancient Celt is joined to an optimistic impulse to action, which is essentially Anglo-Saxon," will be very disconcerting to Irish readers. This notion that the Celt is a dreamy, and pessimistically inactive, fellow is the kind of nonsense which was bound to thrive in that now dispelled "Celtic Twilight."

It is, unfortunately, not possible to agree with Mr. Orlo Williams when he says that the "chapter on the Irish theatre is admirable." It is not true that the Irish drama was "nothing but an episode in that general phenomenon which at the end of the Great War developed itself even beyond the limits of commonsense—namely, the establishment and affirmation of small nationalities, and the interest in folk-lore, and the stirring of local intellectual activity which were implicated in it." Something more was needed, some definite interest in the theatre and the drama, to keep a national theatre alive during the thirty most disturbing years in modern history. Dr. Pellizzi's study of the dramatists of the Irish theatre is, on the whole, adequate and informative; and he has some excellent things to say about the "farces" of Lady Gregory, the "Protestantism" of Lennox Robinson, and the "Catholicism" of T. C. Murray. Of Sean O'Casey, he says that he shows "a lack of culture which can restrain, and at the same time enrich, his temperament."

Corrigenda

In some future edition Dr. Pellizzi should rectify the statements made on page 206 that the Abbey Theatre is "controlled" by the Free State Government, and that "Yeats retired some time ago" from the directorate. In the section dealing with the American drama, which has been here annexed to that of England, he might also rectify the statement about the plays of Philip "Barlow." The names of all the plays mentioned are usually credited to one Philip Barry, who is believed in America to be among its greatest dramatists.

Tradition and Life

Two Anthologies of Modern Verse

The Year's Poetry. Compiled by Gerald Gould. Denys Kilham Roberts and John Lehmann. London: The Bodley Head. 6/- net.

IN reviewing a book of poems one can say of a poet, "he writes well," "he writes badly," "he has a gift of imagery," or something like that—at least something positive. In the case of anthologies there is such a variety of writers that any kind of criticism, except of the compiler's personal taste, is almost impossible.

Of these two anthologies, the taste of Mr. Thomas Moult seems to be for the highly traditional form of versification which intends to express "the beautiful, the good, the true," while Mr. Gould and his friends give us the more vital poetry of to-day. The distinction is best proved by the exclusion of the names of Yeats, Spender, MacNeice and Auden from the Moult collection and their inclusion in "The Year's Poetry." This last year has been the happiest for poetry since the War; for the post-War generation has begun to come into his own. The War generation of poets being almost completely wiped out, with the exception of a few like Eliot, Pound, Cummings and Sassoon, there have been no new poets to bring to poetry the vitality of modern thought. Now on all sides poets are arising, and in the next few years we should have the renaissance which the drivellings of the popular poets has made so necessary.

"The Boyne Walk"

In Mr. Gould's collection we have examples of the work of nearly everybody worth reading, and, in addition, Mr. Higgins's "Boyne Walk," which was first published in this newspaper, and seems to this reviewer the most virile poem which Mr. Higgins has yet given us. There is also a curious poem by W. H. Auden. Here are three lines of it:

And these shops to be turned to tulips in a garden bed,
And me with my stick to thrash each merchant dead
As he pokes from a flower his bald and wicked head

—which make one wonder if in the near future the fashionable English poet will write in the vernacular of Connemara.

Mr. Moult's collection, as representative of tradition, and Mr. Gould's, as representative of life, are both worthy of being purchased and read.

A Princess Explains

Ethiopian Slavery Described

Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia. By the Princess Asfa Yilma. London: Sampson Low. 15s. net.

GRAND-DAUGHTER of an English officer and an Abyssinian princess, whom he married when he served the Emperor Theodore, the Princess Asfa Yilma is qualified to explain Ethiopia by her relationship to both Africa and Europe. Her account of Haile Selassie, her distinguished kinsman, has a natural note of pride, tinged with hero-worship, and it must be feared that her work is not of a critical order. As a contribution to knowledge of Ethiopia to-day this richly-illustrated volume is at least welcome and agreeable.

The Princess's chapter on slavery is a doubtful gift to the Ethiopian cause. "The story is often told," she writes, "of slaves being bred, as sheep and cattle are bred, for the production of certain qualities. This always seems at first sight particularly shocking to the sensitive European mind, but in an age which freely debates the question of eugenics it is, surely, illogical for us to shrink from the practical application of scientific theory." However, "of late the slave farm has become a rarity." The Emperor is doing his best to extinguish the evil, and "is tackling a problem beside which the social difficulties of Roosevelt or Mr. Baldwin dwindle to negligible proportions; they are striving to cure unemployment, but the depression is not yet a tradition reaching back for five thousand years."

THE EVOLUTION OF THE CRIME STORY

A NEW LITERARY GENRE

SATIRE AND ITS VEHICLE

FOR some time past I have been studying with growing interest the evolution of the crime story, which seems to me, except in the hands of a few masters, to be changing its character fundamentally. Until quite a short time ago it was the ambition of every writer of crime fiction to stage the most ingenious murder possible within the first twenty pages, and to elucidate it with equal ingenuity for the remaining two hundred and fifty. The setting of his novel did not matter very much; what did matter was that the processes of deduction by which his sleuth arrived at the eventual solution should be fool-proof in logic and reasonably clear to a reader of average intelligence.

Nowadays one may notice a tendency to reduce the importance of the crime and pursuit, and to let them serve merely as an excuse for the setting. Take the case of Miss Dorothy Sayers's delightful "Gaudy Night." Clearly, what Miss Sayers wanted to write was a novel concerning women's life in Oxford, and, particularly, to paint the picture of a common-room. But Miss Sayers is famous as a writer of crime fiction, and very few writers can dare to change their genre; for the public is disinclined to recognise versatility, and refuses to believe that anybody who can write a crime story of the first class can write any other kind of story. So Miss Sayers wrote her novel about Oxford, and, to satisfy the public, she made a crime story out of it—but a crime story in which the criminal element was reduced to the smallest possible dimensions. Indeed, it was with unusual and commendable fairness that the publishers described "Gaudy Night" as a novel "not without crime."

"The Fortescue Candle"

I have just been reading two other crime stories, in which the same tendency manifests itself, though the criminal element in either is substantially larger than in "Gaudy Night," and remains an integral part of the book. One is Mr. Brian Flynn's "The Fortescue Candle" (Long, 7s. 6d. net), the other Mr. F. J. Whalley's "Reduction of Staff" (Skeffington, 7s. 6d. net). The theme of Mr. Flynn's novel (which, by the way, reintroduces the capable, but ill-mannered, Anthony Bathurst) is the murder of the Home Secretary, and the detection of his murderer. Now, if Mr. Flynn were not an established writer, presumably living by his pen, and therefore expected to turn out two novels per annum, I should suspect that he had written "The Fortescue Candle" for the prime purpose of telling the world what he thinks of a certain well-known and objectionable Cabinet Minister. Perhaps these words will come to the eye of Mr. Flynn, and he will let me know if I have guessed right. If so, I share his feelings.

"Reduction of Staff"

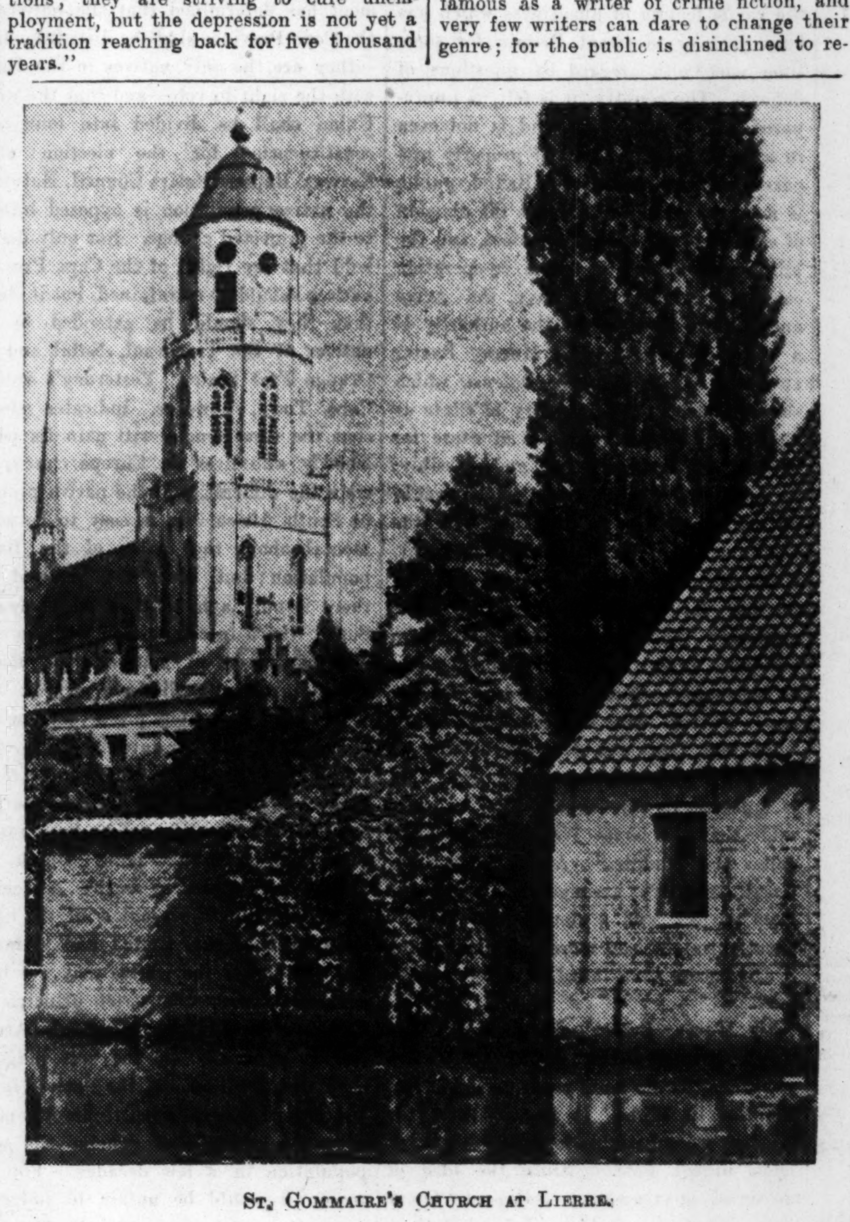
My point, however, emerges more clearly from Mr. Whalley's book. This is an excellent crime story, with a carefully worked crime theme; and, if I for one guessed the murderer at an early stage, that does not depreciate from its excellence. What interests me more than the crime itself, however, is the admirable picture of a smallish school, and especially of its masters, bearable and unbearable. Anybody who, like nearly everybody, has been a school-master will recognise the fidelity of Mr. Whalley's picture, and his fingers will itch for a pen in order to set down his impressions and recollections, pleasant and unpleasant, of his own school-mastering days. And may Heaven help some people if ever the itch becomes overpowering and general.

Hymn of Hate

It begins to look to me, indeed, as if, just as the Romans invented satire to fulfil a necessary purpose, so this modern age has invented the crime story not for its own sake, but to be a vehicle for all manner of purposes. If the writer of ten years hence wishes to express his derision of, say, the Stock Exchange, he will not write a direct onslaught upon the Stock Exchange. He will write instead a crime story in which, we may presume, a member of the Stock Exchange is found murdered, and the process of detection will bring to light all manner of unsavoury details concerning the system. If he wants a crack at the Church, he will see that a bishop is duly murdered. If he has been fired from a newspaper office or the Ministry for Lands, he will vent his loathing of it under the guise of a crime story. Conversely, if he seeks to extol the peace of an old English country-side, he will introduce a corpse and carry on.

At present the crime story is still a department of fiction. In a few years, I believe, it will have become a literary medium on its own, and a dominant medium at that. The process will be worth watching.

M.C.



St. Gommaire's Church at Lierre.

A Scottish Gael

Sir Donald Macalister of Tarbert. By his Wife. With Chapters by Sir Robert Rait and Sir Norman Walker. London: Macmillan. 12/6 net.

PRINCIPAL and Vice-Chancellor of the University of Glasgow, the subject of this well-written biography was an academic figure of note, and he was more. He was a Scottish patriot of the old, solid type. He was a stalwart of An Comunn Gaidhealach, a body corresponding to the Irish Gaelic League, but aloof from politics and strong in the scholarly pursuit of Gaelic knowledge.

His wife, the author, is sister of Professor R. A. Stewart Macalister. At the wedding in St. Columba's Church, Cambridge, the minister pronounced the Benediction in Gaelic. This was done for the satisfaction of the bridegroom's mother. "She won't think that we are properly married if it's all done in English," he said; though the bride thought that he wanted the Gaelic, too.

An Adventurous Life

Colour and Action

Peter Lecky. By Himself. London: Cape. 8/6 net.

COW-PUNCHING in Canada, varied with horse-breaking; the same in Australia, with some sheep-herding by way of a change; pearling off the north-west coast—these have been some of Mr. Peter Lecky's experiences abroad. During the War he returned to England and served his term in France, where he was wounded and contracted gas-poisoning.

The charm of his book lies not only in the fact that Mr. Peter Lecky has had interesting adventures, which he recounts in considerable detail, but that he has a gift for transforming adventures that should be uneventful into "thrills." He has, moreover, a nice sense of descriptive prose, of which it is not out of place to quote a specimen:—

> "High in the wine of the vault circle three pompous, rose-breasted pelicans, with clumsy pterodactyl-like wing beats. A schooner's snowy sails beating north relieve the aching blue of the bay. Dull shining mangrave-green adorns a point near the wire-netting walled bathing enclosure. Behind are the low oxide cliffs, which, when one sights them from the sea, look like smears executed with crimson chalk. As I step out along the foreshore I come on fish weirs in use and in ruins. Dead fish discarded from the last catch lie about, with an occasional live one flopping in a pool as the tide recedes. Bald-headed, rusty-coated fish eagles police the beach for these luckless loiterers. Along the sand one comes at times on the ribs of some wrecked and half-buried lugger, which forms the backbone and setting of a delightful marine garden, all green with weeds and bright with anemones, corals and delicate chrysanthemum-like worms that withdraw instantly at the vibration of one's footsteps."

His life runs almost like a colourful pageant. Mr. Lecky is a picturesque figure. He frankly admits a series of amorous encounters which a more discreet writer would either leave out or else lightly touch on with a delicate regret for the follies of youth. Also, he might have spared some harrowing details of his home life. Saving these slight blemishes—if so they be in an autobiography—the book is a rousing, heartsome account of a life fully and widely lived.

In Search of Peace

A World-Wide Quest

On the Run. By Douglas McHardie. London: Sampson Low. 12/6 net.

MR. McHARDIE has made no attempt to picture sensationally the sensational story of his life, and thus he has written an interesting book that easily might have been a lurid string of unconvincing reminiscences. The reader will find it difficult to believe that one man could have come successfully through so many adventures, but Mr. McHardie lends him assistance in his difficulty by the moderation of the tone of his autobiography. He was born the son of a hard-drinking Scots lumberjack, and at the age of sixteen he ran away from his home. Throughout those sixteen years he had suffered physical and mental miseries of the most brutal kind.

Within a remarkably short space of time he found himself with a price on his head for murder and a stage hold-up. He flies again, this time to the gold-filled Yukon, where he stakes out a claim in a region 40 degrees below zero. With the proceeds of this enterprise he buys a waterfront saloon on the blood-thirsty Barbary Coast. He was shanghaied to Sydney, and then after another fight he runs away to Bombay. Here he is befriended by a Parsee merchant, and is sent by him on a secret mission to the forbidden native city of Peshawar. He runs guns from Hamburg to Afghanistan, and then is arrested. He spends the next year in chains by the roadside, starving, tortured with disease. He is pardoned by the Amir, and then lives as an Afridi in the mountains beyond the North West Frontier. Here he was captured by the British, escaped hanging by a hairsbreadth, and then began to steal rifles from the Frontier troops. He returned to Kabul, and again was captured by the British while trying to escape to the South with a dancing girl. Again he escapes, and now joins up for service in France at the outbreak of war. Subsequently he returns to California, via London, the Yukon, Montreal and New York; and in the end he assures the reader that all he ever seeks is—peace.

Super-Simplicity

Under the Eyelid. Poems by Bryan Guiness. London: Heinemann. 3/6 net.

IN Mr. Guiness's verse we have rather the super-simplicity of the last century than the elaborate obscurity of this. Meeting such lines as: "The impish fiddles," "The harsh departure of the garish sun," "The sky weeps, too, when Janet is away," one cannot but feel that their ingeniousness partakes rather of the convent school than of modern poetry. It is not fair, however, to damn a man by the quotation of a line or two; and, lest we may be accused of special pleading, here are the opening lines of a verse taken at random:

I sit in a white temple on a hill
Enshrined like any god above the world.
And Venus, in her solitary state,
Dropping her ceremonious mists along
The sharpness of horizons and of hills,
Calls for my mood the solemn evening in. . . . . .

and so on. The book is full of the flaming suns and tender skies, which suggest that the world is a succession of Turner landscapes. One poem, however, suggests life and energy. "Not Only Water Flows," coming on the last page, leaves one with a faint hope that some day Mr. Guiness may emerge from under the beard and cloak of Lord Tennyson and write something genuinely stimulating.

Bach—the Man

A Lively Study

"Gentlemen, Old Bach is Here." By Cunliffe Owen. London: Hutchinson. 18s. net.

The Art of J. S. Bach. By A. E. F. Dickinson. London: Duckworth. 7s. 6d. net.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH stands apart from the other great composers by reason of a certain massive strength. There is a power, a directness of purpose, joined with a limpid simplicity, that marks him as one apart where his art is concerned. He is a genius, a towering one, but with that straightforward clarity of conception which belongs only to the highest flights of inspiration. His life was completely wrapped up in his music; and it is this very preoccupation that has robbed us of so much that might have delighted a future biographer, and left us with little by which to know the man himself. Mr. Cunliffe Owen has aimed high, and his great feat has been to produce a figure from the little and sparse-recorded facts that will move the reader to say with Frederick the Great: "Gentlemen, old Bach is here."

The picture of the composer begins in later life. The earlier struggles—for we know that Bach's younger days were passed in very straitened circumstances—are over, and we are presented with the man himself, married for the second time, and in the midst of leaving frivolous Köthen for the more solid surroundings of Leipzig and the Thomasschule, where he was to teach for the remainder of his years. Here, in the ordinary surroundings of a Cantor of those days, is the Bach of Mr. Cunliffe Owen. His daily work, the petty vexations he is known to have suffered, and his few triumphs—all are worked up into a colourful background. The illustrations are extremely good, and, compared with the sturdy, pious and simple figure that the author gives us, compels again the thought old Bach is truly here.

An admirable complement to the foregoing is Mr. A. E. F. Dickinson's little book. Here we have the music itself. Every side of the composer's work is discussed and criticised with many illustrations. For an understanding of the music of Bach and of his contribution to musical art as a whole there can be few better works than this authoritative little study.

The Vatican, France and Italy

A Personal History

Leo XIII., Italy and France. By Eduardo Soderini. Translated by Barbara Barclay Carter. London: Burns, Oates and Washbourne. 15/- net.

THIS second volume of the English translation of Count Soderini's "Life of Pope Leo XIII." is in two parts, dealing with the Vatican's relations with the Italian Kingdom and the French Republic, respectively. In both cases the relations of the Holy See with the governments concerned were strained and unhappy, to put it mildly indeed. In this volume once again Count Soderini is able to throw much light upon happenings which were obscured to the world outside Rome and Paris. His intimacy with the Pope, and the confidences and missions with which the Pope entrusted him, give his narrative special value. The translator has done her work excellently, and she does not hesitate to differ with her author when she considers him in error in fact or in opinion. These occasions are not frequent, and, indeed, Soderini writes with moderation and calm even on the most thorny points, but always from the viewpoint of the conscientious Catholic. At the same time, he does not fail to reveal the defects and the mistakes of certain churchmen, especially in France.

Fierce and Tenacious

On Leo's character Soderini writes: "To many, maybe, his faculty of enduring contradiction with benevolence was so little known that they believed the precise opposite, namely, that he was so fierce, so tenacious in holding to his ideas that no one dared open his mouth before him. This was a grave mistake, which had often unfortunate consequences, for sometimes facts were withheld from him which he should have known at once; then, when he heard of them directly, he was the first to complain of so much cowardice." A typical difficulty arose out of the provisions of Crispi's Public Safety Act in 1888: "These affected not only the right of assembly, which was made to depend largely on the whim of the police, but even extended to religious collections, declaring that outside places definitely set aside for worship and recognised as such by the political authorities, those who took such collections could be sentenced to up to a month's imprisonment. At the same time, Borelli, the Minister of Education, egged on by Crispi, issued a decree by which, in spite of the provisions of the Casati Act in a contrary sense, religious teaching in the primary schools was suppressed as outside the competence of the State. The atheistic State was thus brought into being by a Minister who was personally opposed to anti-clericalism." And this could be paralleled by passages from the sections relating to the Holy See and the Third Republic in France.

Disaster of Adowa

Leo could be quite frank in his admiration of great qualities even in his opponents. This was well illustrated after his attempt to secure the liberation of the Italians made prisoner by the Abyssinians after the disaster of Adowa. The situation was extremely delicate, and the attempt was unsuccessful, partly, it would seem, because of the attitude of the envoy, the Primate of the Coptic Church in Egypt, and partly because an outcry in a section of the Italian press made the Marquis di Rudini turn tail. "A long time afterwards," says Soderini, "Leo XIII., recalling this episode, said to me: 'What a pity Crispi was not there then! Things would have gone very differently. That was a man!'"

Heard in Confidence

Of cardinals and statesmen many sayings are given. Cardinal Pie, who "had the bearing of a truly great gentleman," although he came from very humble stock, says to Napoleon III.: "Pilate, wash your hands"; when Cardinal Pitra, "a good, learned, and simple priest, who had lived much in libraries, much in his cell, but never in the turmoil of the world," was jockeyed into the position of figurehead of the faction that accused Leo of Liberalism, Cardinal Lavigerie inquires whether the Church rests "super Petrum o super Pitram"; Waddington describes to Soderini Monsignor Meglia, a Papal Nuncio to France, as "rather a man of prayer than a diplomat," even if he did attend the races at Longchamps; and Pope Leo, on hearing that the widow of the Legitimist Comte de Chambord was about to become a nun after the death of her husband, whom she was understood to have influenced to ruin all "by insisting that the Tricolour should be replaced by the white flag with the golden fleur-de-lis," exclaims: "It is a pity that she did not think of doing so sooner"!

This book is indispensable for the history not only of the modern Papacy, but of the Italy and France of yesterday as well.

Scotland and Rome

The Roman Invasions: A Saga of the Caledonian Race. By Laurence O. Pitblado. London: Allen and Unwin. 10/- net.

SINCE the Roman occupation the island of Britain has risen about a hundred feet. Hence, it seems that Scotland, north of the Firth of Forth, was an island in Roman days, while poor old Ireland was but an obscure archipelago of Wicklow and Donegal islands. Claudian's famous statement that the Scot moved all Ierne against the Empire and the water foamed under his oars—

. . . . totam cum Scotus Iernam
Morit, et infesto spumavit remige Tethus

—does not allude to Ireland, but to that former island of Strathearn or North Scotland.

Such, as far as the reviewer can grasp the argument, is the thesis of this curious book. The author resorts to strange pieces of reasoning. Gleneagles, he says, is the name that commemorates the passage of the Roman Eagles, and he scoffs at the usual derivation, Gleann-na-hEaglaise, Church of the Glen. How the ancient name-makers came to use the English word eagles in place of the Latin aquilæ, or the Gaelic iolair, he does not explain.

However, extravagant as the theory and its supporting arguments may seem, we would like to see an investigation by geologists into the historic situation as affected by the different elevation of the land surface in Roman days.

New Novels

The Last Civilian. By Ernst Glaeser. Nicholson and Watson. 7/6 net.

Mud and Stars. By Robert Clive. Constable. 7/6 net.

HERR GLAESER wrote "The Last Civilian" during the eight months after the revolution in Germany in 1933. Throughout this period he was in danger of imprisonment, according to the publisher's notice, and thus one is entitled to suspect that he is a non-Aryan. Certainly about his book there is a richness of domestic detail, and, above all else, the length, that one has come to expect in the Jewish novel. The Rhineland town of Siebenwasser is the centre of the story, and to Siebenwasser returns a native from America. Herr Glaeser tells the life story of this Johann Casper Bäuerle at length, for what reason it is difficult to perceive, since Bäuerle plays subsequently only the part of a detached observer of the events in Siebenwasser. Herr Glaeser is concerned mainly with the growth of the Nazi movement in this little town, and in doing so he examines closely the forces that drove the young Germany of 1933 to carry out the orders of the Brown House in Munich. He shows the main type of individual who answered Hitler's merciless demands for implicit obedience, whatever might be the circumstance; and the way in which the revolutionaries stirred up discontent in these provincial towns. In Siebenwasser Kalhane is the leader, dynamic, entirely unscrupulous. Gradually he gets under his thumb the important men of the city, always he is promoting discord—in the theatre, in the shops, in the town council. At times the book is breathlessly exciting; and it has a rich wealth of superabundant detail.

* * * * *

No Englishman living in Berlin ever enjoys himself in a novel, and there are many novels about Englishmen living in Berlin. They seem obsessed with the futility of life, and seek escape in dissipation. Mr. Clive's novel is fairly true to type, but there is a quality of intelligence about it that is found, perhaps, once in five modern works of fiction. Peter, in the beginning, is involved in an affair with a German girl, and—as is usual in the Berlin novel—the girl is in trouble. His boredom and his sense of obligation are well pictured, mainly in conversation; and, after various searchings of heart, he drifts away from her. Then he meets the English wife of a German official, and, in a slightly cold-blooded fashion, they decide on an unofficial honeymoon in a little lake-side hotel. They are at first two ordinarily, cynical, introspective, intelligent people, discussing reasonably their prospects of happiness; but, alone together by the lake, they enjoy the care-free, irresponsible delight of two people who are concerned only with themselves and their love. They must move back to the city, however, and here the world intrudes itself again. Difficulties arise, and in the end Catherine returns to her husband. Mr. Clive at times is a little "smart" in his dialogue; but he gives an admirable picture of Berlin on the eve of Hitler's rise to supreme power.

Sneezing into the Basket. By Kitty Shannon. Hutchinson. 7/6 net.

Team Work. By Joan Butler. Stanley Paul. 7/6 net.

MISS SHANNON, for the purposes of her new novel, clearly has made an extensive study of the social life and customs of Paris, both before and after the French Revolution, and her reconstruction of the Paris of those days forms the whole essence of her book. The story actually tells the history of, firstly, Emelie, an actress in the reign of Louis XV., then of Poil de Carotte, a street walker, who becomes the friend of Madame du Barry, the King's mistress; then of Marie, assistant dressmaker to Marie Antoinette, and, finally, Suzanne, Marie's daughter, who has some of the more independent characteristics of her ancestor, Poil de Carotte The background, however, is far too strong for the individuals, and they appear unconvincing by comparison, but this background is drawn in the most brilliant colour. We read of the excesses of the Court of Louis XV., of the revolting, monstrous bloodshed of the Revolution; and the mad time afterwards when Paris was ruled by opportunists and prostitutes, and when women strolled the streets half-naked. The insane fashions of this post-revolutionary period are pictured in fascinating detail, and the ordinary rounds of an evening's amusement are described at length. Glimpses are given of Voltaire, Casanova, Robespierre, Madame de Stäel, Napoleon and the then Prince of Wales; and even if it is not strictly accurate history, "Sneezing into the Basket" is good, full-blooded, entertainment.

* * * * *

Miss Butler wields a facile and diverting pen. Her muscular young men, who say "What, ho!" and fall into almost incredible situations, are vastly refreshing, and she steers them in and out with real dexterity. Her latest book concerns a cheerful peer, who, succumbing to an inherited instinct for beating up policemen, suffers incarceration, and cannot turn up to receive the welcome prepared for him at the ancestral mansion. He is replaced by a friend, who proceeds to put the unattractive occupants of the ancestral mansion in their place—until his progress is interrupted by an unexpected arrival. The many people who are acquainted with Miss Butler's work ("Mixed Pickle," by the way, one of her earlier books, has just been republished at 2s. 6d.) will know already that "Team Work" demands to be read. Those who are not ought to establish an acquaintance at once.

Vultures in the Sky. By Todd Downing. Methuen. 7/6 net.

Ask for Standish. By "Sapper." Hodder and Stoughton. 7/6 net.

LO! the "poor Indian" has entered the "thriller" ranks with complete success. Mr. Downing, who is descended from the "100 per cent." American of pre-Columbus days, gives novelty to the now familiar railway train setting by appropriating it from the rolling-stock of the National Railways of Mexico and stranding it in the desert at the midnight hour. By that time there have been no fewer than three murders aboard the train, and the occupants of the Pullman are viewing one another shudderingly. An outstanding person amongst the passengers is the elderly Miss Trescinda Talcott, survivor of a pathetic romance, who unwittingly gives an ending to the tale that flabbergasts Rennert, the detective. It is a "thriller" of unusual merit.

* * * * *

It is impossible to write a formal review of a volume of short stories. Nothing more can be said of "Ask for Standish" than that it is an extremely diverting "case-book" of one of the most attractive sleuths in to-day's crime fiction. The "case-book," to some extent, has gone out of fashion these days—more is the pity. If anything revives it, "Sapper's" latest collection ought to do so.

Little Tales. By Lion Feuchtwanger. Secker. 5/- net.

THIS is a collection of eight short stories, written, roughly, between 1920 and 1928. Some of them, unfortunately, are not Feuchtwanger at his best, and, like most collections, they vary in quality. Feuchtwanger, however, is not to be judged by any such collection. He has been dealt with harshly by the Nazis, and has had a number of his manuscripts destroyed! but his historical imagination is clearly discernible here in "Marianne in India," "Bull-Fight" and "The Little Season." The translator is Mr. Basil Creighton.

NEWS SUMMARY

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1936.

IRELAND

ABROAD

The French parties of the Left are to be invited by the Communists to take part on Sunday in a monster demonstration against the attack on M. Leon Blum, the Socialist leader.—(Page 9.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were affected by profit-taking sales. There was again selective buying among Industrials.—(Page 14.)

The Treasury bill rate was unchanged at 10s. 4d. per cent. Gold was fixed at 140s. 10d per ounce, and only £73,000 was sold. The Bank bought £81,800 in bar gold.—(Page 14.)

Arming for Wars

The proposal to create a British Ministry of Defence was sponsored in the House of Commons last night by Rear-Admiral Sir Murray Sueter, but there is no doubt that it was Sir Austen Chamberlain who took most of the limelight. Sir Murray Sueter's bill—which eventually was withdrawn—was significant enough in itself. It expressed, in concrete form, the vague feeling of uneasiness which has been growing in Great Britain for some time past with regard to questions of defence. The country, it is felt, is unprepared for possible war, and is not even in a position to make itself properly prepared. In particular, the British public is not easy in its mind about the division of control over the three services, and the bill was intended to make co-operation easier by bringing the Navy, the Army and the Air Force under the authority of a single Ministry. Sir Murray Sueter envisaged a Ministry of Defence which should consist of a Secretary of State as President; other Secretaries of State for each of the three services, and, possibly, an Empire Defence Board, which would be made up from representatives of the Dominions. As he pointed out last night, Great Britain already has been penalised for her lack of co-ordination in these matters. When the Great War broke out there was virtually no common policy as between the Navy, the Army and the newly-created Air services; and, even when the War was drawing towards a close, the situation was not perfect. It is fantastic to say—as has been so often said—that the Great War was won by a policy of "muddle." At the same time, Great Britain's arrangements were far from perfect, and a similar lack of preparation might lead more easily to disaster in the future than it led to victory in the past.

Sir Murray Sueter voiced the fear that Great Britain, if another war should come, may be no more ready to fight than she was in 1914. It remained for Sir Austen Chamberlain to sound an even more urgent note. Since the idea of universal disarmament collapsed, Great Britain has been making up for lost time and it is no secret that she has been doing her best to strengthen her depleted forces. Is there any guarantee, however, that her Government is fully alive to the situation? The question, perhaps, would not have been asked so often if the British Government had not succeeded in giving an impression of hesitancy, and even of ignorance, in its policy. Sir Austen recalled several instances of this attitude. Mr. Baldwin, for example, professed some time ago that he felt no uneasiness whatever about the growth of the German air force, and a very short time afterwards was compelled to admit that the danger was far greater than he had imagined, and that Great Britain would have to face a totally new situation. Again, there was the unhappy Hoare-Laval pact, which did nothing to reassure the public that the British Government knew its own mind, or was prepared to follow a settled policy in foreign affairs. Sir Austen Chamberlain's remarks already are being interpreted as a personal attack on the Prime Minister, but they are only the reflection of popular feeling. The public has a great deal of confidence in Mr. Baldwin, but it is not sure that the defence problem is being handled properly, and, although a Ministry for Defence seems to be out of the question for various reasons, public pressure may force the Government to set up some kind of co-ordinating scheme. As Sir Austen Chamberlain pointed out, the recent indecision has made many people "profoundly anxious," and it has been due mainly to the fact that Great Britain has not been pursuing any definite line of action.

By this time, there can remain little doubt that the moment for action has come. Schemes for mutual disarmament have been tried, and have failed. The general scheme is dead and buried, and the Naval Conference, the last relic of former hopes, can achieve almost nothing of value in the absence of Japan. Great Britain followed the ideal of disarmament more faithfully than any other nation, and her need, now that the ideal has gone, is correspondingly greater. Many of her battleships now are obsolete, her Army is small and imperfectly equipped, and her Air Force, though efficient, could be outnumbered by more than one foreign Power. It is tragic that all the high hopes of peace should have vanished so soon, and that the nations—having learnt nothing, apparently, from their former sufferings—should be embarking again on an armaments' race. When the foolish race has started, however, any nation which does not take part in it stays out at her own peril, and Great Britain, at least, cannot be accused of hypocrisy if she claims that she is an unwilling competitor. The British Government, in fact, has held back for so long that it has begun to involve the whole Commonwealth in a rather dangerous situation. At the moment, the prospects for peace are not very good. Italy's campaign in Abyssinia, whether it is lost or won, is almost bound to create grave problems in Europe within the next five years. The Balkan States are stirring uneasily into life again, and already have begun to squabble. Germany's sense of growing power is making her arrogant, while, in the east, a war involving Japan, Russia and America is by no means out of the question. The world is nervous and quarrelsome—and armed. Any one of half-a-dozen centres might provide a war at a month's notice, and Great Britain, faced with such a possibility, cannot afford to be unprepared for it.

White and Black

Little has been heard in Western Europe of a measure which is causing widespread interest in the Union of South Africa, and may prove eventually to mark a turning point in the history of the African Continent. Yesterday in Cape Town the Representation of the Natives Bill passed its first reading at a joint sitting of the House of Assembly and the Senate by a majority of 116 votes to 16. This bill is of profound importance. Under the Act of Union the native inhabitants of the Cape Province have the right to vote, and the framers of the Act were so jealous of the natives' position that they ordained that this right could not be taken from them save by a two-thirds majority of both Houses of the South African Parliament in joint session. Now the Hertzog Government has determined that the natives of the Cape Province shall be disenfranchised—they are the only natives in the Union with the right to vote—and that the whole Union shall be divided into four huge constituencies for the election of a Natives' Representative Council. Naturally the native population is opposed bitterly to the projected change. Not only does it hold that the rights of the Cape Province natives should be maintained, but it claims that they should be extended to the natives of the Transvaal, Natal and the Orange Free State. Yesterday's vote in Cape Town, however, indicates clearly that the Government will gain its point. Nobody who lives in Europe can appreciate the difficulties of the native problem in South Africa. It is easy to be sentimental about the rights of the Bantu population; but, when it is realised that there is only a handful of white men in South Africa in comparison with an ever-growing horde of natives, the matter assumes a vastly different aspect. The Kaffirs and Hottentots are a very low type of humanity. Their intelligence is of an exceedingly primitive order, and, if the white race in Africa is to maintain its position of authority, the colour bar must be preserved. On this point Dutch and British alike are in entire agreement. Sooner or later the problem of the native races will become acute; and, although the attitude of the whites may not be in accordance with the strict principles of European democracies, the South African people, after all, are the best judges of their own position. If the natives in the Union should be allowed to develop politically, they would overwhelm the white population in a few decades. For that reason it would be unfair to judge the present movement in South Africa by normal standards. Self-preservation is nature's first law.

The Lifeboat Service

When the Ballycotton lifeboat came into port on Thursday night a new chapter was added to a long story which is one of the unregarded wonders of our time. It had gone out to look for the Daunt's Rock lightship, which had broken adrift off Cork Harbour, and it stood by her for seventy hours, before the heavy seas moderated sufficiently for the crew of eight to be taken aboard and brought to land. The episode is only one of a dozen which the storms of the past week or two have brought forth up and down the coasts of the islands in which we live; but it will serve, it may be hoped, to draw attention to a great and humane undertaking towards which all good Irishmen should feel a responsibility. It is no part of the tradition of our race that we should be indifferent to the perils of those who fare along our dangerous coasts to supply the needs of our own country or of others. Yet most of us are content to treat the work of the lifeboat service, which guards the lives of these men, as a matter of course, and to give a thought to its existence only when a week of storm reminds us of the courage and endurance of those Irishmen who are ever ready to meet such an emergency. The Royal National Lifeboat Institute does not exist by some benign law of nature which may arouse our wonder, but does not require our active participation to make it valid. It is supported by the charitable, and, although it is an enterprise to which those who maintain it give a full measure of devotion, we fear that the public at large allows it to depend too greatly upon the efforts of the few. At the meeting yesterday of the Dublin Ladies' Guild of the Institute it was announced that the collection made last year was the largest yet recorded, and we welcome this evidence that the work of its members meets with some of the response it deserves. Yet the sums collected are not large, and the expenses of the service are heavy. It cannot stand still: when developments are made in the science of lifeboat-building the Institute, if it is humanly possible, must replace its older craft by the latest model. The difference on one side may be reckoned in pounds, but on the other it is reckoned in human lives.

Odes to Order

Mr. John Masefield has courage. His duties as Poet Laureate include the writing of odes for ceremonial occasions, but he has stated quite frankly that the Coronation of King Edward VIII. may not be celebrated in verse by him. He cannot write odes to order, he says, nor, indeed, will he write odes at all unless he discovers "unexpected inspiration." For that reason the Coronation may go without its official poetic welcome; and Mr. Masefield's attitude to the question must not be criticised as a churlish refusal to do work for which he is being paid. At its best, the post of Poet Laureate always has been something of an anomaly. Usually it has been awarded as a mark of honour to the most distinguished poet of the day; but the Laureate's official duties, as Mr. Masefield points out, have been responsible for much of the world's worst literature. "Were it not for Laureates," he says, "the anthologists of bad verse would be hard put to it to fill their volumes." Who could expect, indeed, that the result would be otherwise? In former centuries the unfortunate poet had to write an ode every time his sovereign had a birthday—a task which, although it gave plenty of time for preparation, would have become so uninspiring in time as to be almost unbearable. The more or less impromptu odes, to judge by results, must have been almost as trying, and the whole system by which a poet was compelled to write to order was absurd. Some modern Laureates—of whom the most outstanding was Lord Tennyson—have been able to write very good verse under these remarkable conditions. Others, such as Mr. Masefield's predecessor, Dr. Bridges, have preferred to ignore their "duties" rather than to write what they feel they cannot write well; and Mr. Masefield himself will not guarantee complimentary odes unless he feels in the mood for them. Fortunately, the situation is understood. Laureates are appointed nowadays for their worth as poets, and it is recognised that real poetry cannot be written to order.

LONDON LETTER

TROUBLE IN FRANCE

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

ONCE again there is considerable political trouble in France, but it may not last long, as the Royalist group is not particularly strong. The closing down of the Action Française will not be regretted. The great body of support of the Action Française is recruited from the student classes, and, like students in other countries, they have been very hot-headed and indifferent to any trouble they might bring about. M. Leon Blum, the victim of yesterday's attack, is a very wealthy man. He started life as a student of law in jurisprudence, and rapidly became one of the greatest advocates of his day. Turning to politics, he became the leader of the big and influential Socialist Party.

The Budget

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, has decided that he will introduce his Budget in the House of Commons on April 28th, when it is probable that he will be able to tell a good story concerning the advance of prosperity during the past year. Judging from the revenue returns issued every week, the Chancellor should be assured of a surplus of receipts over expenditure; but that does not mean that there will be much forthcoming in the reduction of taxation. In some quarters there are rumours of a cut of sixpence in the income tax, but those who look forward to this with any degree of assurance are optimists. The Chancellor may be able to make further adjustments of income tax allowances, as he did last year; but it is improbable that there will be any further relief. It seems to have been overlooked that some of the economy cuts made during the depression are to be restored, and this alone will cost a large sum.

Reform of the Lords

A meeting of Conservative peers and members of the House of Commons is to be held shortly with a view to making fresh representations to the Government to bring in a House of Lords Reform Bill during the present session. In the House of Lords on Wednesday last the Lord Chancellor said that the Government had reached no decision on this question, and that there was plenty of useful work before the Government without embarking on such a thorny programme. The Central Council of the National Union of Conservative and Unionist Associations—the second largest organisation in the party—intends to debate the question on March 15th, when a resolution will be moved by Mr. Gordon Touche urging the Government to produce a measure of their own without delay. It is almost certain that the resolution will be carried. It is said that Mr. Baldwin is anxious to deal with the question of reform, but that he has found it difficult to find time. It is not at all improbable, however, that something may be done during the life of the present Parliament.

The Duchy of Cornwall

The revenues attached to the Duchy of Cornwall, which of right belong to the eldest son of the Sovereign, rest in the control of the Crown until such time as there is an heir apparent. During the past few days there has been a good deal of discussion regarding these funds, and it has been said that they might go to the Duke of York, the acknowledged heir presumptive. There are legal difficulties in the way, however, and such a direct transfer can scarcely take place, though it is suggested that the King may allot part of the revenues to his brother. The sums received from the profits of the Duchy are said to amount to some £50,000 a year, and this provided the income of the King when Prince of Wales.

Canada's War Memorial

Some ten thousand Canadian ex-Service men are expected to be present in July at the unveiling of Canada's War Memorial on Vimy Ridge, which is to be the Dominions' counterpart to the Menin Gate. The memorial is of a majestic character, with great pylons and huge symbolical figures approached by a series of massive steps. These bear the names of twelve thousand Canadian soldiers who have no known grave. It has been under construction for the past ten years, and its Canadian sculptor, Mr. Walter Allard, has had to live in England for most of that period.

Television

The Post Office has decided to run a television cable from Broadcasting House to Alexandra Palace, and this materially alters the situation in regard to the production of television programmes. It has been supposed at the B.B.C. that there would be no direct link between the two stations, and arrangements had been made at Alexandra Palace for all the necessary studios, dressing rooms, waiting rooms and canteens. The first television cable to be used in this country, however, will enable the B.B.C. studios in the West End to be used for television, but as these are already in heavy demand it is improbable that they will be occupied on any great scale for television. They may, however, be kept for occasions when famous people are called upon to make use of television, thus saving them the journey to Muswell Hill. Up to now little has been done in the way of preparing the television sets, as manufacturers are waiting for the test transmissions in April before they get receivers into production. No definite plans for charges have yet been made, but it is expected that television receivers at the beginning will cost about £50.

Chinese Engineers

Under the scholarships scheme initiated and administered by the Federation of British Industries three more Chinese apprentices arrived in Liverpool yesterday. This brings the total number of scholarships awarded since the inception of the scheme in 1933 to twenty-four. Five of the original apprentices have now returned to China, and are very satisfied with the experience they have gained during their training in engineering works in the United Kingdom. The scheme has hitherto been financed by an annual grant of £500 from the Universities' China Committee in London, and a non-recurring grant of £500 from the board of trustees of the Boxer Indemnity Funds in Nanking. Information has just been received that a further grant of £500 to the scheme has been made by the board of trustees in Nanking, which will enable three additional scholarships to be awarded during the current year. The object of the scheme is to develop cultural, as well as commercial, relations between the United Kingdom and China, and every care is taken to ensure that the apprentices receive proper social treatment, as well as the best possible engineering training, while in this country.

Destructive Pigeons

In some parts of England farmers are complaining of the great damage to their crops owing to the number of pigeons, many of which are of foreign origin. The opinion has been expressed that the foreign birds have been encouraged to fly across the North Sea, following the British racing pigeons which have been released for cross-Channel flights. Farmers are organising shoots to reduce the number of the raiders, but there are still far too many, and damage to crops is still on a large scale.

Flying Officer David Llewellyn, who is attempting to fly from England to the Cape in a midget 'plane, left Gabes at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Tripoli.

FRENCH LEFT PLANS BIG DEMONSTRATION

"Expression of Country's Will"

CONDITION OF M. BLUM SATISFACTORY

Action Francaise Appeals to Council of State

PLANS for a monster demonstration of protest against the assault on M. Leon Blum are being pressed forward by the French parties of the Left. The idea comes from the Communists.

The demonstration in Paris is to be "an expression of the country's will" to put an end to criminal acts of civil war by instigators of, and provokers to, murder.

Further important developments yesterday were:—

The arrest of an insurance agent, Jean Lecomte, aged 31, as an alleged assailant of M. Blum;

The failure of the Socialist deputy, M. Monnet, and his wife, who were with M. Blum, when confronted with certain young Royalists arrested last night, to recognise any of them as having been among the assailants;

The appeal of the Action Française to the Council of State against the decree ordering the dissolution of the organisation.

M. Blum had a slightly high temperature yesterday morning, but his condition in general is satisfactory, and no anxiety is felt at his home.

SYMPATHY FOR VICTIMS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

The plans announced by the Political Bureau of the Communist Party were to approach immediately the Socialist Party with a view to organising a monster protest demonstration in Paris next Sunday, in sympathy with the victims of "factions," and to demand the application of the law for the dissolution of the Camelots du Roi; and to send a call for help to all organisations of the Popular Front and all supporters of liberty.

M. LEON BLUM.

As a result of this the commemoration fixed for the same day in memory of the death of Heinrich Heine will be postponed.

The search of the offices of the Action Française this morning ended at 11.30. There was no incident, though M. Charles Maurras, one of the leaders, protested vehemently against what he called an "attack on liberty of opinion." He added that there was not a tittle of evidence of collusion by the Action Française in the assault on M. Blum.

Both he and M. Leon Daudet were present when their rooms were searched, and their papers were passed through the sieve by the examining magistrate, M. Linais, accompanied by three Police Commissioners. The seals placed last night have now been removed from the doors of these rooms.

The magistrate carried away a pile of papers after the search, and refused to reveal their contents.

The arrested insurance agent was interrogated for several hours early this morning, and denied taking part in yesterday's demonstration. He is stated to have admitted being present, but declared that he left the Camelots du Roi organisation some years ago, and that he was no longer attached to the Action Francaise.

STRENGTH FOR LEFT

The attack on M. Blum is likely to have two important results. It will enormously strengthen the Left Parties at the general election. The dissolution of the Leagues was the main plank in their platform. And it will fortify the Government, whose prompt and vigorous action has the approval of all classes and political creeds —except the Royalists.

Other Right Leagues, such as Colonel de la Roque's Croix de Feu, pride themselves too much on their discipline not to eschew association with unbridled indulgence in political passion.

PARIS CALM

Paris has been remarkably calm after yesterday's sensations. The Action Française was allowed to be sold on the streets, and the hawkers did a brisk trade. There were only a few isolated and very minor incidents.

A young man wearing the badge of the Action Française went up to a policeman on point duty, insulted him, struck him, and made off. A group of police gave chase, and caught him as he was entering his parents' home crying "Long Live the King." He was later charged with insulting and assaulting the police.

The words "Vive le Roi" have been painted in red lead on the walls of the Montmartre district.

THE COAL DUTY DRAWBACK

CASE OF MERCHANTS WHO ARE NOT IMPORTERS

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

The Finance (Special Drawback) Bill has been set down for Committee stage in the Dail next week. This bill proposes to enable the Government to refund to registered importers of coal the duty paid on coal in their possession on a date following the removal of the duty by order of the Executive Council. It will be recalled that during the debate on the second stage several deputies made strong appeal to the Government to include other coal merchants who had stocks of coal on the date mentioned, and who had paid the duty to the importers, but who were not themselves importers.

Mr. A. Haslett (I., Monaghan) has given notice of an amendment for the Committee stage to include these merchants. If the motion is in order it will probably give rise to a further interesting debate.

PRICE OF BELLMAN'S COAL

REDUCTION OF 1/- PER TON FROM TO-DAY

Having received formal complaints regarding the prices charged by Dublin coal merchants for bellmen's coal, the Controller of Prices has investigated the matter, and satisfied himself that a reasonable maximum price to bellmen for this class of coal would now be 36s. per ton—a reduction of 1s. per ton on the maximum price hitherto prevailing in Dublin.

As a result of representations made by the Controller of Prices to the merchants concerned, they have agreed to reduce the price accordingly as from to-day. The Controller has been informed that the other members of the Dublin coal trade have also agreed to this reduction.

The Munich Red Cross Hospital, a private organisation, the property of the Bavarian Division of the German Red Cross, was yesterday declared closed for operations by Jewish surgeons.

GAVE CZAR VITAL MESSAGE

DEATH OF FORMER DUMA PRESIDENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Friday.

Alexandre Ivanovitch Goutchkoff, former President of the Russian Duma, and one of the most prominent White Russian refugees in France, died to-day in Paris after a long illness.

M. Goutchkoff, who was 74, had had a most adventurous life. It included fighting for Kruger in the Boer War and being taken prisoner by the British; commanding an ambulance in the Russo-Japanese War and being taken prisoner by the Japanese; fighting with Macedonian bands against Turkey in 1903; fighting six duels, all of which he won; and riding 7,500 miles across China on horseback in the early 'nineties.

He was a member of the first and second assemblies of the Duma—the Parliament of Czarist Russia—and was elected President in 1910. During the War he directed the "War Industrial Committee," which organised munitions and supplies for the Czar's armies.

The most poignant moment in the life of this staunch monarchist was when he was appointed one of two delegates sent to convince the Czar that he must abdicate in the national interest.

After the Czar's abdication he became Minister of War in the Provisional Government under Prince Lwoff. Later he became one of the leaders of the counter-revolution with General Denikin, who sent him to France in 1919. Since then M. Goutchkoff has made France his home. In latter years he has been engaged in writing his memoirs, which he left unfinished.

TRELISSICK MAKING FOR PORT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SEATTLE, Friday.

The British steamer Trelissick, which sent out an S.O.S. in a heavy storm off the coast here yesterday, is now proceeding towards the Columbia river, accompanied by the Onondaga, one of the coastguard cutters which went out in response to the S.O.S. Weather conditions are improving.

A MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

SIR M. SUETER'S PROPOSAL

THE GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN AND THE PREMIER

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Friday.

IN the House of Commons this afternoon Rear - Admiral Sir Murray Sueter moved the second reading of his bill for the creation of a Ministry of Defence, responsible for all the fighting services. The bill also provided for a Defence Council, which would discharge the duties at present carried out by the Committee of Imperial Defence, and have power to coopt representatives of other Government Departments.

He said that it was fourteen years ago that he first brought in a Ministry of Defence Bill. His reasons for doing so were that, in his opinion, the administration of the fighting services was inefficient, and that there was a lack of co-ordination. There had always been considerable friction in regard to the Army and Navy, and that friction was emphasised when the Royal Air Force came into being as a separate arm. Surely, we had learned sufficient lessons from the War to be able to profit from the mistakes we then made. Many of them would have been avoided if there had been a Ministry of Defence.

If they read Sir William Robertson's book they would see that before the War there was no army policy for a war, and he could make no plans or give orders, because nothing was ready. Lord Kitchener was unable to send more men with the Expeditionary Force because there was no ammunition for them. It was not until towards the end of the War that Mr. Lloyd George set up his War Cabinet. That body functioned very well, but since then the War Cabinet had been allowed to drift away, and now there was no authority over the three services. We had gone back to the Committee of Imperial Defence, with its innumerable subcommittees and sub-sub-committees.

The Chiefs of Staff Committee had never given any guidance on some of the vexed questions of the day, such as the battleship versus the bomb. It was no use sending the First Lord of the Admiralty to the House of Lords to say that the whole Navy was practically turned into an anti-aircraft battery. It was impossible by means of anti-aircraft guns to prevent the bombing of ships. Ships could not stay in dockyards exposed to bombing from the air, and the sooner we understood that the better. The whole of the battleship question wanted looking into, and experts should be called into consultation before we expended £120,000,000 on the replacement of our battleships. The air bomb was becoming the master-weapon.

Mr. George Lambert (Liberal), supporting the bill, said that expenditure did not necessarily mean defence. It was wise expenditure which was essential. They must recognise that the League of Nations had failed to arrest armaments and to avert war. British security could not rely upon collective security. It could only rely upon its own right arm. To-day we must have a two-Power air standard. The Air Force must come first, the Navy second and the Army third. It was vitally necessary that we should have a co-ordinating Ministry.

OPPOSITION'S VIEW

Mr. Attlee (Leader of the Opposition) said it might be argued that there was no real agreement with regard to a Ministry of Defence, but there was far more general agreement than there had ever been before. Defence was not three separate problems, but one problem. There should be unity of direction, unity of plan and unity of outlook. The Committee of Imperial Defence was an advisory, and not an executive, body. It was not considered etiquette for the head of one service to criticise the head of another, and he understood that harmony on the Committee was only secured by not discussing important points. It was the duty of the Government to be frank with the House, and tell them what the real defence problem was, and how it was proposed to deal with it.

Mr. L. S. Amery (Conservative) stressed the need for a Minister of Defence, free from administrative duties, who could supply the initiative and reorganise from above. Someone was wanted who would be able to co-ordinate the conception of our whole strategical needs, and stand between the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the departments when the main issue of the allocation of expenditure was being considered.

Mr. W. Gallacher (Communist) declared that behind this bill was a blatant military mind. It had been suggested that a strong Britain was a guarantee of peace. In his view, under the present Government, it was a menace to civilisation.

GOVERNMENT REPLY

Lord Eustace Percy (Minister without Portfolio), replying for the Government, said that he could not anticipate the statement to be laid before the House later; but the Government were responsible for starting the machinery which would forge the right weapons of war, and they accepted the responsibility for seeing that whatever proposals were presented to the House were the result of a co-ordinated decision. They certainly did not regard everything in the garden as lovely. They had to choose between a Committee of Imperial Defence and a Ministry of Defence, and the question was which kind of organisation would function best in time of war. They could not change this whole organisation on the outbreak of war. A Ministry of Defence would necessarily involve one Minister with responsibilities towards Parliament which very few people would care to assume. It was parliamentary responsibility that was the controlling consideration in this matter.

Under the bill the Minister would be responsible for the whole supply and equipment of all the services, as well as for a number of miscellaneous duties. He would have to draw up the ultimate operational plans for a future war and think out every problem of world strategy.

Sir Murray Sueter—He would have a Council to help him.

Lord Eustace Percy said that that did not meet the point, which was that while it would be difficult for such an executive organisation to function in time of peace, it could not function in time of war. The Minister would have no right to issue executive orders, and the result might well be that the three services would be operating plans without being able to change them in any respect. In time of war new services would have to be created, and the only way that that could be done was through the Committee of Imperial Defence as it now existed.

The question arose, of course, whether the Committee of Imperial Defence was the right kind of organisation. It might be urged that it required strengthening and development, but these were questions which he did not wish to predetermine. Co-ordination between the services already existed to a far greater extent than many members perhaps realised. It was no

FLIGHT OF CHINESE

FAR EASTERN WAR SCARE

JAPANESE GARRISON REINFORCED

THE fear that general warfare may break out between Soviet and Japanese-Manchukuo forces in the disputed border territory of Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia, where a nine hours' battle took place on Wednesday between a mixed Japanese-Manchukuo force and Outer Mongols, was revealed yesterday in messages from Dairen, Manchuria and Tokyo, stating:—

(1) That the Japanese are sending reinforcements to the Japanese garrison at Tsitsihar, the nearest big military centre to the disputed border territory; and

(2) That the Chinese are hurriedly leaving Manchukuo for China.

A Shanghai message says that the effect of the war fever in Manchukuo can be seen in the flight of panic-stricken Chinese, with whom all trains leaving Manchukuo for China are crammed to capacity. In Harbin, always a hot-bed of war scares, an association has been formed to give anti-air raid training, while a report from Hailar speaks of the tension in the Japanese-Manchukuo garrison there "on account of the close proximity of the war zone."

On the other hand, Major-General Doihara, the Japanese "stormy petrel," whose coup in 1931 is believed to have led to the independence of Manchukuo, discounted, in an interview with Reuter's Correspondent at Peiping, the gravity of the situation, ascribing the Manchu-Mongol incidents solely to the fact that the frontier had never clearly been defined.

Nevertheless, observers fear that any large scale attempt to eject the Outer Mongolians from the disputed areas may cause the present trouble to become something more than a mere incident.

SPAIN'S ROYAL GRANDCHILD

EX-KING AND QUEEN MEET AGAIN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Friday.

Ex-King Alfonso of Spain and the ex-Queen Victoria Eugenie met to-day in the Anglo-American nursing home in which their daughter, Princess Beatrice Torlonia, gave birth to a daughetr. The Queen was at the nursing home several hours before the child was born.

King Alfonso arrived shortly after the event. When he was shown into the room to see his daughter and his first grandchild the Queen was already at Princess Torlonia's bedside.

In the course of the afternoon King Alfonso was in and out of the room several times, each time meeting the Queen, but it is not known whether they took the opportunity of talking together. Queen Eleanor of Italy was with the ex-Queen of Spain most of the time.

Mother and baby are doing well. The baby is of average weight, has blue eyes and is said to take after her grandmother.

ATTACKED BY EPIDEMIC

PLIGHT OF SNOW-BOUND FILM FOLK

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TAHOE, Friday.

Mary Astor, the film star, who, with a number of other film workers, was attacked by a mysterious epidemic while working on a film at Brookway, in the Sierra Mountains, is now too ill to continue work, and has been ordered to be taken down to Reno by ambulance. The 150 other members of the film unit are preparing to abandon camp and return to Los Angeles.

The film colony had been isolated by snowdrifts up in the mountains,, and no news of their plight had reached the outside world, as the telephone wires have been brought down by the gale. Finally a 'bus driver, after battling through the snow for ten hours, arrived here yesterday, and reported that the director of the company, Mr. Elliott Nugent, was seriously ill, and that Miss Mary Astor and others had also been attacked by the epidemic.

Royal Irish Constabulary Pensions, etc.	£1,578,086

BRITISH REQUEST FOR EXTRADITION

NOTE TO THE FRENCH AUTHORITIES

The British Government, in a Note to the French authorities, yesterday requested the extradition of George Lacroix, alias Edouard Lacroix, and Susan Naylor, alias Susan Bertrand, in connection with the murder at St. Albans of Emile Allard, alias Max Kassel.

The Note, it is learned, was handed to the Quai d'Orsay by Sir George Clerk, British Ambassador in Paris.

In this the French authorities were notified that warrants had been issued in Great Britain for the arrest of Lacroix for the alleged murder of Allard, and for the arrest of the woman Naylor, who is alleged to have been an accessory after the fact.

The Note further adds that, should the French Government feel precluded from extraditing Lacroix and Naylor, on the ground that they regard them as French Nationals, the British authorities would give the French every assistance if steps were taken to bring Lacroix and Naylor to trial by the proper French authority.

THE RIGHT TO VOTE

SOUTH AFRICAN BILL

DISFRANCHISEMENT OF NATIVES

REPRESENTATIVE COUNCIL AS ALTERNATIVE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Friday.

THE Representation of the Natives Bill passed its first reading at a joint sitting of the House of Assembly and the Senate to-day by 116 votes to 16.

The bill proposes to discontinue the enfranchisement of the natives of the Cape Province, who are the only natives having the right to vote, and to divide the Union into four huge electoral divisions for the election of a Native Representative Council.

Native rights are protected by entrenched clauses in the Act of Union, and a two-thirds majority of both Houses of Parliament sitting together, is necessary to alter them.

The joint sitting of the House of Assembly and the Senate will last a fortnight, during which time the House of Assembly is suspending all other business.

The Executive of the All-African Convention is opposing uncompromisingly the abolition of the native vote in Cape Province, requesting that that vote should be retained in its present form and extended to the African people of the Transvaal, Natal, and Orange Free State.

The Executive is in favour of a solution of the problem by means of a Round Table Conference between representatives of the white and black races.

FASCISM OR MARXISM?

SPAIN MUST CHOOSE

ISSUES IN SUNDAY'S ELECTION

GOVERNMENT TAKES PRECAUTIONS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MADRID, Friday.

THE people of Spain go to the polls on Sunday, faced with the choice, in the view of the most of them, between Marxism and a Catholic-Fascist regimé.

A bitter campaign, lasting six weeks, has been fought out between two great organisations, the "Popular Front" and the "National Counter-Revolutionary Front." They have hurled insults at each other and issued hair-raising warnings to the country.

Grim posters depicting brutalities which each side alleges against the other blazon streets.

During these anxious weeks the Government has sternly maintained order in all parts of the country, the police having been given the strictest instructions. They will be everywhere on Sunday.

DESTROYERS READY

Civic Guards and reinforcements of shock troops have been sent to the south region of Gibraltar and two destroyers are specially stationed at Algeciras. Troops in the region will be confined to barracks during the day.

If in any of the seventy-two constituencies on Sunday the winning party does not have forty per cent. of the votes—a second ballot will be held in the constituency on March 1st. Parliament will meet on March 16th and objective opinion is that then the two great bodies of the Left and Right will break up into their component parties.

A "National Counter-Revolutionary Front," with its 300 candidates, comprises members of the C.E.D.A. (Catholic-Fascist group), Monarchists, Radicals and Independents, all under the leadership for election purposes of the young and energetic Señor Gil Robles.

ALTERNATIVES

Results in the last elections to the Cortes, at the end of 1933, were:—Right, 208; Centre, 140; Left, 107.

With the disappearance of the Centre, chances this time are altered. Odds are short on either side in the great struggle between Left and Right.

CONGRATULATIONS TO PIUS XI.

FOURTEENTH YEAR AS POPE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VATICAN CITY, Friday.

Pius XI. to-day celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of his accession to the Papacy. He received many telegrams of congratulation, including one from King Victor Emanuel.

Pius XI. will be 79 next May. Visitors to the Vatican say that he appears to be in excellent health.

ANOTHER FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ESPINAL (VOSGES), Friday.

The British airman, Mr. C. M. C. Turner, who left Lympne at 11.05 this morning on the first lap of a flight to Australia, landed at the aerodrome here at 5 o'clock this afternoon. On landing, Mr. Turner said that he had intended to land at Lyons, but lost his way.

The local police authorities are inquiring into his arrival, and Mr. Turner will not be allowed to proceed on his journey until to-morrow. No reason has been given for the inquiry, but it presumably arises from the fact that Epinal is the centre of a fortified area.

ATTACK ON INDIANS

MISTAKEN FOR ABYSSINIANS

CONGRESS CENSURE OF ITALY'S "BRIGANDAGE"

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW DELHI, Friday.

RECENT incidents, in which the Indian Trade Commissioner was insulted in the streets of Milan, were revealed at question time in the Legislative Assembly to-day.

Sir Aubrey Metcalfe, the Foreign Secretary, said that on one occasion when the ladies and children of the household of Mr. M. R. Ahuja, the Trade Commissioner, and of Mr. Sen, an official attached to the Commissioner's office, went out a small crowd of young Italians gathered round and followed them, calling them Abyssinians, singing war songs, shouting slogans and using abusive language. On another occasion stones were thrown at the party, children spat at them, and stones and rubbish were thrown into Mr. Sen's apartments.

The Italian police authorities, it was stated, subsequently offered protection to Mr. Ahuja, but the offer was declined, as no further incidents occurred, and the families of Mr. Ahuja and of Mr. Sen left Italy.

NO PROTEST

Answering supplementary questions, Sir Aubrey Metcalfe said that the question of making a definite protest to the Italian Government was carefully considered, but later dropped at Mr. Ahuja's own request.

Congress members of the Assembly, seizing their first opportunity to discuss foreign affairs to-day, supported a motion to take consideration of a bill prohibiting loans and credits to Italy. Ordinarily discussion of foreign affairs is barred by the Standing Orders of the Assembly.

The motion was introduced by the Finance Member (Sir Percy Grigg), who pointed out that the Viceroy's ordinance would lapse in May, and the Abyssinian war was not expected to finish by then. Therefore, legislation was needed.

MUST BE PUNISHED

Mr. S. Satyamurti said that he supported the bill only because Italy's brigandage must be punished, and Abyssinia must be assured of Indian support. He felt, at the same time, that as long as the British held possessions like India and Egypt other nations would be provoked to do the same.

Mr. F. E. James (Madras European) contended that the British Empire was the greatest force for peace in the world, and rebutted the Congress members' attack on British motives.

ENGLISHMAN'S BIG FORTUNE

LEGACIES TO IRISH RELIGIOUS ORDER

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BUENOS AIRES, Friday.

The Courts have been asked to grant probate of the will of Mr. John Oswald Hall, for half a century one of the leading Argentine importers, who died on January 5, leaving an immense fortune, which has not yet been calculated.

Mr. Hall, who was born in Stratford-on-Avon in 1849, was the owner of the best collection of orchids in South America.

Among the bequests in his will are:—

150,000 pesos to Sister Mary Bertha, Carmelite nun at Chichester, to pass to the Mother Superior of the convent if she should have predeceased him;

40,000 pesos to his cousins resident in Tasmania;

60,000 pesos to the sons of James Austin Brown;

12,000 pesos to the Redemptorist Fathers of Dundalk, and the same amount to the Redemptorists of Limerick;

50,000 pesos to the British Government, 25,000 pesos to the Italian Government, and 25,000 pesos to the Belgian Government, all for the victims of the World War; and 200,000 pesos and his mansion for a fund to maintain a School of Botany at Buenos Aires.

The will contains a long list of other gifts filling a column in the newspapers, and makes his sister the residuary legatee.

[The present rate of exchange is about 18 pesos to the pound.]

EYSTON'S FIVE RECORDS

NEARLY 100 M.P.H. WITH DIESEL CAR

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MONTLHERY, Friday.

Captain G. E. T. Eyston, driving a four-seater streamlined saloon car, fitted with an engine identical with those now being used by the London omnibuses, has, after seven hours' driving, made five new records. Eyston is on an attempt to beat the 24-hours' record for Diesel-engined cars. The new records he has made are as follow:—

50 kilometres, 98.751 m.p.h.
500 miles, 98.296 m.p.h.
Three hours, 98.794 m.p.h.
Six hours, 98.495 m.p.h.

Captain Eyston's speed for the 50 kilometres beats the record he himself made on January 4, when his speed was 98.68 m.p.h.

FOG IN IRISH SEA

SHIPPING HAMPERED

A dense fog enshrouded the South Wexford coast yesterday evening and hampered shipping off the Tuskar Rock Lighthouse. Where the busy lanes of Channel and trans-Atlantic shipping converge numerous steamers found progress almost impossible.

Incoming steamers to Rosslare Harbour report that the fog belt stretched right across the Irish Sea, and that at times visibility was reduced to one hundred yards. Fog signals on the Wexford coast and on lighthouses and the lightships had to be kept going continuously.

SIX DEAD IN SOUTH AMERICAN STRIKE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CARACAS, Friday

Six persons have been killed and many wounded here, following upon the declaration of a general strike this morning as a protest against a decree establishing a Press censorship in Venezuela.

All public services have been suspended, and newspapers, trams, telephone services and commercial houses have stopped work. The city has been under the control of the mob all day.

WITHOUT SLEEP FOR SEVEN DAYS

LIGHTSHIP CREW'S ORDEAL

LIFEBOAT'S FINE FEAT

WEARY MEN TAKEN FROM TOSSING SHIP

THE Irish Lights steamer Isolda, with new equipment aboard, arrived off Cork Harbour yesterday morning, but owing to bad weather could not approach near enough to take the Daunt's Rock lightship—which was driven from its moorings during the storm—in tow into port, where transference of the new cable and anchor will be effected, probably to-day, should the weather be favourable.

Yesterday the wind was blowing with gale force, and, with heavy seas again running off the harbour, it was decided that the weary lightship crew should leave the vessel. The Ballycotton lifeboat, which has been on duty for seventy hours—the longest period of duty in her career—was requested to go alongside, a manœuvre calling for seamanship of the highest order. One moment the little craft was borne high on the crest of a wave, and the next she had sunk from sight in its trough, and gradually she worked away alongside.

CREW TAKEN OFF

The lightship men then had to watch their opportunity and make a desperate leap for their lives. In doing so two of the men received injuries, J. MacCarthy, of Cork, sustaining abrasions to his leg, whilst J. Murphy, of Wexford, received a nasty gash, some three inches in length, on the right cheek. In twenty minutes the men were safe, and at 9 o'clock the lifeboat set out for Cove, where she arrived at 11 p.m.

Here the men were met by Dr. J. J. O'Connor (Cove), who, having attended to the injuries of MacCarthy and Murphy, later had the pair removed to the Cove General Hospital.

A TIME OF TERROR

The men all agree it has been the most terrifying experience, and one which they will never forget. For seven days they have been without sleep, snatching a bite of food as and when the circumstances permitted. Day after day huge seas have washed their vessel from stem to stern, drenching them to the skin and endeavouring to pound their vessel to destruction against the grim and forbidding rocks of Robert's Cove.

On Monday last the gale, which had been raging for a week, reached hurricane force, and at 1.0 a.m. on Tuesday the cable, of which 190 feet had been run out, snapped, and they began to drift dangerously on to the treacherous rocks. They worked frantically to run their second cable out. On the first attempt the anchor fouled, and they had sufficient compressed air to bring it aboard and free it. To their great joy the anchor took a firm hold of the ground at the second attempt, they being then less than half a mile from shore.

SIGNAL AND REPLY

Next a distress signal, S.O.S., Daunts Rock, was tapped out, and subsequently picked up by the German tug, Seefalke, racing 37 miles away towards the disabled British freighter, Baron Graham, which was in danger of being washed ashore on the Waterford coast. The tug wirelessed the pilot cutter on duty at Cove, and less than half-an-hour later the tug was hit by a huge sea, which damaged her bridge, wheelhouse, etc., and put her steamer steering gear and wireless out of action, forcing her to return to port.

The tug's message was first answered by the Cork-Fishguard steamer, Innisfallen, on her way from the Munster port, and she and the British destroyer, Tenedos, raced out to render assistance. For 24 hours the Tenedos stood by until relieved by the Ballycotton lifeboat, which kept watch for another twenty-four hours.

The men expressed their great appreciation of the kindly act of the Commanders of the Innisfallen and Tenedos, and also the coxswain of the Ballycotton lifeboat, which stood by them and gave them every assistance possible. At one time on Wednesday, when the services of a tug could not be procured, the Tenedos came up and passed across a 2½ inch wire hawser, with which she attempted to take the vessel into port, but this proved unequal to the strain imposed upon it by the plunging vessels and snapped like thread.

THIRD ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Murphy, an ex-naval man, seemingly bears a charmed life, for this is his third escape from death at sea. He was a member of the crew of the British warship sunk by the liner St. Paul off the Isle of Wight twenty-six years ago. He served throughout the war, taking part in the Dogger and Jutland engagements. Three weeks after the latter fight he was aboard the cruiser Nottingham when the vessel was sunk. He, with six others, climbed aboard a raft, but his companions had to let go before the arrival of the rescuing vessel one hour later, and of the seven he alone was saved.

The crew will set out for their vessel in the Isolda at 8.30 a.m. to-day. The latter will tow the lightship into the more placid waters of Cork Harbour where the new gear will be transferred, and the lightship is expected to be back at her charted position this evening. The Ballycotton lifeboat returned yesterday morning to its station, having been on continuous duty since Monday night. Its crew deserve the highest possible praise for the highly efficient manner in which they have performed their duty.

Yesterday morning members of the crew of the Irish Lights vessel Isolda observed two bodies, apparently of seamen, fully clad, with lifebelts attached, floating in the water close in to Roberts Cove, not far from the lightship. It is believed that they are from some unknown vessel which was wrecked off the Southern coast in the recent gales.

DUCHESS OF ST. ALBANS "OUT OF DANGER"

The Duchess of St. Albans, who last week was suffering from pneumonia at her Irish home, Newtown Anner, Co. Tipperary, was reported yesterday to be "considered out of danger." She was said to have shown a further great improvement during the day.

THE LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION

GREAT WORK OF DUBLIN BRANCH

LADIES' GUILD THANKED

THE splendid work which is being done by the members of the Dublin Ladies' Lifeboat Guild of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was referred to at the annual meeting, which was held in the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin, yesterday evening.

The Contessa van Cutsem (President) presided, and there was a large attendance.

At the commencement of the proceedings those present stood in silence for a few moments as a tribute to the memory of the Institution's late patron, King George V.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

The President said that the whole world had been profoundly moved by the death of the King. Every nation including their own, had paid the highest tributes to his character as a man and as a ruler, and she felt sure that they all appreciated the motion of sympathy moved in the Dail recently by President de Valera, to whom, with Mrs. de Valera, they extended their sincere sympathy in their tragic bereavement.

"The Ladies' Lifeboat Guild are proud to have Queen Mary as their patroness. To-day I have the honour of reading Her Majesty's gracious reply to my message of sympathy, forwarded on your behalf: 'I am commanded to convey to you and all who joined in your message the Queen's sincere thanks for those kind words of sympathy.' Our hearts must go out to the Queen in her great sorrow. May we respond by loyal service.

THE BRANCH'S WORK

"I wish to congratulate all present on the magnificent work achieved last year, which must have been greatly encouraged by the presence and enthusiastic speeches of Sir Godfrey Baring and Colonel Satterthwaite at the last annual meeting.

Now, may I conclude with these words of King Edward the Eighth when as Prince of Wales he said:—'There is nothing in our long and splendid history of which we are more proud than the lifeboat service.'"

RECORD COLLECTION

Moving the adoption of the annual report, the President said that the Committee were pleased to announce a record collection, the actual figures for the past three years being: 1933, £257 5s. 3d.; 1934, £293 11s. 4d.; and 1935, £298 1s. 8d. That excellent result was achieved mainly through the ladies' house-to-house collection and with a minimum of expense. In no other way could that particular addition to the funds have been realised. The fund was augmented also substantially by the results of the lifeboat ball held in the Gresham Hotel and the play at the Peacock Theatre. Their warmest thanks were heartily extended to the Ladies' Guild for the splendid results realised. The Committee again earnestly appealed for additional lady helpers, there being still very considerable areas untouched within the Greater Dublin boundary, and it was hoped that it might be possible to secure the services of at least fifty ladies in the present year.

Continuing, the President said:—"I wish 1935 to be remembered specially as the year of the Silver Jubilee. This is emphasised in the Royal lovers' knot, representing the 25 happy years of the late King George's and Queen Mary's devoted service to their people. The encircling laurel wreath, the symbol of heroism, is in honour of those who gave their lives for their fellow-men at sea, for 'no greater love hath any man than he who layeth down his life for another.'"

The President then presented the "Grace Darling" brooch to Mrs. W. T. Callaghan, the members of the Ladies' Guild who secured the highest collection for 1935 in the Dublin district.

Seconding the motion for the adoption of the report, the Lord Mayor of Dublin said that, in comparing the support of the lifeboat service with other cities across the water, and even in Northern Ireland, he was more than gratified to find that Dublin held its head high, and it was with great pleasure he learned that in the whole of Ireland the City of Dublin heads the list.

In this great work they recognised no division of their country, and he could only hope that Dublin would long continue to show the best return in the whole of Ireland for the support of their own lifeboat men, be they Northerners or Southerners.

The report was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Charles J. Dunlop proposed "That the outgoing Committee be re-elected—the Contessa van Cutsem, President, and the General Committee—with power to add to their number."

Seconding, Major Arthur Whewell, Chairman of the Special Effort Committee, said that the City of Dublin held a very great position in the annual collections made throughout Great Britain and the Free State. They were the seventh in that regard in the area. He thought that was a wonderful record.

Paying a tribute to their President, he said that she was wonderfully active in the cause of the Society.

The motion was adopted with acclamation, and the President returned thanks.

THE SERVICE

Commander E. D. Drury, O.B.E., R.D., R.N.R., Chief Inspector of Lifeboats, addressed the meeting on the work of the lifeboat service. He said that they had a coastline of something like six thousand miles in the Free State and the British Isles. Dealing with the work of the district inspector, he said that they found considerable difficulty in regard to the language.

The lifeboats, he said, always carried chocolate and biscuits, which were supplied free. They also carried a quart bottle of rum, and he might say that it was very seldom that this bottle was broached until it should have been. That spoke well for the type of men that they had in the service all round the coast. The buscuits were provided by Messrs. Jacobs, and when one stock was finished all they had to do was to ask for a further supply.

The service in Ireland was second to none. The boats always were kept in perfect order. Indeed, it was always difficult to discover anything wrong with them during inspection. They received a lot of help from the Civic Guards and the Coast Life Saving Service, while they also were given help from the Minister for Industry and Commerce in connection with Customs. The service in Ireland tried to purchase all the articles they could in the Free State. Sometimes there was difficulty in purchasing articles here, but they made the purchases in the Free State when it was possible.

The President said Commander Drury's address would give them great encouragement to carry on their work during 1936.

LADIES' GUILD THANKED

Captain J. H. Webb, R.N.R., proposed: "That the best thanks of this meeting be tendered to the Ladies' Guild and organisers, who contributed to the success of the 1935 collection." He said that the essence of success in all such work could be traced to the ladies. He thought that the Lifeboat Institution did not get the help it should receive from the men.

Mr. T. L. M. Fuge, the Irish Organising Secretary of the Institution, seconding the resolution, said that, while thanking them for their wonderful work, he begged them to remember their lady chairman's words to try and bring in another fifty ladies to help them in the coming year.

In the last three years the Dublin branch had no less than five valuable legacies. He paid a tribute to the work of the staff in the offices of the institution.

Vice-Admiral Craig Waller, supporting, said that he thought there was nothing in which he was more interested, or which was more worthy of support, than that institution. It was one of the finest services in the world, and tended to hold them all together.

NEW BOAT FOR HOWTH

Elizabeth Countess of Fingall proposed a vote of thanks to the Contessa van Cutsem for presiding, and to Commander Drury for his address. She said that she wanted to thank her friend, their Chairman, for all she had done for the institution. When she thought about the amount of work that the Contessa van Cutsem had done she felt ashamed of her own failings in that respect. She also thanked Commander Drury for his inspiring address.

The President said that she wished to thank the Countess of Fingall for her kind remarks. They would be pleased to learn that the Countess would be present at their functions during the year.

Commander Drury, in responding, said that one of their latest type of boats would be placed at Howth during this year. Ireland, therefore, was not left behind, but rather was in advance of many other districts.

The resolution was passed with acclamation.

The President presented a life-boat picture to Miss Rose Chapman, Hon. Secretary, North Westmeath branch of the Royal National Life-boat Institution, in recognition of valuable service rendered over several years.

DOUBLE MURDER CHARGE

TWO PERSONS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Nurse Dorothea Nancy Waddingham (34) and Ronald Joseph Sullivan (41) were, at Nottingham yesterday, committed for trial charged with the murders of Mrs. Louisa Baguley, an 87-year-old widow, and her 50-year-old daughter, Miss Ada Louisa Baguley.

They pleaded not guilty, and reserved their defence.

The trial will take place at Nottingham Assizes, which open next Wednesday.

The two magistrates retired after Mr. William Smith, defending, had submitted in a long review of the evidence that there was no case for the defence to answer. They were absent for nearly an hour.

Mr. Smith applied for a Poor Prisoner's Defence Certificate, and the Bench allotted two counsel to each prisoner.

Sullivan and Waddingham stood quietly in the dock while the formalities were completed, and had a brief conversation with their solicitors before being taken below.

The hearing at the Police Court lasted seven days. Mrs. Baguley and her daughter died at the nursing home at Devon Drive, Sherwood, Nottingham, which Waddingham and Sullivan conducted. The prosecution allege that two women were poisoned.

In his submission for the defence, Mr. Smith said that the organs of Miss Baguley were mixed up in tins, on which there were no identification marks or labels. "Mr. W. W. Taylor, the Notts. City Analyst, does say this, and I think it is one of the most important points I can raise: 'I cannot say that the organs I examined and in which I found 3.192 grains of morphia are the organs of Miss Ada Baguley.'

"Then Dr. Taylor also says he cannot say of his own knowledge that the organs were the organs of Ada Baguley. In these two sentences I submit that the whole of the case for the prosecution fails."

A SACRISTAN'S RESIDENCE

EXEMPTION FROM RATES CLAIM

The question as to whether the residences of Sacristans, built on the grounds of Roman Catholic churches, should be exempt from rates was tested at length at Dungannon by the Acting County Court Judge McKean, K.C., when Denis Gallagher, Sacristan of the St. Patrick's Church, Dungannon, appealed for a total exemption from rates on his residence, the valuation of which was assessed at £14 10s.

Mr. McSparran (for the appellant) said that the lodge, which had been built under a subsidy scheme in 1927, was, in his opinion, entitled to exemption, being an adjunct to the church. The building was exempt from income tax on the ground that it was portion of a church hereditament.

Mr. Warnock, Crown Solicitor, contended that there never had been any judicial decision exempting any of the church sacristans' residences. The building must be exclusively used for charitable purposes, and not as a convenience for the parish priest and the sacristan.

Mr. Warnock said the Commissioners of Valuation were prepared to test the case to the full if the decision went against them.

His Honour dismissed the appeal.

LORD BEATTY'S HEALTH

COMPLETE REST ADVISED

The following official statement was issued last night: "Admiral of the Fleet Earl Beatty's health has been unsatisfactory recently, and his doctors have advised complete rest."

Earl Beatty was suffering from a bad cold when he took part in King George's funeral procession. He had been ill for some time, and on the morning of the funeral consulted his doctor before deciding to attend. Last November, when Earl Jellicoe died, Earl Beatty left his sick bed to join in the nation's mourning.

RUMANIA'S GOLD

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BUKHAREST, Friday.

Mining and exporting gold from Rumania as a means of clearing up commercial debts to England has met with keen opposition on the part of the Rumanian National Bank, who have the final word. After interested British and Rumanian authorities had been to the trouble of inspecting established and prospective gold mines in Transylvania it was learned that the bank officials opposed the plan because the bank of issue has its own scheme for encouraging the production of gold, the whole of which is to be retained by the bank.

MOTHER AND CHILD DIE FROM BURNS

The death took place at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast, yesterday evening of Mrs Nellie Clifford, aged 24, of Urney street, Belfast, while her three years old daughter, Rosina, died in the Children's Hospital, Falls road. On Thursday afternoon the child's clothes caught fire, and while the mother was trying to save her both received severe burns.

ITALY CLAIMS SUCCESSES

AND ADMITS A REVERSE

BOMBING 'PLANES KILL CHILDREN

ITALIAN reports from Asmara state that, although the season of the rains in East Africa is still two months ahead, heavy rains have fallen in Eritrea and over Asmara itself.

Yesterday's official Italian war communiqué claims that on the Somali front Italian forces surprised and destroyed a detachment of Abyssinians in retreat from Lama Scillini, and attacked and inflicted heavy losses on a body of Abyssinians near the wells of Bul Bul and Div Div (80 kilometres south-west of Negelli).

The communiqué also admits the capture by the Abyssinians of the observation post at Kurati, in the Ogaden, on February 10th, which was reported from Addis Ababa three days ago.

Abyssinia claimed yesterday that 650 Eritreans had surrendered to Ras Desta, and had been brought to his headquarters with arms and equipment.

'PLANE IN DIFFICULTIES

The Press Association Correspondent at Dessie telegraphs:—

Italian bombers this (Friday) morning paid their now daily visit to Dessie, and were subjected to anti-aircraft fire. One three-engined machine was obviously hit, or developed serious trouble; for it suddenly turned tail and sped off homewards, dropping all its bombs in open fields.

Another bomber cruised around at a great height for an hour and a half, but was prevented by the clouds from seeing any targets without coming sufficiently low to be in range of the guns. It finally flew off without doing any damage.

Before reaching Dessie, however, both 'planes had bombed a village in the Mortho Yesu district and the main road to Dessie. Three children and two peasants were killed.

Reports from the northern front state that Italian 'planes are daily bombing villages with considerable loss of life to men and cattle.

ERITREANS SURRENDER

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

ADDIS ABABA, Friday.

An official statement from Ras Desta reports that 650 Eritreans have surrendered. Three hundred other Eritreans have announced their intention of surrendering, but it seems that they took the wrong road, and it is feared they are lost.

The French Minister, M. Bodard, has informed the Ethiopian Government that allegations made by the chief of the Italian Red Cross, that the French Consul or the French authorities at Harar had stated that the Ethiopians had illegally used Red Cross emblems at Harar, were false. The French Consul or the French authorities, M. Bodard declares, never made any such statement.

In Bali province troops formerly commanded by Ras Desta are flocking to the standard of Dedjasmatch Beyena Mered, whose guerilla tactics are proving very successful, and every day patrols of snipers are killing and wounding a score and upwards of Italians.

BRITISH PROTEST

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ROME, Friday.

It is learned in well-informed political quarters that Sir Eric Drummond made "some observations" to Signor Suvich yesterday regarding the Italian Press reports that Colonel Holt, British Military Attaché in Abyssinia, had acted as the Emperor's adviser in the recent military operations.

Signor Suvich stated that he took note of the British denial, but that the report was a newspaper report from Dessie, and the Italian Government was not responsible for it in any way.

ITALIAN STATEMENT

The Royal Italian Consul-General in Dublin has sent the following statement for publication:—

"The Italian communiqué of the 12th instant reports the discovery of 20,000 Belgian cartridges found on the lorries of the Swedish Red Cross ambulance on the Somaliland front. The Italian authorities desire to point out that the Swedish Minister at Rome addressed a communication to the Italian Government regarding this matter on the 7th instant. The communication, after mentioning the articles left on the lorries by the Swedish members of the ambulance, adds that information which reached the Swedish Government direct, suggests that, after the departure of the Swedish members, the ammunition was loaded on the lorries by the order of Ras Desta."

MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

longer true that the Chiefs of the Staffs' Committee was the only co-ordinating organisation. He suggested that the House would be well advised not to take a formal vote on this bill.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN'S ANXIETY

Sir Austen Chamberlain also expressed the hope that the House would not be forced to come to a decision to-day. There had been a useful and most interesting debate. The sequel would come when the Government fixed a day for a discussion on defence at large, and when they had laid their proposals before the House.

He was not surprised at the anxiety which had been felt in many quarters. They had experienced shocks in recent times for which they were wholly unprepared, and which made them wonder whether they would be repeated in circumstances more critical. He agreed with Lord Eustace Percy in thinking that it did not need the creation of a Ministry of Defence to deal with existing and future problems. He would regard with dismay the creation of a Ministry of Defence, not merely because he thought it would place an intolerable burden on the shoulders of one man, but because it would lessen almost to vanishing point what it was vital to preserve—the undiminished responsibility of the civilian heads of the three services. The Prime Minister's own speeches in relation to German rearmament were a justification for demanding changes, so as to prevent a recurrence of those errors as a consequence of which the Prime Minister had twice within the last two years stood at the Table of the House and asked for pardon.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE DEFENCE DEBATE

The Times, commenting in a leading article to-day on the debate on Sir Murray Sueter's bill, says: The first lesson of yesterday's debate is that disquiet concerning the present lack of co-ordination in our defences is now general. It is not a very long step forward to agreement, that lack of co-ordination has helped to maintain deficiencies in the equipment of the Services themselves, which must now be made good, and there will, at least, be more sound than fury in whatever criticism may be excited by proposals for the repair of those deficiencies. Nothing can take the sting out of future opposition more than willing attention by the Government to the points upon which such remarkable unanimity was displayed yesterday. They cannot, in the first place, mistake the uneasiness of the whole House, nor the force of the criticism which Sir Austen Chamberlain, for example, directed against the existing machinery for the shaping of plans of national defence.

In the second place, the Government cannot mistake the express desires of the whole House. There is far less alarm at the projected total of expenditure than at the possibility of waste in the sense that money misdirected will buy neither efficiency nor security. This alarm has bred a close scrutiny of the existing organisation of defence, and has hardly been allayed by disclosures of the inhibitions which the present system is bound to place upon the work of the Chief of Staff's Sub-committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence.

OBITUARY

JUDGE ST. LAWRENCE DEVITT

His Honour Judge St. Lawrence Devitt, Circuit Court Judge for the Counties of Louth, Meath, Kildare, Wicklow and Wexford, died, after a lengthy illness, at his residence, 11 Herbert road, Sandymount, Dublin, yesterday, aged 58. A native of Newbridge, County Kildare, Judge Devitt was educated at Belvedere College, and graduated at the Royal University of Ireland, taking the degrees of B.A. and LL.B. In 1901 he was called to the Bar, and soon enjoyed a large practice in the Leinster Circuit. When the late Mr. Justice O'Connor was Attorney-General Mr. Devitt acted as his junior counsel. On the establishment of the Irish Free State Mr. Devitt was appointed a Commissioner of the Dail Courts, and in 1924 he became Circuit Judge for the Counties of Donegal, Leitrim, Cavan and Monaghan, being transferred four years later as Judge for the Eastern Circuit. A painstaking and courteous judge, he was esteemed for his erudition, being considered an authority on equity.

SIR WILLIAM FORBES

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir William Forbes died at his home in Maida Vale yesterday at the age of 79, says The Times to-day. He played a part in railway development in the South of England, and was general manager of the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway until it was amalgamated with the London and South-Western and the South-Eastern and Chatham to form the Southern Railway. William de Guise Forbes was born in Dublin on June 21, 1856. His father was then general manager of the Midland Great Western Railway of Ireland. Mr. Stanhope Forbes, R.A., is his younger brother. After an education at Dulwich College and on the Continent, where he gained proficiency in French and German, William Forbes, in 1873, began his professional career under his uncle, Mr. James Staats Forbes, who was then general manager of the London, Chatham and Dover Railway. The work with which Forbes will be specially associated is the scheme of electrification which was begun during his régime, and which has since been so profitably developed.

BANDMASTER PATRICK RYAN

The death took place in Manchester on Tuesday, February 11, of Bandmaster Patrick Ryan, late of the Royal Irish Fusiliers. A native of Kerry, he was well known in many parts of Ireland for his activities in connection with music, and was the father of Pat Ryan, the famous clarinet player of the B.B.C., Manchester.

COMPULSORY IRISH

LAW STUDENTS' DEBATE

BARRISTERS WHO DISAGREE

THAT instead of the transplanting of native Irish speakers in Meath the English speakers in the Breac-Gaeltacht should be transplanted, was the novel suggestion put forward by Mr. John J. Durcan, M.A., B.Comm., Auditor, at the inaugural meeting of the 106th session of the Law Students' Debating Society, which was held at King's Inns, Dublin, last night, Mr. Justice FitzGibbon (President) presiding.

Mr. Durcan, who was speaking on the 'Irish revival," said that there was a necessity of restoring the Irish language if they were to avoid being regarded as a "pocket edition" of another nation. The Universities at present were turning out men for the various professions without making any effort to have them Irish-speaking. While these influential persons retain English as the spoken tongue the masses would follow their example.

There was a need for compulsion in Universities, while at the same time there was a need for an authorised dictionary of technical terms. The basic factor in the language restoration problem was the Gaeltacht, the economic problem of which is bound up inseparably with the linguistic question. Prevention of emigration had increased migration to England and Scotland, and the result was detrimental to the retention of Irish as a speaking medium there. He suggested a concentration on one area, such as Connaught, over which the present Connemara Gaeltacht could be enlarged by a system of transplanting as suggested above

COMPULSION

"If," he said, "we are sincere in our ambition of restoring the Irish language we must be prepared to submit to compulsion in all schools and the universities, and prevent the departure of Irish pupils to schools in England. A definite inquiry into the matter is desirable, and a definite policy should be decided on."

Mr. Durcan said that, instead of assisting in the development of Irish, the universities were definitely retarding it.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., proposed that the Auditor was deserving of the best thanks of the Society for his address. He said that at the moment no potent body of public opinion in this country, no legislative assembly would for a moment either call a halt or fail to intensify the Gaelic drive, whether by organised or voluntary effort, or by compulsion. There was no weakening in the Gaelic movement; it was getting stronger every day. Referring to the fact that with certain statutory exceptions young men and women seeking qualification as solicitors must pass an Irish test, he said that he thought it would be well if other licensing bodies might take that lesson and realise that if they continued refusing to demand a knowledge of Irish from their students they would act unwisely in their own interests and in the interests of the students.

Mr. Basil McGuckin, K.C., seconding, said that there was not a paragraph in the whole address of the Auditor with which he did not disagree. He suggested that the Irish language should be discussed more as a subsidiary matter than as a matter of primary importance. He agreed that if it were possible they should all speak the Irish tongue, but no one was less an Irishman by saying, "first let us be educated; and, secondly, let us speak any language we like." It was idle that young children during their all too few years at school instead of imbibing knowledge quickly should have to learn through a medium which increased their difficulties. Those who were inherently good Irishmen claimed that their children should be brought up in knowledge and in honesty. At present their children should be taught through the language they themselves knew. He believed that the heart of civilisation lay not in the universities but in the homes of the country.

THE PLACE TO LEARN

Mr. Michael Hayes, barrister-at-law, former Speaker of the Dail, proposing that the Society was deserving of support, said that Irish could be learned only in a country place and through talking with country people who spoke their natural language. The principle of compulsion was not a bad one, but compulsion would be an entire failure unless it excited an interest in Irish and a desire to learn it.

Mr. E. O'Mahony, who seconded, said that the first reason why they should stick by the Irish language was because they could not get a job without it. He appealed to the Minister for Justice to provide that Irish interpreters would be available in all their courts. He had seen the travestry of justice of the uncle of a plantiff translating a defendant's evidence voluntarily in the courts.

Mr. Justice Fitzgibbon said that even if they never saw Irish spoken throughout the length and breadth of the country they could still claim to be a nation by tradition. In regard to the language revival's effect on the legal profession, he said that it was no use beginning at the top. That had been tried unsuccessfully by the Normans when they had come to Britain and brought with them their French-speaking judges and lawyers. Eventually the work of the courts had to be carried on in the language that the common people understood. When the people, whose servants they were, called upon them to plead and adjudge their cases in the language they understood the lawyers and judges would have to do it or get out; but so long as the juries who were trying the cases, and so long as the people whose cases were being pleaded understood the other language better than Irish, they, in their duty to their clients or their litigants, would have to see that cases were conducted in the language that was best calculated to do justice to everyone.

The President presented the following awards:—Oratory—Fitzgibbon Gold Medal, J. J. Duncan; David Lynch Silver Medal, S. V. Kirkpatrick; Certificate, J. B. Jennings. Legal Debate—Plunket Gold Medal, P. J. Tynan (barrister); Plunket Silver Medal, J. B. Jennings.

MURDER CHARGE

LIMERICK, Friday.

At Limerick District Court to-day William Reilly, travelling tinker, was returned for trial on a charge of murdering John Dundon, his father-in-law, at Tully, Newport, in January.

Dr. Coffey and Dr. Murray stated that death was due to cerebral hæmorrhage, caused by a wound at the back of the head.

Margaret Dundon, widow of the deceased man, said that a row developed between her husband and the accused man. Reilly had an ashplant in his hand, and she heard sounds and strokes, but did not see them delivered. Her husband fell to the ground.

John Dundon, son of the deceased man, stated that he saw Reilly strike his father.

Denis Ryan, manager, Newport Creamery, stated that when passing the tinkers' camp a row was going on. Reilly had his coat off.

AIR "TRAIN" PILOTED BY WOMEN

The Moscow Regional Council of Osoaviakhim (the Society for Air and Chemical Defence) is organising a high altitude flight of an air "train" to be piloted by women.

The flight will take place at the end of this month. The "train" will consist of an aeroplane of the P-5 type and two gliders of the G-9 type. The pilot of the aeroplane, the mechanic, and the pilots of the gliders will all be women.

The route will be Moscow-Tula-Kaluga-Moscow, and the flight will take place at an altitude of three to five thousand metres. This is the first world attempt to fly an air train at such a high altitude. Taking part in the flight will also be the famous woman gliding pilot, Zelenkova, who set up a world record last summer for a continuous flight in a two-seater glider.

ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY EXHIBITION

THOROUGHBREDS AND CLYDESDALES

JUDGES' COMMENTS ON THE ANIMALS

BELFAST, Friday.

THERE was a fine display of Clydesdale stallions at the annual exhibition of thoroughbreds and Clydesdales of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, at the Show grounds, Balmoral, to-day. It was the biggest show of Clydesdales yet held in Belfast, and, in view of the greater demand for draught horses, attracted considerable interest. There was a total of fifty-one entries in the two Clydesdale classes, and sixteen in the class for thoroughbred stallions.

The exhibition was also held for the purpose of selecting animals for premiums under the Horse Breeding Scheme, 1936, of the Northern Ministry of Agriculture, and awarding prizes.

THE JUDGES

The judges were as follows:—

Stewards—Mr. John Warwick (Chief). Thoroughbreds—Messrs. Hugh Brown, J.P., and George S. Reade, J.P. Clydesdales—Messrs. James King and Arthur Lavery.

Excellent arrangements were made for the exhibition by Mr. S. Clarke, Manager and Secretary of the Society.

JUDGE'S COMMENTS

Mr. Robert Park, who judged the Clydesdale stallions, said that the Clydesdale section was very good, but he thought the exhibition could be improved by the introduction of younger animals. The age of many of the exhibits ranged from 9 to 16 years, and many of them had been appearing at the show for several years. The first four or five in both classes were especially good. The horse which was awarded the championship, Meath Park Balmoral, owned by H. R. Morrison, Meath Park Stud, Aghadowey, County Derry, was first in its class and reserved champion last year. He is a very thick, big horse with especially good use of his limbs and of the true Clydesdale type.

The second prize winner, Linneymore Jack-in-the-Box, owned by James A. Duncan, Lennymore, Crumlin, County Antrim, is a great big, useful horse of large size. The third animal, Balgray Marcellus, owned by John Deans, Terrydremond, Limavady, is from the same sire as the leader, Scotland's Marcellus, and is a very fine horse, but just lacks a little in size.

Mr. John Kernoghan, M.R.C.V.S., stated that the thoroughbreds were all animals of fairly uniform quality, and were shown in good condition. The horse that had been placed first in the class, Oojah, had been imported last year by Mr. Thomas Lindsay, Derryboy, Crossgar. "He is," Mr. Kernoghan commented, "a very nice horse, of good size, and moves well. He has good limbs and feet. The animal placed second, Dispositor, owned by Mr. John Bamber, Ballymena, is a very massive horse, up to more weight than the first prize winner. Blunderer, owned by Mr. F. J. Hamilton, Banbridge, Co. Down, which was placed third, was a winner at the Show for the previous two years. He has good, strong bone, but does not stand as well on his front legs as did the first and second winners. As a matter of fact the winners are types of sires that should produce good hunters, and that is what we want in this part of the country."

JUDGE'S DEMONSTRATION

At the close of the judging, Mr. Park gave a demonstration on the Clydesdale horse in the sale ring. He took as his subject the championship horse, and referred to the outstanding points in this animal. He pointed out the methods by which the standard of Clydesdales in Northern Ireland, already high, might be further improved. Just as it was necessary to import and develop good bulls for Aberdeen-Angus and shorthorn cattle, it was also necessary to keep in touch with the best type of Clydesdales that were being developed in Scotland and elsewhere and secure picked sires for Northern Ireland. Some of the outstanding animals in Northern Ireland were getting past their best.

There was a growing market for the best type of Clydesdale owing to the demand for such animals for haulage purposes in their towns and cities, and for farm work in Northern Ireland, where the restricted area of fields did not lend themselves to mechanical farm appliances. Horse flesh was coming into its own again. During the war, and for some years after, the breeding of animals was allowed to lapse, with the result that there is a shortage to-day of the best type of Clydesdales. This afforded an opportunity to breeders, and good prices are likely to be maintained for some years, especially as mechanical appliances, owing to the expense of repairs and renewals, were not so popular on the smaller type of agricultural holding. Owing to the recent severe weather, much of the agricultural operations will have to be carried out at the one time, and the value of the horse will again become evident. Notwithstanding the importation of horses from Belgium and Canada, there was still a good field in Northern Ireland for the development of the Clydesdale breed.

"K.D.F." HOLIDAY SHIPS

SPECIAL VESSELS TO BE BUILT

According to information supplied by Dr. Moos, divisional leader in the German Amt für Reisen, Wandern und Urlaub (Department for Voyages, Travel and Leave), says Hamburger Nachrichten, the holiday vessels to be built specially for the Kraft durch Freude organisation are of a new type designed to meet the special requirements of this recreational and cultural service.

A large-scale model has been built of a vessel of 22,000 gross tons, and 572 ft. long by 75½ feet breadth, designed for a speed of 14 knots, with accommodation for 1,400 passengers in 490 two and four-berth cabins. The new vessel will be used mainly for northern cruises, and in order to provide a maximum of light and air, all cabins are outside, and there is a deck area of 54,000 square feet for the use of passengers. All the passengers can take their meals at the same time.

There is a large swimming bath on deck, and the cafe below the upper deck enables passengers to sit in the open, even in rainy weather. The lifeboats are placed high above the deck, giving free access to the space below.

ELECTRICITY HELPS DOCTORS

Electricity is providing the medical profession with many weapons to combat disease and death. People apparently drowned are now brought back to life with electricity's aid. A machine has been devised whereby the patient is put to bed in an air-tight metal tank with the head projecting at one end through a close-fitting rubber collar and an electrically-driven pump, attached to the tank, expands and contracts the chest as in ordinary breathing.

Another invention is a machine for treating fever victims. Wrapped in blankets, the patient is put in a box with metal plates on either side. A powerful high-frequency current is passed through the body, which causes tremendous perspiration.

BETTING ACT CHARGE

DEFENDANT FINED

(BEFORE MR. O'SULLIVAN.)

Holding, in accord with the view of Lord Buckmaster, who, in the case of the Attorney-General v. the London and Sports Clubs, Ltd., in 1929, defined a bet as something staked to be lost or won on the result of a doubtful issue—that persons who staked on football pools were betting inter se—the Justice convicted William A Sheppard, Fortfield terrace, Rathmines, Dublin, and John McManus, 71 Dame street, Dublin, for publishing and knowingly circulating a coupon relating to betting on football games, contrary to Section 32 (1) of the Betting Act, 1931.

Mr. O'Sullivan said that the only question to be decided in the case was whether the coupons, which the defendants had frankly admitted having published, were or were not in law and effect coupons relating to betting on football games. There were no decided Irish cases relating to the prosecution, but in his opinion the persons forwarding coupons and money were undoubtedly staking something to be lost or won on a doubtful issue. It was immaterial that the defendants were entitled only to a fixed percentage of the amount staked.

Mr. J. O'Hare, who appeared for the defendant McManus, stated that it was not correct to state, as had been stated during the hearing of the case, that his client received 8s. in the £ on each pool. In fact, he received 8s. in the £ only on one pool, and 3s. 6d. in the £ on the others. It would be wrong to suggest that a large amount of money was being made.

Mr. Kevin Haugh, who prosecuted, said that, in view of the frank manner in which the case had been met and the fact that they were the first prosecutions of the kind in this country, a penalty was not being pressed for; but if any further coupons were to be printed or circulated heavy penalties would be sought.

At the request of Mr. W. Moloney (instructed by Mr G. M. O'Brien), who appeared for Sheppard, the Justice inflicted a penalty of 10s. in order to enable that defendant to proceed further, and applied the Probation Act in the case against McManus.

NOVEL CITY CHARGE

A MICROPHONE INSTALLED

According to information laid by John James Redmond, bedding manufacturer, 9 Lord Edward street, Dublin, on February 3rd the defendant McCarthy called to his shop at Swift's alley and made a proposition relating to a claim for £300 against witness in connection with an accident at Back lane, in which a man named Joseph McCarthy was alleged to have been injured. Witness's employé, Michael J. Owens, had been fined for dangerous driving in connection with that accident. The defendant's proposition was that he and a man named Farrell, who had given evidence against witness's driver, should leave the country and not turn up to give evidence at the trial of the civil action, provided that witness would pay them £10 each. On the following day witness and the defendants saw Mr. McKeever, solicitor, who was acting for witness, and the defendant McCarthy said that he could prove that a witness for the prosecution against Owens had committed perjury and had not been near the accident at all. The defendant repeated the proposition there, and on the next evening, when the defendants came to witness's shop, he had had a microphone installed, and Detective-Sergeant Lynch, who had been notified, was able to listen to the conversation in which the defendants again asked for £20 in order to leave the country.

Thomas F. McKeever, 16 and 17 College Green, corroborated regarding the visit to his office and the statements of the defendants, and remarked that he advised Mr. Redmond to see the police, because he was aware that there was a lot of blackmail against insurance companies.

The defendants were remanded.

A SPORTING OFFER

TO AID BRITISH BLIND

A generous sporting offer has been received by the British "Wireless for the Blind" Fund, which was inaugurated by the present King six years ago.

On Christmas Day Lord Sankey broadcast an appeal for the fund, asking the public to contribute £12,000 for the installation of wireless in the homes of the blind throughout the country. About £6,000—half the amount required—was actually received.

With a view to making good the deficit, the maker of the offer agrees to add a fifty per cent. bonus to every further donation received till the total sum reaches the required £12,000. Thus, so far as the fund is concerned, every shilling now subscribed will automatically become eighteen pence, and every pound will become thirty shillings.

The person who has made this generous offer, which should eventually total £2,000, wishes to remain anonymous. It is believed that £2,000 is the largest individual contribution ever made in response to a wireless appeal.

LUCKY FOOL FANCIED

An Attractive Programme at Baldoyle To-day

Trains:
Amiens Street—1.15, 1.30, 1.45, 2.5 and 2.35.

WHILE there is no prospect of racing in England for several days owing to frost-bound grounds, the course at Baldoyle is in excellent order, and the programme to be submitted this afternoon is of an exceptionally attractive kind.

With a couple of exceptions, all the best steeplechasers in the country have been declared as runners for the Dublin Steeplechase. Lucky Fool, Southernmore, Cabin Fire, Cheraboshina, Alphonso and Shady Toi alone would provide a race well worth going a long way to see, and there are others among the lightly-weighted division, such as Western Nyasa and Miranda, that also could be given chances. It is an open race, and

Southernmore may run for the Stewards' Steeplechase instead, in which case she would meet with strong opposition from Mollison and Knight of the Mist.

MOLLISON

is a good weight-carrier, as he showed at Leopardstown, and may win again. Selections:—

February Hurdle—Kildonan's Hope.
Stewards' Steeplechase—Mollison.
Maiden Hurdle—Anna's Pride.
Dublin Steeplechase—Lucky Fool.
Balgriffin Steeplechase—Kilcash Cross.

HURST PARK RACES ABANDONED

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY OF THE "HOLD-UP"

There will be no racing at Hurst Park to-day owing to the continuance of the frost. The Stewards formally inspected the course at noon yesterday. They had no alternative but to abandon the programme, which had been postponed from yesterday. The total of lost programmes this National Hunt season is now 36.

Racing is due to take place next week at Derby, Sedgefield, Windsor, and Kempton. If these meetings have to be abandoned, the season's total of lost programmes will exceed that for the 1928-29 season, when they amounted to 42.

There seems no prospect of there being any racing on Monday at Derby. Major Power, managing director of the Derby Racecourse Company, said yesterday:—"The frost is about six inches deep in the ground. Even if there is a change, it looks as if it would take some days for it to get out."

SPORTING GOSSIP

Amateur Riders' Permits

The Stewards of the Turf Club have given permission to Messrs. T. P. Downes, M. A. Joyce and T. Molony to ride under Rule 96 (i.), Rules of Racing.

I.N.H.S. Grant

The Stewards of the Irish National Hunt Steeplechase Committee have granted £30 each to Longford and Sligo meetings to be allocated to a three miles steeplechase.

John Doyle's Lincoln Mount

The Irish light-weight, John Doyle, has been engaged to ride Mr. A. Gemmell's Princess Herodene in the Lincolnshire Handicap next month. The filly, who won a hurdle race at Newbury in December, is trained by Major D. Mairs at Epsom. Doyle rode Knight Error when that horse finished third to Jerome Fandor in the Lincolnshire Handicap four years ago.

Golden Miller's Trip to Seaside

Miss Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller, favourite for the Grand National, is to be sent to Minehead, in Somerset, to have a spell of work on the sands. The reason for this move is that the prolonged frosty weather has made the going at his training quarters at Letcombe Bassett, Wantage, Berkshire, too hard for serious galloping, with the result that his preparation for the "National" has been interrupted.

Blue Brocade at Filey

Trainer's New Quarters

Mr. Hugh Sidebottom, who was granted a licence to train at Newmarket at the beginning of the year, will shortly leave his present quarters, Biggin Farm, Fordham, for Beechwood House, Exning. These stables were formerly occupied by A. B. Briscoe, who moved to Royston, Herts, in October last year.

Work on Cinder Track

There is one trainer at least who is not greatly perturbed by the present frost-bound state of training grounds. He is Victor Smyth, whose stables are at Epsom. "I am very fortunate," he said in an interview yesterday, "in having an ash or cinder track on which I can work my horses. I am not able to gallop them, but I can give them hack canters continuously. As they were mostly well forward before the frost, I have been able to keep them fit." In Smyth's opinion tan is not so beneficial to horses as an ash track.

HUNTING

WARD UNION HOUNDS

The weather showed a welcome improvement when the Ward Hounds met at Dunboyne on Wednesday, and the big field, which included a party from Northern Ireland, enjoyed a good day's hunting. The enlargement took place on Mr. Kelly's land at Roanstown, from where hounds hunted by Cookstown and Ballymaglassan to Blackhall. Here they crossed the Summerhill road and ran hard across a grand line of country to Kilcloon, but between here and Ballynare they met some of the recently divided land, which proved difficult to negotiate. Hounds swung right-handed past Mulhussey, and across The Mullagh to Kilmore, where the stag was taken in the river, after a good hunt of an hour and forty-five minutes.

MEATH HOUNDS

From Thursday's meet at Possextown hounds first found in Evans's gorse, but scent was so bad that they could only own the line for a few fields. Hickey's provided a fox that went away towards Sallybrook, short of which he turned left-handed into Drumaragher, where hounds were stopped. Most of the field went home after the Diamond hill had been drawn blank, and by doing so missed a brilliant hunt of 27 minutes from Aclare. Finding in the laurels, hounds ran by Woodtown and across the Ardee road into the Louth country. They fairly raced to Greenfield, and, leaving Newtown School on their left and the Louth covert of Footstown on their right, ran to within a couple of fields of Moorstown covert, the fox eventually getting to ground at the top of the hill close to Rathbran bog. This was a very fine gallop, the point being five miles without the semblance of a check.

Lismullen was the fixture yesterday, and a very good day's sport was brought off. A fox found in Lismullen got to ground at once, and they then drew Gerrardstown, from where they ran through Trevitt and Clownstown bog to Barronstown, and lost near Lismullen. Time, 45 minutes. Foxes found in the Poorhouse gorse and Boylan's got to ground after going a short distance, and then followed a capital 50 minutes from Lagore. Going away by the house, the quarry crossed the Ratoath road, and went on by Flemington and past the old Reeske covert nearly to Greenpark. Turning left-handed here the fox came back via Grange, and through the laurel woods into Lagore covert, where a beaten fox got to ground.

COURSING

THE NATIONAL MEETING

Candidates for Irish Derby and the Oaks

BY OUR COURSING CORRESPONDENT.

Will this season's Irish Cup winner, Mahon's Cutlet, bring off the double event at Powerstown Park, Clonmel, and so go one better than Ocean Monarch, who last season after his Cup triumph at Clounanna went on to Clonmel to be there beaten in the fourth round by Welcome Wind?

That is the problem to be solved next week. Mahon's Cutlet put up a great achievement for a puppy at Clounanna under quite abnormal conditions, but there are many shrewd judges who rate Maple Meadow his equal, if not his superior, in point of pace, basing their estimate on the Ulster dog's performances at Wexford in December, when he romped through the Loc Garman Cup.

In point of fact, in what long odds wagering there has been on the Irish Derby, opinions seem to be pretty equally divided regarding the merits and prospects of the pair, who are likely to be joint favourites when the betting opens on Wednesday morning.

So far as Mahon's Cutlet is concerned, it will depend entirely on whether he got too much of it at Clounanna. Undoubtedly, he was called on to do much more than Maple Meadow had to accomplish at the Wexford meeting.

A RACING TYPE OF GREYHOUND

There was no comparison between the two tasks, and it may be expecting too much of the Kerry dog to reproduce that form at Powerstown. Should the Cup winner have fully recovered he will make a bold bid for the honours, but I am inclined to take sides with those who believe that the Clonmel ground will be more to the liking of Maple Meadow, who is more of the racing type of greyhound.

The Oaks is a particularly open affair, and what with the two big puppy stakes and the strong entry for the International Cup we are fully assured three grand days' sport.

The draw will be held in the Town Hall, Clonmel, on Tuesday at noon, and the meet each day will be at 11.30.

ALTCAR MEETING AGAIN PUT BACK

WATERLOO CUP DRAW ON WEDNESDAY

The Waterloo Cup centenary meeting has been further postponed owing to the severe weather. The draw and call-over will not take place until Wednesday next, and it is hoped that coursing will be possible on Thursday and following days.

Had weather permitted coursing would have begun last Wednesday, but, as the ground was frost-bound, the committee at first decided to postpone the opening until yesterday. Then followed another postponement. It was decided that a fresh draw and call-over should be made on Monday next, in the hope that it would be possible to start coursing on Tuesday.

The presentation of the portrait of the present Lord Sefton to his mother, the Countess of Sefton, will be made next Wednesday.

WINTER OLYMPIC GAMES

EUROPEAN TITLE FOR BRITAIN

GARMISCH-PARTENKERCHEN, Friday.

Great Britain won the European ice hockey championship by beating Czecho-Slovakia by 4 goals to nil here this evening. Great Britain started well in the ice-hockey match with Czecho-Slovakia in the final pool of the Olympic championship, and after one and a half periods were leading by 4 goals to nil. At the end of the first period Great Britain led by 2-0, and in the first nine minutes of the second period added two more goals. Davey scored in the ninth minute of the first period after a solo run, and four minutes later Chappell scored after a fine shot across the goal from Davey had rebounded from the boards.

In the second period Davey was again outstanding. After Jirotka had missed scoring for Czecho-Slovakia, Dailley and Davy carried the game up to the Czech goal, and Davey got another fine goal. Two minutes later Archer and Davey got through together, Archer getting a beautiful goal to make the score 4-0 for Great Britain.

Czecho-Slovakia never gave up trying, but Great Britain had definitely got the upper hand. Even so, the game was not very exciting, and neither side played very good hockey. The Czecho-Slovakian goal-minder, Peka, made many fine saves when Great Britain swarmed round the goal, sending in shot after shot. During the final period Great Britain made great efforts to score more goals, being mindful of the fact that the world and Olympic championship might have to be decided on goal average; but the Czecho-Slovakians defended stubbornly, and no further goals were scored.

SKATING RECORD

Ivar Ballangrud, of Norway, became the world speed-skating champion by winning the 10,000 metres event. He had already won the 500 and 5,000 metres events and finished second in the 1,500 metres. The world championship is decided on the points given for all the events. Ballangrud and eight others broke the Olympic record held by the Canadian, Hurd, of 17 mins. 56 2-10 secs; Fallangrud's time was 17 mins. 24 3-10 secs.

In the men's figure-skating championship Karl Schaeffer, the world and Olympic champion, executed every variety of figure with ease, and fox-trotted in reverse to the tune of "Whispering." Graham Sharp, the 18-year-old British champion, was not in his best form. After several excellent jumps and toe spins he fell. This unsettled him, and he was distinctly nervous during the rest of his performance.

TOTALISATOR DOUBLE EVENT POOL

The Racecourse Betting Control Board of England announce that in connection with their double event pool on the Lincolnshire Handicap and the Grand National the public had subscribed £2,764 at the close of the 2s. 6d. period. This figure represents an increase of £434 as compared with the end of the first period of a similar pool operated on the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire last year.

From now until 29th February, inclusive, tickets are priced 5s.; from March 2nd to 18th inclusive, 7s. 6d., and from 19th March up to the "off" of the Lincolnshire Handicap on 25th March, 10s.

A ticket purchased on or before 12th February at 2s. 6d. will be entitled to the same dividend as a ticket purchased at 10s. on the day of the Lincolnshire Handicap. Tickets cannot be bought from the Board's offices, and are only on sale at racecourses in England, where the totalisator is operating.

In connection with last year's Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire double event pool, there were three winning tickets, one at 2s. 6d. one at 5s., and one at 7s. 6d., and the holder of each received £2,361 14s.

DOLPHIN'S TASK AT TOLKA PARK

THE WEEK-END LEAGUE MATCHES

For another week, at all events, the four leading clubs in the Free State League will likely retain their positions, but it is a toss-up as to whether Shamrock Rovers or Reds United will be in the fourth place on Sunday evening.

Possibly the most important of the fixtures is to-morrow's match between Dolphin and Drumcondra at Tolka Park, as a slip by the visitors and a victory by Cork over St. James's Gate would leave Dolphin and Cork on level terms at 18 points each.

Dolphin, however, have shown ever so much better form in the League, and although Drumcondra are always a difficult problem at home, they cannot but be feeling the effects of their mid-week drawn Cup tie at Sligo, whom they have to meet again on next Wednesday. So far as the champions are concerned, this League match may prove the most vital of the entire series.

Waterford, with one match more played, are six points below Bohemians, whom they play at Dalymount Park to-day. In their more recent games the Southerners have been showing to better advantage than earlier on; but so far they have had a deal the worse of it with the amateurs, and the moral effect of their runaway Cup victory must be all in favour of Bohemians.

Reds United and Shamrock Rovers should provide a rousing game at Milltown to-morrow, but more concerned than either of them in the struggle for the championship are Cork, who will be at home to St. James's Gate.

PROTECTION FOR THE GOALKEEPER

Discussing the question whether rough play is becoming more general in English League football, which has arisen as the result of statements at the inquest on Thorpe, the Sunderland goalkeeper, Mr. W. Walker, a former England international and now manager of Sheffield Wednesday, said yesterday:

"I consider the question of rough play is grossly exaggerated. As soon as an accident crops up people start the old saying that the game is getting rougher. At the same time I do think the goalkeeper should have more protection. I consider the rule should be altered to conform with the Continental rule—that is, that when the goalkeeper handles the ball within the six-yards area the ball should be dead.

"As it is, as soon as the goalkeeper catches the ball in the air he is liable to be knocked into the back of the net, or if he has to fall on it he is always likely to be kicked on the body by forwards trying to get at the ball. I don't think it is fair."

Mr. Phil Bach (Middlesbrough), a member of the Football League Management Committee and the F.A. Selection Committee, said:—"In my opinion the adoption of the two referees system would be a means of exercising stricter control and checking rough play in League games. Roughness creeps into the game, not because of the referee, but because of the system. The game is becoming too fast for one man, and two referees would be able to be up with the ball throughout the game. Refereeing is a tremendous responsibility for one man."

Mr. W. C. Cuff, Chairman of Everton F.C. and a member of the Football League Management Committee, also recommends the adoption of the two referees system.

GAELIC GAMES

Stiff Task for Young Connaught Side at Roscrea

KILKENNY'S most reliable full-back, Peter O'Reilly, has definitely declared off Leinster's team to-morrow, and three names will be discussed at this afternoon's meeting of the Selection Committee—Pat Byrne, of Kilkenny, who has played full with success at home; Tom Teehan, the Army centre-half, and P. Hetherington, of Loaighis, whose robust style would eminently suit the dashing Western forwards. The re-entrance of Conniffe, of the Garda, is also mentioned.

Galway will stay the hour better than they did against Limerick, for they are determined to reach the Railway Cup final for the first time, and have played so well in the League that Western confidence is justified. Should O'Donoghue and his forwards strike a scoring vein, the finish will be close, for I expect the Gill pair and Burke to serve their front line with winning chances. The bulk of the Connaught team are new to inter-provincial hurling, but they have youthful dash and vigour, and the success of their footballers will inspire them.

EXPERIENCED SIDE

Leinster, three times cup winners, have been in every final, and their 1936 fifteen carries the approval of Eastern critics. Eleven of the side are experienced in inter-provincial games. Daniels, of Army Metro, has consistent form in big games. Blanchfield and Whyte, of Kilkenny, shone through last year's championship, and the fifteenth man—Leahy, of Civil Service, whose place on the team was not anticipated—is a skilful winger, who has scored in every game since his entrance to inter-county ranks last summer.

Hetherington, of Laoighis, as first substitute, seems to have the best claim to O'Reilly's place. His left-handed work on the ground is particularly powerful. Should he come on as the sole representative of the useful Laoighis side, the team will read as follows:—O'Connell (Kilkenny) (goal); Larkin (Kil), Hetherington (Laoighis), Blanchfield (Kil), fulls; Phelan (Kil), E. Byrne (do.), McMahon (Dublin), halves; T. Leahy (Kil), Daniels (Dublin), centres; Walsh (Kil), M. Leahy (Dublin), wings; Wade (Dublin), Whyte (Kil), L. Byrne (do.), Power (do.), forwards.

This is a well-balanced side who will adapt themselves to either overhead or ground play according to weather conditions. Their front line is particularly strong, for E. Wade, of Faughs, will give the necessary physique to the skilful Kilkenny marksmen, amongst whom Matt Power will be appearing in the cup final for the tenth successive year.

No better tribute could be paid to a brilliant hurler. Matt Power has lost much of the pace which brought him into the limelight as a youth, when he played in a memorable championship final against Tipperary in the autumn of 1923. Figuring on Kilkenny's champion team of 1936, the Guard's association with first-class hurling, stretching over fourteen years, is a record. He has scored 120 goals in championship hurling, and during his long career he has never injured an opponent, so perfect is his ashcraft.

DUBLIN LEAGUE

Leaders in Division I. of the Dublin Football League will be engaged at Parnell Park to-morrow, but not in the same game. St. Joseph's surprised all and sundry by defeating Geraldines at Brian Park; they have yet to lose a point, but Erin's Hopes will extend them. St. Lawrences (Howth) are playing sparkling football this year, and their form against a strong U.C.D. side was most impressive. Clanna-nGaedhal's are a heavy, sturdy side, but I think the Howth men will prove too fast and skilful for the teachers, who play Whitty and Carney, of the Railway Cup selections.

FIXTURES.

Parnell Park—St. Josephs v. Erin's Hopes, 1.0; St. Lawrences v. Clanna-nGaedhal, 2.15.
Crumlin—Army Metro v. Westerners, 12.0; Dolphins v. Geraldines, 1.30; O'Tooles v. U.C.D., 2.45.
Garda Ground—Civil Service v. Con Colberts, 12.0.
Brian Boru Park—(Loving Cup), Kincora v. Clans, 12.15.

JUNIOR SCHOOLS' CUP

FIVE PENALTY GOALS KICKED

ST. GERRARD'S	6

With rain falling heavily all through the afternoon, the second pitch at Donnybrook was quickly turned into a quagmire, and the two Junior Schools' Cup ties were naturally kick-and-rush affairs, handling the greasy ball being almost out of the question. The first match was notable for the number of successful penalty goals that were landed, C.B.S., Dun Laoghaire, beating St. Gerrard's, Bray, by 4 goals (3 penalties) and 1 try (17 points) to 2 penalty goals (6 points).

Taite was the marksman for C.B.S., kicking all their goals, and landing two from a considerable distance out. Curiously enough, he missed one from underneath the posts a few minutes from the end, but his efforts with a heavy ball were very creditable. C.B.S. had the livelier pack and generally had the better of matters, but the St. Gerrard's boys tackled and went down very pluckily all through. Tobin got a try in the first half, and McCann crossed in the second period for the winners, while B. Murphy kicked a penalty goal in each half for St. Gerrard's. Teams:—

C.B.S., Dun Laoghaire—E. Kenny; P. Flynn, D. Walsh, J. McCann, D. Nolan; S. Murphy, J. Whelehan; K. Smith, M. Tobin, G. Mahoney, G. Moore, T. Carr, S. Taite, J. Kearns, E. McHale.

St. Gerrard's, Bray—P. Blake; B. Barry, L. Starkie; B. Murphy, F. Gill; D. McGilligan, B. Pilsworth; M. McCann, E. Dowley, H. McDermot, W. Egan, P. O'Ferrall, C. Glynn, O. Murphy, J. Conan.

ST. ANDREW'S FORWARDS SHINE

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE	13
MORGAN'S SCHOOL	0

In the second match St. Andrew's were far too strong for Morgan's School, and, doing nearly all the attacking, won by 3 goals (1 penalty) to nil. The winning pack controlled the ball cleverly with their feet, McCaw and Mumby being outstanding in this respect, and their efforts were well supported by a big back division, in which Jermyn and Hitchcock did well. The Morgan's forwards were outplayed, but the backs defended stoutly, Marshall doing some fine tackling.

A couple of minutes after the start Rogerson dived over from a scrum on the line and Torrance converted. This was the only score of the first half, but early in the second period Torrance landed a penalty goal, and near the end Hitchcock gathered a clever cross-kick by Jermyn to score, and Torrance kicked his third goal. Teams:—

Morgan's—P. Marshall; D. Welsh, W. Morrow, B. Harvey, B. Jones; G. Craigie, C. Toft; D. Sparks, J. A. D'Arcy, W. Palmer, J. Siminonds, I. Kell, D. Ritchie, F. Cooper, H. Anderson.

BILLIARDS

LINDRUM LEADS DAVIS BY FIVE FRAMES

Although winning four of the seven frames in the first session and three of the six at night in his snooker match with Horace Lindrum at Birmingham yesterday, Joe Davis, the champion, was five behind at the close of play. Davis, who is conceding seven points in each game, had breaks of 45 and 32, Lindrum's highest being 37. The scores (Davis first) were 66-46, 69-53, 39-72, 68-52, 37-73, 77-45, 39-86, 71-53, 29-76, 43-68, 72-45, 59-67, 67-65. Scores—Lindrum, 34 frames; Davis, 29 frames.

REECE STILL AHEAD

Reece outpointed Falkiner in the first session of their Gold Cup match at Thurston's, London, yesterday, scoring 790 to 448, but Falkiner had the better of the second, his total being 700 and Reece's 572. The best breaks were 210, 185, 149 and 256 (unfinished) by Reece, and 182, 204, 246 and 118 by Falkiner. Closing scores—Reece (in play), 7,020; Falkiner, 6,253.

BOXING

IRISH SUCCESSES

Three Trinity Men Retain Titles in London

The Universities' and Hospitals' championships were decided at the headquarters of the London Scottish last night. The team championship was won by United Hospitals, who totalled 17 points. Dublin University, the holders, were second with 13 points and London University third with 12 points.

The dashing tactics of G. V. Kell (Sheffield) were too much for W. B. Smith (Dublin University) in the first series of the bantam-weights, and the Irishman, who bled from the face in the closing round, was beaten on points.

J. I. Stafford (Dublin University) retained the fly-weight title, beating W. Hale (Cardiff) in the second round of the semi-final bout and winning on points against F. I. Ibrahim (Sheffield), an Egyptian boxer, in the final. Stafford's dogged two-handed attack was too much for Ibrahim, who suffered severe puishment.

P. J. HENNIGAN LOSES ON CASTING VOTE

One of the early surprises for the Irish camp was the defeat of the holder, P. J. Hennigan (Dublin University) in the feather-weights, second series. Hennigan was forced to defend himself against the spirited attacks of P. Marx (Manchester), but his left hand gave him many points in the later stages, and he seemed to have won. The referee's casting vote, however, was awarded to Marx.

O'Hanlon won his semi-final bout against J. Bushby (Birmingham) on points, mainly by hard punching. The Irishman was floored by a left in the last round, but recovered well and scored a creditable victory.

Floored in the second round, J. R. Cosgrove (Queen's University, Belfast) put up a good fight in the first series of the light-weight, but was beaten in the third round by R. Ferguson (Durham). Ferguson landed many blows in the later stages, and the Irishman's defence was not proof against the attack.

V. J. McDarby (University College, Galway) had a cut under his left eye, but went all out, and only narrowly lost in the semi-final to the holder, G Halamandres (United Hospitals). At close quarters and in the more open work Halamandres showed superior skill.

J. R. DICK RETAINS HIS TITLE

Fighting vigorously and pluckily against the more polished welter-weight champion, S. Murphy (Queen's University, Belfast) was well beaten by J. R. Dick (Dublin University) in the second series. Murphy was unsteadied by Dick's punches, and, although he retaliated with well-placed lefts to the face, he took more punishment, and was defeated. Dick beat M. C. Lohan (University College, Galway) on points in the semi-final with hard lefts and rights to the body, from which Lohan had no real defence.

Early Irish defeats in the middle-weights were suffered by A. Roche (University College, Galway) and E. Hackett (Dublin University). Hackett lost to J. Crowe (Dublin University) after being floored with a straight left in the first round, while Roche was beaten after a plucky battle by the holder, C. Warren (United Hospitals). Roche's defence could not prevent Warren from scoring with left leads, and the issue was never in doubt.

Crowe was beaten in the semi-final by C. P. Warren (United Hospitals), despite the Irishman's good work at close quarters. He shook Warren with a hard right, but the hospitals' boxer recovered splendidly, and defended well against Crowe's body punches.

J. Logan (University College, Dublin) suffered an early defeat in the first series of the light heavy-weights against R. W. Ross (United Hospitals). The Irishman was floored with a hook in the first round, followed with a right to the jaw, and the referee intervened.

Two early Irish defeats were suffered in the heavy-weight division. B. B. Mayne (Queen's University, Belfast) lost on points to the speedier A. Luntz (Liverpool), holder of the title, whose defence puzzled the Belfast man, and G. B. Jackson (Dublin University) lost the verdict to aggressive H. Muller (United Hospitals), who did sufficient damage at close quarters to earn the verdict.

RESULTS OF FINALS

FLY-WEIGHT.

J. I. Stafford (Dublin University) (holder) beat F. I. Ibrahim (Sheffield) on points.

BANTAM-WEIGHT.

M. Rustomji (London) beat I. McDermott (U.C.D.) in the second round.

FEATHER-WEIGHT.

P. Marx (Manchester) beat P. O'Hanlon (U.C.D.) on points.

LIGHT-WEIGHT.

G. Halamandres (United Hospitals) (holder) beat T. Cowson (London), the referee stopping the bout in the second round.

WELTER-WEIGHT.

J. R. Dick (Dublin University) (holder) beat D. Rees (United Hospitals) on points.

MIDDLE-WEIGHTS.

J. R. Homer (Durham) beat C. P. Warren (United Hospitals) (holder) on points.

LIGHT-HEAVY-WEIGHT.

M. F. Graham (Dublin University) (holder) beat R. W. Ross (United Hospitals), the referee stopping the bout in the second round.

HEAVY-WEIGHT.

A. Luntz (Liverpool) (holder) beat P. R. Williams (Cardiff) in the first round.

There was a packed house at Unity Hall last night for the inter-club tournament between Myra and Tullamore, which resulted in a win for the home club by six contests to three. Most of the contests were in the juvenile classes, and, while the Myra youngsters showed the greater experience, some of those from Tullamore were quite promising. Details:—

LEWIS AND MCAVOY TO MEET NEXT MONTH

NEW YORK, Friday.

The fight for the world's light heavy-weight championship between John Henry Lewis (the holder) and Jock McAvoy (the British middle-weight champion) has been definitely fixed for March 13. This has been done in order that McAvoy can leave for England early in order to keep a possible engagement with Jack Petersen for the British heavy-weight title.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

INTERESTING GAME PROMISED

TRIAL FOR PLACES ON IRISH TEAM

The Irish final trial takes place at Londonbridge road this afternoon, and seems likely to provide an interesting game. The Probables XI. contains ten old internationals, the only player not yet honoured being Mrs. Fox, the left-half, and on paper they look considerably the stronger side, with a splendid defence, and fast, constructive half-backs. The forward line is rather a gamble, as Miss Kirkwood is not a regular centre-forward, and Mrs. Blake would seem to be rather past her best by now, while Miss Barry has not been playing very much this season, but they may develop a good understanding.

The Possibles' forwards, with better support, might easily prove a really good line as Miss Byrne is a splendid shot, and Misses Moore and White have proved their ability on the wings, but the halves and backs are an uncertain quantity, and may have too much to do in defence to be able to support the attack adequately.

NEW STRIKE IN FRANCE

THREAT TO CLOSE SHIPYARDS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ST. NAZAIRE, Friday.

A new strike started at the Penhoet shipyards here to-day, following a threatened sliding scale reduction in the salaries of all administrative and technical officials and of foremen earning more than £7 a month.

There was considerable excitement in St. Nazaire throughout the day. Barrages, composed of bicycles and other obstacles were thrown across the entrances to the shipyards, and no notice was taken of a police order for the streets to be cleared, while a number of foremen, who wished to disobey the strike order and join the other men peacefully at work in the yards, were forcibly prevented from doing so.

Fourteen foremen working on the cruiser Georges Leygues did, however, succeed, with the help of the police, in entering the yards, but when the men inside saw them they insisted they should withdraw on the threat that otherwise they would all come out again, and thus start a complete general strike.

This evening it was announced by the management that it would be impossible for the men to continue working without foremen, and that if the strike is not settled within a few days they would have no alternative but to close the yards.

VETERAN FRENCHMAN SAVES HIS SIDE

R. Rodel, captain and reserve of the French team, who was only playing because Jean Borotra, owing to pressure of business in London, could not spare the time to go to Dulwich, was responsible for the only two French victories against London in the inter-city match yesterday. Had it not been for him London would have made almost certain of winning the contest. As it is, they now lead by eight matches to six, and only need three of the remaining seven to win.

While the youngsters of his team were being beaten, Rodel, who is 41 years of age, was upholding the side's prestige. In his singles match he vanquished R. A. Shayes, the Kent County player, and a man many years his junior, by two sets to one by sheer cleverness. Shayes, following instructions, attacked at every opportunity, but the Frenchman was too wily for him and kept him away from the net with subtle lobs.

Partnered by the fiery and impetuous P. Pelizza in a gruelling doubles match against Nigel Sharpe and R. J. Ritchie, Rodel played an inspired game. He is not a forceful player, but his good timing and immaculate length enabled his side to win by three sets to one.

TO-DAY'S FINAL TRIAL

A Close Match Anticipated at Headquarters Ground

BY OUR HOCKEY CORRESPONDENT.

After an exhaustive series of trials for places on this year's Irish XI., the final one takes place this afternoon at Londonbridge road. With the supply of cross-Channel candidates considerably smaller than for some years past, the selectors have abandoned the customary "Home-Irish v. Anglo-Irish" title, and teams labelled "Whites" and "Colours" will take the field to-day. As originally picked, one could designate them as Probables and Possibles, but subsequent events seem to have disproved that theory.

Three of the original Whites—E. Coates, the goalkeeper; W. M. Dick, the right full-back, and T. G. McVeagh, the inside left—have signified their inability to play; but, instead of moving over the corresponding men from Colours, the selectors have replaced them with reserves, thus somewhat weakening what was, on paper, the stronger side. J. Carroll, Coates's understudy in Ulster, will be in goal; M. C. O'Donoghue, usually a left full-back, comes on for Dick, and J. Hunter, of Ulster, will take McVeagh's position.

THE FULL-BACKS

The teams, therefore, should be evenly matched. None of the four full-backs on view is an outstanding man. O'Donoghue, Cleghorn and Donald are of the same type: strong, hard-hitting players, difficult to get past, but possibly rather uncertain in positioning themselves. Craig is a cleverer back, but his form recently has not been too impressive. None of the four can be regarded as up to the same level as Dick or Captain H. T. Heard, the latter of whom is not available during this month.

If McCarthy gives another display of goalkeeping as he did for Munster against Leinster, the selectors are going to be faced with a pretty problem; for on that form he ought to be regarded as better than Coates in the important factor of clearing the ball after saving a hard shot.

CHAMBERS'S CLAIMS

At half-back Whites should hold a distinct advantage. The newcomer at centre-half, Chambers, is regarded so highly in England that he was invited to play for the South in the divisional trials, and, that being the case, he must be a strong candidate for a place on the Irish team. His opposite number, Power, is a wonderful defender and a great worker, but he is not as effective in supporting attacks. As James MacDonald showed no loss of speed in the interprovincials and still retains his skilful stick-work and sense of position, Quinton, another newcomer from London, will have to be outstanding to keep the North Down man off. It is to be hoped that a satisfactory centre-half can be found, so that Coulson can be allowed to play on the right, his normal position.

THE FORWARD LINES

The forward lines are a gamble. If J. A. Purcell is a success, he and Clarke ought to form a lively right wing, and the third "dark horse," Haines, is, I hear, a strong, bustling centre forward, but Hunter may be out of his element in such company, and consequently Gray may suffer from lack of support. On the other side, Cairnes, if not as dangerous in the circle now as he used to be, is still a constructive forward, and he and Sloan may give Coulson a lively afternoon, while MacDonogh, the quickest shot in the country, is just the man to test out Chambers's worth, and make Haines realise that his opposition must be taken seriously.

De Lacey and Swaine, on the right, are a club pair, and the former has speed, if not much finishing power as yet, but Swaine would do better to play up with the rest of the line instead of falling back as far as he did in the interprovincial games. There are interesting possibilities about these teams, and they should provide a capital match.

DUTY ON LINEN AND PIECE GOODS

An order was made yesterday by the Executive Council under the Emergency Imposition of Duties Act, 1932, imposing a Customs duty of 33⅓ per cent. ad valorem on certain descriptions of linen and cotton and union piece goods.

The Order does not materially alter the scope of the duty imposed on the piece goods in question by the Finance Act, 1934, and is mainly devised to prevent technical evasions of that duty.

Ewe with Six Lambs.—A ewe belonging to Mr. T. Hanley, Clonashaes, Clonfert, Banagher, gave birth to six lambs yesterday, five of which were living.

BURNED HOUSE APPLICATION

DIFFICULT QUESTIONS OF IRISH LAW

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

An application was made to Mr. Justice Luxmoore, in the Chancery Division yesterday, to restore to the list a summons entitled re Macnamara.

Mr. Roger Turnbull stated that the summons had stood out for further evidence, and was now ready for hearing. The case raised difficult questions of Irish law concerning a house burned down by Sinn Feiners, and as to how the compensation money should go.

His Lordship restored the summons to the list, but in view of his other engagements was unable to fix a date for the hearing.

FUNERAL OF MR. GEORGE REEVES

There was a large attendance at the funeral yesterday to Mount Jerome Cemetery of the late Mr. George Reeves, 81 Carlingford road, Drumcondra. Mr. Reeves, who was formerly attached to the staff of Messrs. Arthur Guinness, Son and Company, Ltd., served with the 5th Royal Irish Lancers during the Boer War and throughout the Great War, and representatives of the 5th Lancers and 8th Hussars O.C.A., as well as of the Engineering Department of Messrs. Guinness, accompanied the funeral. The Burial Service was conducted by the Rev. E. H. F. Campbell, M.A.

The chief mourners were:—Mrs. F. L. Reeves (widow), Miss E. Reeves (daughter), Messrs. J. Reeves, B. Reeves and H. Reeves (brothers); Mrs. H. Blakely (sister), Mrs. J. Reeves, Mrs. B. Reeves, Mrs. H. Reeves, Miss M. Flood (sisters-in-law), Messrs. D. Wilmot, Mr. W. Smith (brothers-in-law).

Trade relations between Italy and Austria are being discussed by Italian Government officials and Dr. Schuller, of the Austrian Ministry of Commerce, who has arrived in Rome.

Financial News & Notes

DUBLIN DULL

GREAT SOUTHERN LOWER

COURTAULDS WEAK

End-account influences had a restricting effect on business on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and a dull tone prevailed in most sections.

The National Loans were well maintained, but Land Bonds were sellers, and the New fell 10s. Irish Sugar Deb. improved to 101⅜. War Loan held steady, as did Corporation issues.

There was some selling of Great Southern Rails, and the Guaranteed fell 1⅜ points, while the Deb. relapsed to 87. Great Northern Deb. rose a point.

Carroll Ord. tended higher, but Irish Sugar Pref. and May Roberts (Ireland) eased the turn.

Courtaulds' results for the past year came as a great disappointment to the market, and they finished 3s. down on the day.

Tobaccos were also a dull spot, and B.A.T. Ord. fell 1s. 9d. and Imperials lost 1s.

LONDON INACTIVE

THE NEW ELECTRICITY LOAN

End-of-account profit-taking was in progress and general activity was far from brisk on the London Stock markets yesterday, but it was noticeable that suppport was forthcoming following any appreciable downward movement. In consequence few significant declines occurred, and, owing to specific items of news, several bright features were witnessed. The chief points of interest were the start of dealings in the new Central Electricity Loan at a premium and renewed speculative buying, based on re-armament prospects of Aircraft and Commercial Vehicle issues.

BRITISH FUNDS.

The success of the Central Electricity Loan, which, incidentally, was about fourteen times oversubscribed, stimulated Gilt-edged securities in the early hours and caused a slight upward movement in quotations, but in the absence of interest gains, apart from that of ⅛ to 106⅜ in War Loan were not held. India stocks came on offer and finished dull.

RAILS.

Now that the more important dividend decisions are known, transactions in British Rails resulted largely from liquidation, but the losses which occurred were not heavy. Exceptionally, Southerns were inquired for, and showed rises ranging up to ½, by which amount the Pref. were higher at 93⅜. Interest in Foreign Rails was centred on San Paulo Ord., which changed hands with freedom and closed 2 higher at 66½. Colonials were subdued, but good buying lifted American Rails, Union Pacific closing notably higher.

INDUSTRIALS.

Operators in the Industrial market showed discrimination, and buying was concentrated on issues affected by individual factors, chief of which was the projected re-armament. For this reason Aircrafts continued to be bought and closed strong, and certain Commercial Vehicles moved sharply ahead. Another bright feature in Motors was a gain in Austins on the news of substantial additions to the works. Fairly active conditions existed in Electrical Equipments, where Crompton Parkinson attracted support, while the Iron and Steel department, though generally subdued, was not without firm spots. Elsewhere talk of a share-splitting scheme, and possibly a capital bonus, accounted for fresh buying of Cerebos, which rose to a record high level.

THE MONEY MARKET

TREASURY BILL RATE UNCHANGED

Tenders were received at the Bank of England yesterday for £35,000,000 Treasury bills. Tenders dated Monday next at £99 17s. 6d. and above receive in full. Tenders dated Tuesday to Saturday at £99 17s. get about 41 per cent. above in full. These figures indicate an average rate of about 10s. 4d., or the same as for last week's bills.

The price of gold yesterday declined ½d. to 140s. 10d. per fine ounce. This included a premium of 1s. 2½d. on the dollar at 4.97⅞ and 7d. over the franc at 74⅞. Only £73,000 was available in the market. The Bank of England announced the purchase of £81,800 in bar gold.

Silver rose another ⅛d. yesterday to 20d. per ounce and 19⅞d. for forward delivery on Indian buying.

Short loans were in quiet demand at ½ per cent. and the fine three months' bill rate was unchanged at 9/16 per cent.

A remarkable slump in the American dollar rather late in the afternoon was the principal development in the London Foreign Exchange Market yesterday. Sterling exchange on New York at one time reached the 5.00 level, while the dollar-franc rate fell from around gold parity to within 2c. of gold export point from New York to Paris. During the earlier part of the day the American currency had continued its recent steady recovery in a rather quiet market, but at midday and through the afternoon dollars became heavily offered against both the franc and sterling from New York, following the opening of the market there. Selling pressure was relaxed a few minutes before the close, however, so that the dollar closed a little above the worst.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

SEVERAL BRIGHT FEATURES

Although preliminary arrangements for the carry-over on Monday interfered with trading in the Industrial Market, dealers reported a good demand for selected issues for new time. The projected scheme of rearmament was the main factor. Aircrafts were prominent in this respect, but there was also an active inquiry for the leading commercial Motor descriptions.

The trans-Atlantic counters were subject to a certain amount of profit-taking, but they finished firm in the late dealings.

AVIATIONS STRONG.

Expectations of good orders resulting from the Government's rearmament plans were responsible for further strong buying of Aviation and kindred descriptions, a big business being transacted for the new account. Faireys were once more the strongest feature, heavy buying taking the price up a further 3s. 6d. Bristol Aeroplanes were again in keen request, and Hawker Siddeley were also a strong market.

In the Motor section, Commercial Vehicle shares continued prominent in anticipation of orders as a result of increased mechanisation under the Government's defence plans. Leylands were strongly bought, and Dennis Bros. advanced.

A bright feature was provided among Electrical Equipments by Crompton Parkinsons, which were in renewed demand on favourable trading reports, and Associated continued firm on dividend prospects.

Firmness was displayed by Iron and Steel descriptions, although business was on a somewhat smaller scale than of late. Harland and Wolff First Prefs. continued in demand, and further advanced 6d. Thornycrofts, Swan Hunter and South Durhams were among the strong features.

BREWERIES IRREGULAR.

Breweries displayed some irregularity. A good turnover was reported in City of Defd. on expectations of favourable developments, the price closing 1s. 6d. up. On the other hand, Guinness showed a loss of a shilling.

Tobaccos moved within narrow limits, and showed little variation on the day. "Bats," Gallahers and "Imps" all lost the turn.

Further buying was seen in Cerebos on talk of a share-splitting scheme and hopes of a capital bonus. Unilevers reacted, while Tate and Lyle fell back.

Among Rayons, Courtaulds were offered on further consideration of the results, closing 1s. 1½d. lower on balance, while American Celanese were 1/16 off at 5⅜.

The Miscellaneous section had a somewhat easier appearance, although a few firm features were again in evidence. Dunlop Rubbers remained neglected, giving way to 39s. 3d.

OILS EASIER

Slackening of demand, both professional and public, coupled with end of the account realisations, brought about a generally lower level of prices for Oil shares yesterday. Owing to the counter-attractions of other sections, professional operators were selling Oil shares, which have become a quiet market this week, and transferring their activities elsewhere. In the circumstances, it was hardly surprising that a general decline in prices resulted, although the losses were not of a heavy character.

RUBBERS QUIETER

While trading in Rubber shares yesterday was considerably reduced and realisation caused some irregular price movements, the market as a whole remained extremely firm. A few of the higher-priced issues, to which attention was mainly directed, made further headway, gains in Tandjong, Kuala Lumpur and Djasinga showing up well. Steady business was effected in the commodity section, with spot rubber unchanged at 7 3/16d. per lb. It is estimated that U.K. rubber stocks have been reduced further by 1,870 tons during the past week.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS REMAIN HESITANT

With the carry-over in progress and a fairly large account to be settled, the Mining Market presented a distinctly week-end appearance yesterday. Other speculative departments have been attracting considerable attention for some time past, and in the circumstances it was hardly surprising to find business in Mines again on a very small scale all round. As regards Kaffirs, there was still a quiet investment demand for some of the leaders, but the business in these, as in other leaders, was never very brisk, and the movements in share values were insignificant.

In the Rhodesian department attention was again mainly directed to the Copper issues, among which Rhokana were being freely bought, and registered a substantial advance. Chartered continued their forward movement, but the Gold shares generally were quiet.

Although the price of the metal was easier, Tin descriptions were again in strong demand, and, there being few shares about, prices went ahead. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

Steel Ceilings New Share Issue

An extraordinary general meeting of Steel Ceilings (Ltd.) is to be held on the 24th instant for the purpose of passing a resolution for the increase of the authorised capital of the company from £115,000 to £250,000 by the creation of an additional 1,350,000 shares of 2s. each. In view of the orders on hand and offering, and of the increasing demand for steel sheet products in all classes of new buildings, the directors consider it imperative that new factory premises should be acquired and equipped immediately. In order to provide the moneys which will be required for this purpose, the directors intend, if the proposal to increase the capital is approved by the shareholders, to offer 575,000 of the new shares to the shareholders for subscription by them in such manner that each shareholder will have the right to take up one new share for every 20 shares now held.

Courtaulds Earn Less

While the dividend was up to expectations, the news that Courtaulds' earnings for the past year were £14,727 smaller than in 1934 came as a decided disappointment to the market, and the shares were promptly marked down 2s. 6d to 57s. 6d. (writes the Glasgow Herald). As £70,000 against nil goes to staff funds, the carry-forward is £66,936 lower at £202,292. Having regard to the general recovery in trade, it will, indeed, be surprising if the actual trading results were really as poor as the net profits suggest, particularly as the price of yarn has been increased and the company had the advantage of additional output. The explanation may be that, apart from the possibility of heavy claims for taxation in the United States, the company is heavily committed on capital account in regard to further extensions at home. A year ago these were estimated to cost £6,000,000. Considerable time must elapse before this expenditure becomes revenue earning.

British Railway Results

The increase in the Southern's net revenue is almost wholly accounted for by the £250,000 reduction in rating charges. If this is left out of account, the increase in railway traffics has been almost entirely absorbed by expenditure. Gross railway receipts increased by £278,783—a matter of 1.37 per cent. The number of passengers carried increased by 2.68 per cent., and the receipts per passenger, too, were higher than they were in 1934; but less goods were carried, and the receipts per ton were lower, too. The extra expenditure is for the most part accounted for by higher maintenance charges, which increased by 3.85 per cent. Running costs increased by only 0.74 per cent.—a very satisfactory record.

The Great Western's results are not quite so satisfactory. Nothing has been allowed for rating, and all but £39,098 of the railway traffic increase of £448,685 has been absorbed by expenditure. Gross traffics have increased by 1.77 per cent., the number of passengers by 2.16 per cent., and the tonnage of goods by 0.2 per cent.; but the running costs have increased by 1.7C per cent., and the maintenance costs by 1.95 per cent. The directors point out that, of the increase of costs, £350,000 is accounted for by wages and salaries, part of which increase is due to the restoration of part of the cuts in August, 1934. Total receipts amounted to £29,750,000, of which £16,600,000 was spent in wages, £1,800,000 in fuel, £3,250,000 in other materials, and £2,700,000 in miscellaneous expenses. The dividend and interest on the capital cost £6,250,000.

Stockbroker's Licence

The Minister for Finance has been pleased, by licence dated 10th day of February, 1936, to empower Mr. Edward Charles Gerrard Mulhern, Carragoona, Foxrock, County Dublin, to act as a stockbroker in buying and selling Government Stock and Government securities on commission.

HAMMOND LANE FOUNDRY MEETING.

The annual general meeting of the Hammond Lane Foundry Co., Ltd., was held yesterday at 111 Pearse street, Dublin, Mr. David Frame, Chairman, presiding. The Secretary, Mr. Gerald Rowe, read the auditors' report. The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the accounts as presented, reviewed the year's trading, and spoke of the prospects for the coming year. The resolution was carried unanimously, as were resolutions declaring a final dividend of 10 per cent. less income tax, transfers to reserves, and a capital bonus of one share for every six shares held. Mrs. Frame, retiring director, was re-elected, and Messrs. Stokes Bros. and Pim were re-elected auditors.

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Arnott and Co., Dublin.—The directors yesterday recommended a dividend of 4/- per share (same as last year) on the Ordinary share capital, and the usual 6 per cent. on the Preference shares, both less income tax.

Brooks, Thomas and Co.—10 per cent. (2/- per share) on Ordinary Shares, making 12½ per cent. for year. (Same.) £1,081 to motors depreciation; £13,058 forward.

Blantyre and East Africa.—The profit of Blantyre and East Africa (Ltd.) on the year's working to September 30, 1935, is £14,640 (against £20,497), to which is added the balance brought forward of £16,507, making a balance of £31,147. The directors recommend the payment of the 6 per cent. dividend on the Preference shares of the company, less tax, £459, and the payment of a dividend of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary shares of the company, less tax (unchanged), £6,000. They also propose to place to general reserve account £7,500, leaving to be carried forward to next year, subject to income tax, directors and auditors' fees, etc., £17,188.

Bovril.—Dividend of 4 per cent. on the Defd. Shares (against 3 per cent.).

Guardian Investment Trust.—The report for the year ended January 20 last states that the revenue amounted to £67,546, in contrast with £66,310 for the previous year, while £24,071 was brought in. After providing for the Debenture interest and the Preference dividend the directors recommend a final payment on the Ordinary stock of 3½ per cent., making 6 per cent. for the year, against 5½ per cent. for the previous 12 months, leaving a balance to be carried forward of £25,743.

Copestake Crampton (Warehousemen and Lace Manufacturers).—The accounts for 1935 show a trading profit of £11,968, to which was added £1,512, being income tax recovered. After deducting £3,554 for depreciation and allowing £525 for auditors' fees there remained a net profit of £9,402. It is now proposed to pay a dividend of 1¼ per cent. for the 12 months, which will absorb £5,812, leaving £3,590 to go forward. The net loss of £8,156 which was incurred in the preceding 12 months and that brought forward has been written off capital reserve.

Delta Metal.—Dividend of 12½ per cent. (same) and bonus of 12½ per cent. (against 7½ per cent.).

Eastwoods Cement.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent. actual on the Ord. Shares. (Same.)

Gold Producers' Fixed Trust.—The following are the current income distributions for December half-year which are being made by the trustee, the Midland Bank Executor and Trustee Company, on the 15th instant:—Deposit receipts—First Series, 10.7462d.; Second Series, 7.4218d.; Third Series, 5.8634d. Rand Certificates (one series only), 7.0114d.

Humber.—Half-yearly dividends on 5 per cent. First Cumulative Preference shares and 7 per cent. Cumulative Preference shares will be paid on February 28, 1936.

John Barker and Co.—Net profit for the year ended January 31st last, £386,791, which compares with £384,338 for the previous year. Usual half-yearly dividends on the 5½ per cent. and 6 per cent. Pref. Shares, and balance dividend of 10 per cent. on the Ord. Shares, making 15 per cent. for the year (against 10 per cent.). £223,791 forward (against £259,123 brought in).

London and Clydesdale Trust.—Payment of 4 per cent., less tax, on Ordinary stock for year, against 3 per cent.

Maynards.—No interim distribution on Ord. (Same.)

New Guinea Goldfields.—A cable from New Guinea Goldfields states that the directors' report and accounts for the year ended September 30 1935, have been issued. The net profit for the year amounts to £152,029, which is in contrast with £180,091 for 1933-34, and adding the balance brought forward there was a total of £211,293 carried forward on profit and loss account. Owing to expenditure on capital account during the year under review and contemplated additional expenditure during the ensuing year on drilling and prospecting, the directors consider it advisable in the best interest of the Company to conserve cash resources. No dividend will, therefore, be paid in respect of the year ended September 30, 1935. For 1933-4 a dividend of 4 per cent was paid.

Pengkalen.—Dividend of 10 per cent. on Prefd. Ord. Shares. (Same.)

Rugby Portland Cement.—The directors recommend a dividend on the Ordinary shares for the period from the date of issue (October 9, 1935) to December 31, 1935, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

T. Tilling Earnings.—The report of Thomas Tilling (road transport contractors, etc.) for the year ended December 31 last states that the profit amounted to £363,452 in contrast with £297,416 for the previous year, while £194,552 was brought in. As already announced, the directors recommend a final dividend of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary shares, making 10 per cent. for the year, leaving a balance of £277,829, out of which it is proposed to transfer £101,393 to general reserve, leaving £176,436 to be carried forward. In the previous year £150,000 was placed to general reserve and the Ordinary dividend totalled 15 per cent. General reserve stands at £3,011, and with the transfer of £101,393 from profit and loss account, and a further transfer of £548,845 from special capital reserve fund there will be available the balance in this account of £659,250, out of which the directors (as already announced) propose to distribute a bonus to Ordinary shareholders of one new share for every four shares held. There will remain a balance of £500,000 in special capital reserve fund. For the previous year a capital bonus of 100 per cent. was distributed. AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

SUDDEN INCREASE IN AMERICAN COPPER PRICE.

The Phelps Dodge Corporation has advanced the domestic copper price to 9.50 cents per lb.—the change to be effective from Saturday inclusive. The announcement came as a complete surprise. It is expected that other companies will follow suit.

HEAVIER ORDERS FOR MACHINE TOOLS.

The January index of machine tool orders has risen to 110.8, compared with 98.3 for December.

COMMONWEALTH EDISON'S POSITION.

The Commonwealth Edison Company reports for 1935 a net income of 10,274,000 dollars—equal to 6.39 dollars per share—compared with 10,271,000 dollars (6.38 dollars) for 1934.

DISPOSAL OF GOVERNMENT-HELD COTTON.

In Washington the Senate Agricultural Committee approved the Smith Bill by 13 votes to 2 in spite of the opposing testimony of various Government officials—notably Mr. Oscar Johnston, the manager of the cotton pool. Shortly after its introduction the bill was revised, providing for weekly minimum sales of 20,000 bales, but the maximum figure remains at 25,000 bales. Senator Smith on February 3 introduced in Congress a bill for the liquidation of the Government's holdings of cotton, the measure providing for weekly sales ranging from a maximum of 25,000 bales to a minimum of 15,000. Under the bill the President would appoint a board of three men to supervise the liquidation.

"SUBSTANTIAL DEMAND" FOR AMERICAN COTTON.

The cotton pool yesterday sold 50,000 bales of cotton to 43 bidders at an average price of 12.05 cents per pound. It is understood that the pool will continue to sell so long as the trade is prepared to pay on this basis. Mr. Oscar Johnston, manager of the cotton pool, commented on the fact that there were 89 bidders for 247,000 bales, thus indicating a substantial demand for a considerable quantity of American cotton, a large part of which is for export. It was stated on February 10 that as a preliminary step to what might be the re-opening of sales of spot cotton by the cotton pool, Mr. Oscar Johnston would to-day open bids on 50,000 bales, with the view of testing the market.

WOOL

AUSTRALIAN PRICES.—A further moderate advance in the prices paid for Australian wool is confirmed by the average price published yesterday by the Sydney wool-selling brokers for the second week of the sixth series of auctions there this season. The average was £19 4/6 a bale, or 16.1d. per lb., compared with £19 1/4 or 16.0d. per lb. the previous week. The quotation on a clean-cost basis for 64/70 weft, type 44, was unchanged at 30d.

TOWN PLANNING IN ENGLAND

THE EXAMPLE OF BIRMINGHAM

REHOUSING THE PEOPLE

Birmingham in the heart of the English midlands is setting an example for all England and Ireland to follow in the development of its town-planning schemes, which were started by the municipal authority of that city as far back as May, 1913.

To-day 38,509 acres of the city's total area of 51,147 acres have been town-planned, or are being planned. There remains only the central area to be covered, and this, to a large extent, has been tentatively re-planned, says the official 1936 handbook of the City of Birmingham, which has just been published.

The first scheme of town-planning (adopted in 1913) covered an area of about 2,320 acres, and it was followed, later in the same year, by the Birmingham (East) Town-Planning Scheme, covering 1,443 acres. Little further progress was made until after the Great War, and then, in 1921, a scheme covering North Yardley and Stetchford (3,176 acres) was approved. This has been followed by the south and south-west planning schemes, while the remaining schemes for North Birmingham, Perry Barr and Sheldon are in course of preparation.

THE ROAD SYSTEM

Although for convenience and other reasons the total area of 38,509 acres surrounding the central built-up area of the city has been sectionalised, the necessity for the general lines of the main services, such as roads, being laid down in a comprehensive scheme for the entire city, so as to relate local needs to those of the city as a whole and the surrounding districts, has been recognised and provided for.

Experience in connection with town-planning in Birmingham has confirmed the undesirability of planning the development of an area in too much detail, or, in other words, of trying to determine for all time what may be described as internal development.

The arterial road system of the entire city has been planned or replanned as a whole, and the improvement of existing and laying down of new arterial roads included within the various town-planning schemes are designed for that system. The general plan for the arterial road system of the city provides for the improvement of the thirteen great radial roads running from a small central ring road to the city boundaries. It also provides for an outer ring road, with an approximate radius of 3½ miles and a length of 24 miles, together with intermediate ring or semi-ring roads. Traffic on the arterial roads doubled between 1922 and 1928, and a further 43 per cent. increase was shown by last year's census. Provision has been made for main arterial roads of 120 feet wide, secondary arterial roads of 80 feet, and local communication roads of 55 to 65 feet, and minor and estate development roads varying from 36 feet to 50 feet.

DENSITY ZONING

Deep building lines have been laid down in the schemes for all roads to add to the spacious and dignified appearance of the roads. Considerable opposition was met with at times in regard to setting back factory buildings from the road line, but there are several examples in Birmingham proving the added attractiveness of well-designed factory areas secured by so setting back.

Density zoning has also received attention, and the areas restricted have a defined number of houses per acre. To complete the schemes provision has been made for plenty of open spaces and recreation grounds, while the plan for the central area of the city includes a civic centre, with shopping and office areas grouped to lead to this centre, without warehouse blocks interposing.

Up to the end of September last the municipality of Birmingham had completed 41,951 houses, of which the majority had been let, only 3,308 being sold. Under the Housing Act, 1930, official representations have been made by the medical officer of health regarding 2,708 habitations, while 1,894 individual houses have also been condemned as unfit for human habitation. For the purposes of re-housing people from the unhealthy areas, 1,600 new dwellings have been constructed, and contracts placed for a further 2,000. In connection with this work of re-housing families transferred from slum areas, a system of instruction and supervision by means of women visitors has been adopted.

THE AFFAIRS OF LORD LISLE

APPLICATION IN BANKRUPTCY

NO DISCHARGE FOR THREE YEARS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

IN the London Bankruptcy Court to-day an application was made to Mr. Registrar Mellor for the discharge of John Nicholas Horace Lysaght, Baron Lisle, who was adjudged bankrupt in April, 1933, being described as of Porchester place, Hyde Park, London.

Mr. V. Armstrong, Assistant Official Receiver, said that according to the report of the Trustee in Bankruptcy the proofs of debt and probable claims together amounted to £1,295. The assets, which were estimated by Baron Lisle at £2,660, had, so far, realised £212, and the probable value of those not yet realised was doubtful.

LAND IN IRELAND

Continuing, the Official Receiver said that Baron Lisle had stated in evidence that on his grandfather's death in 1919 he succeeded to the Barony and a life interest in the income derived from about 17,000 acres of farm land in the Counties of Cork and Limerick. Between 1922 and 1924 a Disentailing Act was passed in Ireland, under which he became entitled absolutely to a capital sum to be satisfied by the issue of Land Bonds.

After his marriage in April, 1928, he lived beyond his income, and from time to time raised money on mortgage on the bonds other than those charged to his mother. Apart from a period of six months, when he was employed as a motor car salesman, he had throughout been without occupation.

Mr. V. R. Aronson opposed the application on behalf of the Trustee in Bankruptcy, but said that it was only fair to say that the Trustee had received £50 beyond the realisation mentioned.

SALARY OF £2 A WEEK

Mr. W. A. L. Raeburn, for Baron Lisle, said that, unfortunately, there were people brought up without any sense of business affairs, and it was only when they passed through the tribulations of the Court that they learnt to appreciate matters.

"This young man is now working as a riding master at £2 a week," and was hoping to build up a career at a profession which he understood, and had now learnt a sense of responsibility.

Mr. Registrar Mellor said that it was a sad case. There were other assets which Baron Lisle had wrongly utilised, and he thought that it was fortunate that he had not found himself in another Court. It was a case of most disgraceful conduct, especially on the part of a debtor, who presumably had received a good education and training and was brought up to occupy an important position. He had deliberately ignored the Trustee in Bankruptcy, and his conduct throughout had been persistent misconduct. Only for six months had he ever had any occupation, and that might have had something to do with his extraordinary misconception of duty. The discharge must be suspended for three years.

CAMPBELL COLLEGE SHOOTING

SERGEANT TELLS OF ARMED MEN'S ATTACK

More dramatic details of the affair at Campbell College gate lodge, Belfast, on December 27th last, when he was wounded eight times by revolver bullets, were given in Belfast Police Court yesterday by Sergeant Ian Hay, R.U.C.

Two men have been committed for trial in connection with the affair, and yesterday two others also were sent for trial. They are John Monaghan, of Colligan street, who is charged with the attempted murder of Hay and with illegal possession of firearms, and Hugh Keenan, of Short Strand, charged with the illegal possession of firearms.

Sergeant Hay spoke of seeing three men enter the gate lodge door and of hearing the screams of women in the gate lodge. As he was about to enter the door to investigate he was shot in the shoulder from behind, but he went into the kitchen and was faced by three men armed with Service revolvers. They shot at him several times.

"One of them aimed at my head," he said, "but I drew my revolver, and he fell to the ground, at the same time dropping a fully-loaded revolver, which I secured. I was wounded several times, but pursued the men behind a curtain into the back rooms, which were in darkness. They escaped through the front door."

Sergeant Hay said that he recognised Monaghan as one of the three armed men in the gate lodge and Keenan as one of the group of men who were outside when he entered the house.

EMPTIED HIS REVOLVER

Sergeant Hay, cross-examined by Mr. Tughan, said he did not drop from his wounds; he walked to the ambulance. The shooting lasted less than a minute and he exhausted the six rounds of ammunition in his revolver. At Monaghan's parade he picked out another man and identified him.

Sergeant Connolly stated that when he arrested Monaghan said: "I was never associated with anything like this. I don't know where Campbell College is."

Head Constable James Reid gave evidence of arresting Keenan at his home at midnight on Thursday night, when he said: "I have nothing to say. It is only complicating matters. It is complicated enough so far as I am concerned." Witness found no firearms in the house.

William Hope, occupant of the gate lodge, and Mrs. Getty, who was present at the time of the affair, said that they could not recognise the men.

SWEPT UNDER BY SWOLLEN RIVER

CO. WEXFORD HUNTING MISHAP

While hunting at the joint invitation meet of the Waterford and Wexford Hounds at Rathgormack, Co. Wexford, Mr. D. Lindsay, father of the Marchioness of Waterford, jumped his horse into the Clodagh River, and horse and rider were swept under by the flooded torrent.

With considerable difficulty Mr. Lindsay and his mount made their way to safety.

Mrs. Hunt, wife of Brigadier-General Hunt, Ballymountain, Co. Kilkenny, had a somewhat similar experience, but succeeded in remaining in the saddle until her mount regained its footing.

Among those out were the Marchioness of Waterford and her sister, Miss W. Lindsay; Lord W. Beresford and Mr. Russell, Joint Masters of the Waterford Hunt, and Major M. L. Larkin, D.S.O., Master of the Wexford Hounds.

SIX MEN INJURED

Six men are detained in the Bootle General Hospital in a critical condition following a dock accident late last night. They were working on the liner Baronesa when they were thrown down the hatch to the bottom of the hold. Ambulances were summoned. The men, all unconscious, were placed in slings, and by the aid of the ship's derrick hoisted to the quayside, where the ambulances were waiting.

SHIP ASHORE NEAR LIZARD

The British steamer Lackenby ran ashore near the Lizard early to-day and two lifeboats were summoned to her aid. The coxswain of the Lizard lifeboat said: "The Lackenby is not in any immediate danger. The sea is smooth and the weather fair." The Cadgwith lifeboat brought ashore three women passengers from the ship.

A CITY GOES TO SEA

HOW ELECTRICITY AIDS QUEEN MARY

HARMONISING SOUNDS AND COLOURS

THE most up-to-date city in the world is going to sea. It will be called the Queen Mary, and will be equipped with two complete electric power stations, sufficient to illuminate a city with over three hundred thousand lamps.

"In a ship of such magnitude, which must be equal to, or even superior to, the finest hotel ashore, it is to be expected that the electrical installation must be on a scale not found on any existing ship," said an official of the Cunard-White Star Line.

"It is safe to say that, apart from any provision made through the use of electricity for the comfort and convenience of passengers, it would be difficult to conceive how a ship of this size could be efficiently handled and its elaborate organisation controlled without the aid of electricity.

"All the deck machinery, including steering gear, windlass, capstans, cargo, baggage, mail and boat winches; the auxiliary machinery in the main engine and boiler rooms; the ordinary lighting, and heating will be worked electrically.

"Whilst by far the greatest amount of current generated by the two stations is to be used for power, the amount of current required for other purposes is of no mean order. Not only has the ship to be efficiently illuminated, but certain modern decorative lighting effects will be adopted.

"For instance, when the first strains of a soft-languishing waltz are heard in the ballroom of the Queen Mary every light will change to soft, pale colours in harmony with the tune. Again, when the orchestra crashes into a vigorous fox-trot the many coloured lights will blaze, and huge wheels of lights will be set revolving across the room. It is made possible by a small piece of apparatus called a microphone-sound changer. The high and low notes of the music cause some little electrical change to take place on the surface of a photo-electric cell. This actuates the lighting system.

"Altogether the Queen Mary will use five hundred and twenty electric motors, ranging in size from half-horse-power to three hundred horse-power. Four thousand miles of cable—the distance from London to New York and half-way back again—will be required to run the energy through the ship."

FROM ROSS TO RHODESIA

Lord Strathcarron of Banchor, better known as Sir Ian Macpherson, is to go to Southern Rhodesia. He has accepted an official invitation from the Prime Minister and Government of the colony to visit Salisbury—far from the turbulent battlefield of Ross and Cromarty. Lord Strathcarron is President of the Empire Tobacco Producers' Association, and is at present on his way to Jamaica. He will return in ten weeks' time to prepare for his trip to Southern Rhodesia, which he will see for the first time.
